OLD PENN AND DARTMOUTH TEAMS SHOW REVERSAL OF FORMAND GAME ON SATURDAY SHOULD BE THRILLER

By ROBERT W. MAXWELL Sports Editor Evening Public Ledger

DENN'S great showing against Pittsburgh and the work of Dartmouth in the Cornell game last Saturday makes the Penn-Dartmouth game on Franklin Field next Saturday loom up as a highly exciting contest. Both teams showed a startling reversal in form, especially Penn. Nobody even dreamed that the strong Panther eleven could be scored on three times, but the Red and Blue came through in a pinch.

Coach Heisman wisely opened up his attack, and this style of play brought results. Penn has a team this year which is built for open play. The backs are speedy, can get forward passes and keep the opponents busy all of the time. However, they are almost impossible in a line attack. The men are too light and too small to stand the constant battering.

There was a big improvement in the backfield. True, the men missed their signals occasionally, but a little thing like that can be corrected. The big thing now is the fact that Penn has come back to life, showed some real football, and this should stimulate both the coaches and players to further efforts. That Pitt game was the best thing that could have happened to Penn.

Dartmouth has a great team now that Captain Robertson and a couple of other cripples are back in the line-up. The Green team has been unfortunate all season in having star men laid up with injuries, but they now are in shape for the final drive.

Last Saturday Cornell made but one first down against them, which proves the defense is very good. Shelburne, the colored backfield man, is a star and Bowers also is good. Dartmouth will bring a strong eleven down here. and the game should be an interesting one.

Cornell failed to show as much as the early senson scores indicated, but this was because Dartmouth was the first hard game Dobie's men have played. The solemn Scot never admitted he had a good football team, however, and perhaps he was right. Still, you never can tell in one game. Anything is likely to happen.

THE Ithacana play Columbia next Saturday and we will see what happens then.

Leonard and Loughlin Plan Revenge

TT IS seldom that a world's champion, after taking part In a very streamous bout, comes back for more of the same. A tough opponent usually is placed on the blacklist of the champion and, if they ever meet again, it will be occially and without the scenery of a boxing club.

Therefore, it is with much surprise that we note the approaching battle between Benny Leonard and K. O. Loughlin in Camden next Friday night. The last meeting was one of the roughest ever seen in these parts, and the bout was the most sensational we ever have witnessed. For nine rounds the boys bounced punches off each other's face and Leonard won because he was able to slide over the telling wallop.

Leonard will not admit it, but he was all but out in the seventh round. Bleeding from the nose and mouth, a bewildered look in his eyes and staggering around the ring. it would have taken but one blow to finish him.

However, Loughlin was in the same condition and this was fortunate for the lightweight champion. Leonard's pride was hurt after that contest. For the first time in his career he was forced to take a beating and has been anxious to redeem himself. He blamed his poor showing-if it could be called a poor showing-to his long vacation in the movies and wants to prove that he is just as good now as ever before. Loughlin also has been claiming that Benny slipped over a lucky punch and had no license to win. Therefore, e have two dissatisfied parties concerned and what could be better than settling it with the gloves? 'Tis strange, in these hectic financial times, that two professional athletes step into the ring and REALLY fight. It isn't done very much these days, but this pair seem to be all set for a Kilkenny evening without the Irish confetti.

TT LOOKS like a boxing bout well worth seeing I because, if it is only one half as strenuous as the last one, there will be lots of action every minute.

Oh! Look Who's Here!

DASEBALL is becoming quite prominent in the public prints and is being discussed, despite the off season and the football games. The magnates are preparing for the approaching season and one club has gone so far as to select a spring training camp. The Cincinnati Reds will train in Cisco, Tex., instead of Miami, if that means anything.

Managers are being hired, fired and allowed to resign. Fred Mitchell received the official tinware from the Chicago Cubs and Johnny Evers took his place. Jimmy Burke has passed out of the St. Louis picture. Hughey Jennings resigned from Detroit, George Stallings has quit the Boston Braves, Ed Barrow took the job as secretary of the Yankees and Hugh Duffy replaced him as manager of the Red Sox.

It was said in Boston last Saturday that Mitchel could have the job as manager of the Braves if he wanted As Fred is not ready to go back to the farm and likes to be kept busy during the summer, it's quite likely that he will take the job.

Baseball is being shuffled up for a new deal. The magnates have started their usual winter fight, which will keep the fans busy until the training season starts. These scraps are getting to be old stuff. The public is getting sick and tired of them and, if the magnates only knew it they are hurting the game as much as the pillow lifters. . . .

FANS don't care to read about bum bouts between amateur fighters. After last winter's exhibition. we are led to believe the baseball magnates are in the storrage class as fighters.

Ice Hockey to Begin Soon

A SHORT time. Philadelphians will have an opportunity to see some real, honest-to-goodness, strenus sport of the indoor variety. Ice hockey will be played at the Ice Palace and the best teams in the United States and Canada will perform.

This is about the fastest game that is played and the spectators get plenty of thrills. George Pawling has arranged a great schedule for the winter. Copyright, 1929, by Public Ledger Co.

Such were the sentiments of "Harlem Eddie" Kelly, of New York, in his dressing room at the Olympia last night while he still was separating himself from that woozy feeling following the knockout wallop—the first of his career --suffered in the fifth round of his scheduled eight-round bout with Lew Tendler, Philadelphia's persistent con-tender for a crack at the lightweight title. A short left hook, which was pre-ceeded by a body blow as Kelly was backing up, toppled him over. Eddie flooped flat on his back and as Referee Slim Brennan started to count the New Yorker rolled over on his stomach.
