

MEDALS AWARDED U.S. NAVY OFFICERS

Admiral Sims' Name Appears in List, but Honors Were Not Forwarded to Him

WILL BE DELIVERED TODAY

By the Associated Press
Washington, Nov. 11.—The second anniversary of the signing of the armistice was celebrated in the navy and marine corps today by the distribution of nearly 2,000 medals and letters of commendation for particular valorous or distinguished performance of duty during the world war. The medals and letters awarded had been forwarded to commanding officers in all parts of the world and upon signal by radio and telegraph today from Secretary Daniels' office here the honors were distributed with appropriate ceremonies.

The action marked the final phase of the controversy over naval decorations that resulted in a congressional investigation last year, after Rear Admiral Sims had refused to accept the Distinguished Service Medal intended for him, on the grounds that injustice had marked the signing of distributing the navy's recognition of distinguished wartime service. During the investigation Secretary Daniels was accused of making awards to officers who commanded ships sunk by the enemy and ignoring other officers who performed distinguished duty in responsible positions on shore.

Publication today of the list of awards as finally approved by the secretary shows the original list to be unchanged so far as deletions are concerned. Rear Admiral Sims' name again appeared on the list as having been awarded a D. S. M., but it was said at the Navy Department that the medal had not been actually forwarded to Admiral Sims, as was done in almost every other case, due to the officer's previous refusal to accept the honor. The medal, along with the navy crosses awarded Rear Admiral Benton C. Decker and Captain Raymond Hasbrouck, who took action similar to that of Admiral Sims, had been deposited in the bureau of navigation for such future action regarding acceptance of the medals as the officers concerned might wish to take. It was explained at the department that the list of awards as finally approved showed a considerable increase over the list published before the congressional investigation. It was explained that after the matter had been referred back to the board headed by Rear Admiral Austin M. Knight for reconsideration many meritorious cases were discovered that had not been included in the original list. For this reason, it was said, 1,961 medals and 622 letters of commendation were awarded today instead of 1,961 medals and 561 letters, as was originally recommended.

Twenty-four Receive Medals at Yard Today for Meritorious Service

For meritorious service overseas twenty-four officers of the United States navy and two enlisted men received medals and crosses at the Philadelphia Navy Yard this afternoon.

The men assembled in the office of Captain Louis M. Nulton, commanding officer of the yard, who read the citations and presented the medals.

Incidentally, Captain Nulton was obliged to present himself with one, as he has also been honored for good work overseas.

A Distinguished Service Medal was presented to Captain Orin G. Murfin for his work in organizing the North Sea mine bases on the coast of Scotland.

The following received navy crosses:

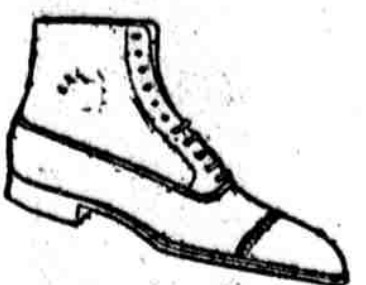

Rear Admiral Fred G. Bassett, commanding officer of the destroyers stationed at Philadelphia; Rear Admiral Frederick R. Harris, of the construction corps.

JUST NOW THERE ARE MOST EXCEPTIONAL VALUES TO BE HAD IN THE SHOPS. IF YOU KNOW JUST WHERE TO GO FOR THEM, THAT IS PAULETTE'S PLEASANT DUTY TO KEEP YOU "POSTED." ARE YOU AWARE THAT MENTIONING PAULETTE'S NAME TO THE SHOPS ASSURES ADDITIONAL COURTESY?

A tailored suit in all its perfection is something which every smart woman adores—but hunting a good tailor is like pursuing that elusive creature, the satisfactory dressmaker. Yet, folks, I know one—really and truly. It is that inimitable Sterling at 1210 Walnut Street, that artist in cloth who insists, let his business be ever so prosperous, upon doing his own fittings—no one else being able to meet his exacting demands. You can imagine that a suit from the hands of a man like this would be as near perfection as earthly things attain—indeed yes! Now Mr. Sterling has made an unheard-of concession for his patrons (yourself included—better mention my name though)—that is, that he will not only continue October prices throughout November and until further notice, but he has further reduced the October prices, so that it is now possible to get a real Sterling exquisitely tailored suit for $85—think of it! This is regularly a $125 suit and the October prices were $90 and $95. The very same exquisite linings and findings are used in the $85 suit as in the $125, and the rich linings are guaranteed for two seasons' wear, being replaced free of charge, and with an apology, if they do not wear.

