

DESPITE RUMORS ABOUT WHARTON COACH HEISMAN DENIES HE INTENDS TO PASS THE "BUCK" YEAR'S GREATEST FOOTBALL CLASH WHEN PRINCETON AND HARVARD, BOTH UNBEATEN, MEET TOMORROW

By ROBERT W. MAXWELL Sports Editor Evening Public Ledger

PRINCETON and Harvard are all set for the supreme test on Soldiers' Field tomorrow. Whether their seasons are successes or failures hinge on the game, for both teams thus far are undefeated. They have performed brilliantly against their opponents and stand out as the leading elevens in the East.

Yale is not at all confident of beating Brown. According to gossip from New Haven, the varsity will be handicapped because of the absence of Captain Callahan, Dickens, Aldrich, Thorne Murphy and Acosta from the line-up, and it will be hard to make much of a showing with those stars on the sidelines.

They say at Yale that the 1919 eleven had better material but poorer coaching, while the present eleven possesses poorer material but is much better coached. Perhaps this is the hope, but usually Yale is in pretty good shape at this time of the year, and I can't see how Brown will give them much trouble.

Syracuse is shrouded in deep, dense gloom, following the defeat at the hands of Holy Cross last week. Mickey Fallon, the best end, and Tod Hopple, tackle, are out for the remainder of the season, and Guilik, Pergonne, Kellog and Gaidie are on the injured list.

Washington and Jefferson has one of the strongest elevens in the East this year, the Orange is in a sad plight if the reports are true. Cornell and Dartmouth will put up a sensational battle at the Polo Grounds. The Harvardians have almost regained their full strength, as most of the cripples have returned to the line-up.

Dobie has a mystery team at Cornell and it is hard to tell what it will do in a hard game. Thus far big scores have been run up and the team looks better than it has in years.

However, there has been little opposition. Rutgers and Colgate are not one-half as strong as last year, and therefore were trounced by big scores. Dobie did something this year which makes him stand out as a coach. He had poor material to work with, but instead of trying to teach the men football which was over their heads, he constructed his offense and defense to fit the men.

Had Dobie attempted to use the same methods which were successful at the Navy last year he would have been considered a failure long before this. But he was brainy enough to see what should be done, and then to do it. The chances are that Cornell does not know more than a dozen simple plays, but they work those plays like the greatest team in the world.

CORNELL will give Dartmouth a hard battle, but it looks like an even-Stephen affair. If Dobie gets by with it he will be a wonder.

Fast Intersectional Tilt at State THE Penn State-Nebraska contest also looms up big, and the easterners should have a hard time in winning. Against Rutgers, Nebraska showed a powerful, well-coached eleven, which had mastered the line-plunging attack and inserted enough forward passes to keep the secondary defense away from the line of scrimmage.

State has an attack similar to this, but Beadek has many variations. He also has Haines, one of the best open-field runners in the East, and Way, who also is good. It will be a great game and both teams will be tested to the utmost.

Penn Looks Like Certain Second Choice PITTSBURGH is here to play Penn, and judging from the work of the two teams this fall, Penn should be the unanimous choice for second place. The team is not working together, the shift offense is worthless as they play it and the men don't seem to know what it is all about. The field generalship is terrible, and outside of that we have nothing to say.

