These-at equally attractive savings-join the thousands of Suits and Overcoats comprising our entire stock, already marked at greatly reduced prices.

The regular stock of this Clothing Store of Constant Activity was contracted for months ago, before any manufacturer would even admit the possibility of an approaching decline in prices. As soon as the manufacturers realized that they would have to take some losses on future orders, we immediately began taking losses on large quantities of Suits and Overcoats; and three weeks ago we reduced prices on OUR ENTIRE STOCK. Our purpose was to give our customers the IMMEDIATE ADVANTAGE of the new market conditions, and to GET INTO THE MARKET at the earliest possible moment, to relieve our good manufacturers of surplus stocks and let them share the losses.