The most adorable kiddie frocks on land or sea are to be had at B. F. Dewees, 1122 Chestnut St., frocks that are sold at no other shop in Philadelphia. Many a mother I've sent to buy them—for I learned about them some time ago. They are created by a woman who declared that children's frocks didn't make folk justice—and immediately proceeded to design and fashion some that did. That woman's name is Adelaide T. Crapsey, and exclusive merchants vie with each other in procuring her limited output. Each little frock is fashioned of the finest material of its kind and along sort of "Jessie Wilcox Smith" lines that would make any little girl doubly irresistible. In many of the frocks all the stitching visible is hand done, and the smocking is that real English kind which launders so excellently. Now all next week there is to be a sale of these "story-book" frocks. For example, pristine dimities in pink, blue, yellow and green were $1.50, in sizes 4 and 5, and $2.50 for 6 and 8 years. Beginning Monday all these will be $1.50. Stunning little Anderson gingham for school, sizes 8 and 10, were $1.00, but are now $7.85. These are but a sample of the many darling numbers. But shop early.

There is no more reliable shop in town than George Allen's at 1214 Chestnut St.—no, not one. Their bargains are such emphatic bargains and their merchandise is so completely what it is represented to be. At the toilet goods counter, for example, I get so many things cheaper than I have been able to find them elsewhere, and I know of no such department whose regular prices are more reasonable. This is quite remarkable when you consider that Allen's handles none but first-class goods. Just let me tell you of a few penny bargains he has had. Roger & Gallet's violet toilet water is $1.45 instead of $1.60; their violet soap is 45¢ instead of 50¢; Mary Garden talcum is 30¢ a box instead of 35¢, and those wonderful new French tissue and cleansing creams, "Crema Angelus," is $1 a jar and is to be had here at its freshest. There, too, can be found, whenever it is in the city, Houbigant's talcums in all four odors of Quélques Fleurs, Quélques Violettes, Idéal, La Rose France. Fine castile soap, usually $1.25 a doz., is regularly at Allen's $1. These are but a few of the good things, and Allen's always have a complete assortment of Houbigant's, Coty's and Roger & Gallet's preparations when they are in the country. And don't forget Allen's hairnets—$1 a doz. in all but gray and white, which are $1.50. These all are real French nets valued at $2.50 a dozen.

I wish I could impress upon you to my satisfaction how unusually reasonable are the frock prices which reign at Lilla's wee shop a step or two below the street at 1305 Walnut St. This low pricing is due, as I see it, to several things—lower overhead charges of that step or two down, a necessity for selling frocks quickly owing to limited space, and Lilla's own content with a reasonable profit. Of course, I know values, as you may suppose, but some folk do not, and when these latter see Lilla's remarkable frocks it is amusing to see how skeptical they are—but you all remember about the man who tried to sell gold pieces on London bridges for a penny or so and failed. Fools are beginning to realize that Lilla's bargains are like those gold pieces and well worth the purchasing. Just to inspire you with a confidence in Lilla equaling my own I have personally selected for you a group of adorable frocks which I saw formerly priced to $55, but which you can have for only $85 each. The group includes really stunning tricotines, satins and duvetyns.

STEINWAY PIANOS

The Pianist's Piano

Many schools of music use another piano in their instruction rooms—because of less cost; but when "commencement" day comes or recitals are given, a Steinway is always seen on the stage. From no other piano can such fine musical results be obtained, and through no other piano can the teacher so demonstrate the pupils' attainments. It is the pianist's piano. The art of the great concert pianists would be unrecognizable without the clarifying influence of Steinway tone and the wonderful mechanical perfection of the Steinway action, which gives a "touch" through which the player at will can mould tone and volume just as a singer controls his vocalism. It is the pianist's piano.

Read the book, "Steinways of Today," and you will understand how Steinway pianos reach their great superiority.

Steinway pianos may be bought on monthly payments
