

JUSSERAND BRINGS NEW LEAGUE VIEWS

French Ambassador Will Discuss Subject After Harding's Inauguration

NO RADICAL ALTERATIONS

Washington, Nov. 8.—Julius Jusserand, the French ambassador, who went home several months ago on leave and who later was assigned to special duty in connection with the settlement of the Polish question, is to return to Washington on November 24. He is expected to bring with him the latest views of his government regarding the re-creating of the League-of-Nations covenant and to be prepared to discuss the subject with the officials of the Harding administration as soon as they are in office and ready to proceed.

It has been known for some time in diplomatic circles in Washington that the principal allied powers were prepared to go far toward meeting any desire of the American Government for changes in the plan of the covenant, but it has been stated in at least one important quarter that changes must in no case violate the underlying principles of the convention. Diplomats generally do not believe such changes could be made by reservations such as were proposed in the so-called Lodge plan.

In their opinion, amendments would be necessary. They would require the approval of the various signatory powers.

Another matter that will engage the attention of Ambassador Jusserand is the status of the commercial relations between the United States and France under existing treaties. France last spring gave notice to all powers with which she had commercial treaties of the termination of those conventions; her purpose being to replace them with a complete set of new treaties shaped to the new conditions in trade and commerce resulting from the war. Before the denunciation took effect, the French Government withdrew the notice so far as it concerned the United States.

France has not abandoned her plan of revising her commercial treaties and it is understood to be deferring the opening of negotiations with the United States until after the change of administration in Washington on next March 4. Before the negotiations are opened, M. Jusserand is expected to acquaint himself with the plans of the Republican leaders in the matter of tariff revision, which might greatly influence the character of any new commercial convention.

The ambassador also is expected to make a close survey of the situation in Washington and report to his government upon the prospects of success in case it should decide to renew its efforts to obtain approval by the Senate of the treaty which would guarantee protection for France against external aggression for a period of five years. Failure of the original effort in that direction resulted in the abandonment of a similar Franco-British treaty.

WOMEN VOTERS GOT CANDY, LEAGUE MEETING IS TOLD

Speakers at Convention Here Say Ice Cream Was Also Used. Election Officials Accused of Misinforming Those Who Asked Questions

The sad plight of being all dressed up to vote and no one to vote for will never again befall if the Philadelphia League of Women Voters can prevent it.

That was brought out at its first annual convention, held on Saturday at the Bellevue-Stratford, when the importance of being expert in election laws and of getting in at the primaries was emphasized in various reports and several speeches.

The forwardness of the workers was illustrated by one ward chairman, who told of division leaders who had called meetings the day after the recent election.

Mrs. Davis Undaunted

Mrs. Edward Parker Davis, chairman of the women's Democratic committee, declared herself undaunted by the outcome of the election and ready for another year. She told of her protests at a polling place against the opening before the appointed time of an overflow ballot box—a box about the size of a small garbage can—and various other irregularities.

Mrs. Imogen B. Oakley announced she had been told that registering as belonging to a party, entitled one to take part in the primary election even if one voted for the candidates of another party.

Besides a more enlightened citizenship, improved schools, and cleaner streets, the league is planning work for women on the ward committees, for reforms in the election laws, proportional representation and the short ballot.

At the dinner that followed the afternoon meeting, Miss Marjorie Shuler, of New York, told a story of the ratification in Tennessee.

How Day Was Saved

How the day was finally saved by a twenty-four-year-old mountaineer representative was dramatically told. In speaking of women's bewilderment over party lines, Miss Shuler said that, after hearing eloquent orators tell the history and ideals of the respective parties, women were like one who looks in two bottles, both of them labeled and both of them empty.

Mrs. Albert D. McMahon, one of the organizers of the National League of Women Voters, told of her disillusioning experiences with women in the New York elections. From the wisdom men didn't want to give us the vote, any way, and since they have been so dear to us, I don't like to be unkind to them."

Mrs. McMahon had come out of the campaign a sadder woman and feeling that the only hope for better things from the women voters was for them "to drink refreshing drafts from the stream of civic knowledge of the league."

Mrs. George A. Biemel, the retiring chairman, presided at both meetings. The election of officers took place at the afternoon session, those elected for the ensuing year are: Chairman, Mrs. George A. Biemel; first vice chairman, Miss Sarah D. Lowrie; second, Mrs. Ralph Raiguel; third, Mrs. Mat L. Margolis; fourth, Mrs. Samuel Warriner; secretary, Miss Jean Crawford; treasurer, Mrs. Charles J. Rhoads.

A large delegation from Philadelphia will attend the meeting of the State League of Women Voters to be held in Pittsburgh this week. Mrs. John O. Miller is state chairman.
