

HARVARD-TIGERS IN FINAL DRILLS

Big Elevens Finish Practice in Cambridge Stadium for Battle Tomorrow

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 5.—Both Harvard and Princeton will put the final touches on their football teams in the stadium this afternoon. The Crimson team will have their workout before the Tigers, who are due to take the field at 4 o'clock. The invading hosts are scheduled to reach Boston shortly after 3 o'clock. With practice concluded, they will be taken to a quiet hotel in Belmont. Harvard will have an out-of-town dinner and try to forget football for the time being. Coach Fisher will decide today whether he will allow Sedgwick and Hubbard, the big tackles, to strip for play. Jack Gaston, to all intents, will be missing from right end. Jack Crocker will serve instead. There is little to choose between the pair except that Gaston seems better able to grasp the fine points of the position. Sedgwick is able to play, but just how long no one will say. It would be much safer to keep the six-foot four-inch tackle on the sidelines far from harm so that he could be physically fit to give his all against Yale than to maim him for the season tomorrow. His neck has been wrenched twice this fall and on that account Sedgwick hasn't played since the first game. He has been favoring his neck even this week. The chances are that Sedgwick will sit with Gaston as a spectator but may be called upon as a last resort. Wy Hubbard, who is considered regular right tackle, with his 208 pounds advantage, may be elected to start in order to strengthen the extremity positions where Harvard doesn't appear any too strong. If these three men are on the sidelines, Princeton has an excellent opportunity to defeat Harvard, and never possessed a better one. The Tigers with their formations where the end runs in and throws himself ahead of the remainder of the interference, may be a real Harvard menace under these conditions. The probable line-up of the Harvard team follows: Left end, Kane; left tackle, Faxon; left guard, Tolbert; center, Havemeyer; right guard, Woods; right tackle, Lockwood or Hubbard; right end, Crocker; quarterback, Joe Fitzgerald; left halfback, Owen; right halfback, Churchill; fullback, Captain Arnie Horween. Northeast Church League Union Tabernacle defeated Beacon, 20 to 17. In a Northeast Church League game played at Diastor Hall last night, while Sumnerites won a red-hot contest from Bethesda by the score of 22 to 18.

ICE TEAMS WILL HAVE LEAGUE HERE

Philadelphia Hockey Club
Formed at Meeting Held in Pawling's Office

The Philadelphia Hockey Club is the name of the leading amateur hockey team of this city. This club, formerly known as the Quaker City Hockey Club, was organized at a meeting of the hockey followers at 1432 South Penn square last night. Sidney Clark, of the Philadelphia Cricket Club, was elected president; Alden Lee, of the Merion Cricket Club, was chosen vice president, and Jack Huhn was named secretary and treasurer. Fred M. Thayer, of the Merion Cricket Club, was the unanimous choice for manager of the Philadelphia Hockey Club. The Interclub League also was formed. Five teams—the Merion Cricket, Philadelphia Cricket, Pickering Hunt, Cynwyd and Bachelors (large)—were represented. Swarthmore, Marshall E. Smith and Philadelphia Textile made application for entrance.

The league probably will be an eight-club circuit. Every member of the Interclub League also is a member of the Philadelphia Hockey Club. The executive committee, which is composed of the officers of the hockey club and a representative from each club, will hold a special meeting early next week for the purpose of drafting a schedule. Each team will play at least ten games. The first hockey practice of the year will be held on Tuesday night at the Ice Palace. George E. Pawling, president of the Palace, has turned the Ice Palace over to the hockey club for one practice session a week and for one public game a week. The Interclub League will play most of its games at private sessions. The hockey men in attendance last night were J. A. Gilmore, Eddie Hill, F. M. Thayer, Joe Dexter, W. T. Newling, Alden Lee, Randolph Faries, Ed. S. Ashton Souder, Jr., E. C. Felton, Jr., W. W. Kurtz, F. D. Drew Bear, A. O. Yarnall, J. deV. Keefe, R. Graham, Jack Huhn, S. P. Huhn, Jr., Allen R. Young and Garrett Gilmore. Rookwood Wins Opener Rookwood's opening game was an exciting victory over St. Paul last night on the latter's floor by the score of 31 to 20. Rookwood had a narrow escape. The team had ten-point lead with ten minutes to go in the game when St. Paul made a great rally and led within one point, trying the score when the bell sounded. Johnny Regan has been let out by Dave Henula. The latter was loath to part with the local lad, but could not see his way clear to hold him. Henula plans changes in the line-up for next week.