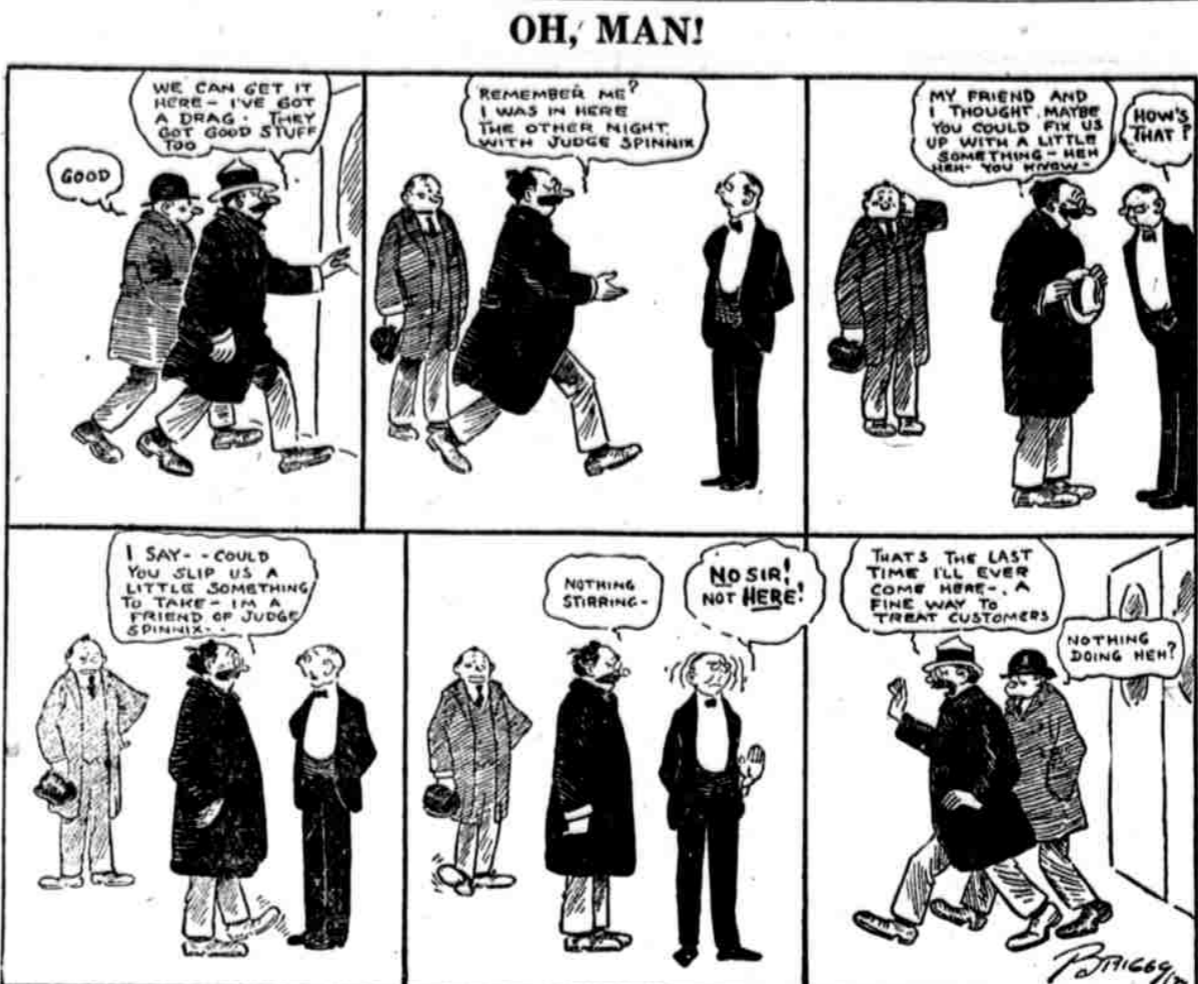

Pitt has a smoothly working, well-coached team, and should have little difficulty in winning. The only thing in doubt is the score.

The Situation at Penn DR. CHARLES M. WHARTON is known as the best line coach in the country. For twenty years he has stood head and shoulders over the field. His system of defense has been tried time and time again, and it has been so effective that many of the big colleges have copied it. He has been successful at Penn.

This year the Penn line has been the redeeming feature of the team. It is the strongest department. The backfield is shaky, cannot get the plays off with any degree of certainty and therefore cannot gain consistently on the attack.

Yet two former stars have been called back to help coach the line. Gus Zeigler and Frank Piekarskie are high-class men and good coaches. They are an asset to any team. But why raise such a hullabaloo over the line? There are weaker spots on the team.

You never can tell what will happen in football. CORNWELL, 1920, by Public Ledger Co.

ST. COLUMBA FIVE MEETS NATIVITY IN BIG GAME

First Important Independent Cage Contest of the Season Will Be Decided This Evening—Both Strong Teams

Philadelphia at Reading. The importance of this independent cage contest will be played this evening at Nativity Hall, Belgrade street and Allegheny avenue, when the newly admitted members of the American League tackle St. Columba, former champion of the American circuit.

The snits boast a nifty cage combination this season. They have such stars as Bernie Dunn and Tom Dunleavy, who are the forwards on the Wilkes-Barre team of the Penn State League; Sammy Moorehead, who has been with several Eastern League teams and is now at Coatesville; Rube Cashman, Walt Keating and Johnny Carney who were the St. Columba colors in previous seasons.

Nativity has gathered together a fast combination composed principally of top liners from the scholastic ranks of last season and, working together, the youngsters are expected to make a splash in the cage this year. Tonight's tilt is the first of a series between the uptown rivals.

Since the disbandment of the Catholic League these five have fought it out each year for the title. On paper the snits appear to have a slight edge. They will carry a big crowd of rooters over Richmond way tonight to assist them in making things merry for the home contingent. Tommy Barlow, the scoring guard of the Trenton Posters, leads the scorers but he has abandoned the pin.

Wilson Forced to Retire Boston's National League champion Johnny Wilson, of this city, because of serious personal mishaps and misfortunes, has dropped training entirely and it is possible will not be able to appear in the first game of the season. A couple of weeks ago he developed a serious ear trouble and that member is now giving him as much trouble as did his nose. He was to have gone away to start conditioning next week, but he has abandoned the pin.

Another Eddie—White—of Trenton, stands fourth with four, but he would be higher had he been able to compete in the first half of Monday's game at Germantown. Friday night is an off one in the Eastern League, the next game being tomorrow, when Philadelphia travels to Reading and engages the Pretzels. Manager Bill Myers in all probability will have a new man with him on that occasion, as he has been on the lookout for a nifty center fielder who can center if necessary and also fill in the backfield.
