In Small Frame Cottage

The President-elect and Mrs. Harding arrived here late yesterday afternoon Will Examine Body and took up their residence in a small frame cottage overlooking a bay where a fleet of fishing boats lay at enchor.

The townsfolk, largely Mexican fishermen, gave them a warm welcome, pouring out of their little box-like houses and crying out their greetings in mixed English and Spanish dialect. A score of pupils in the Point Isabel School lined the entrance of the village and showered elegaders and other semi-surface process.

Do they really differ seriously? Mr. Root, reading Mr. Harding's utterances in the campaign, and having other means. Root, reading Mr. Harding's utterances in the campaign, and having other means of communication with Mr. Harding, evidently thought not, for he made a speech and issued a statement on the league in the final weeks before election, both in support of Mr. Harding, and Senator Johnson, who is the leading bitter-ender, thinks that Mr. Hard-ing agrees with Root cather than himand so interpreted Harding's In-

Three Tasks on League

What Harding's exact position on the league will be is a practical question. He faces three tasks, to get the largest possible support in his own party on the league, to get a two-thirds majority in the Senate for his plan, and to win the adhesion of foreign nations to it. He shall take them in the inverse order. Dispatches from abroad indicate that greater European governments will consent readily enough to a modification of the present league, but that the proposal of a new association will bring about confusion.

In the Senate to gain a two-thirds wote Mr. Harding must have the support of some Democratic senators. It
