

HADLEY DENIES 'FAULTY MEMORY'

City Controller Declares Mayor Broke Appointment to Discuss Sinking Fund Report

RESOLUTION WAS TABLED

Will B. Hadley, city controller and secretary of the sinking fund commission, today replied to the Mayor's allegation that "Mr. Hadley has a faulty memory" concerning the disposition of a tentative report of the condition of the sinking fund.

with a resolution passed by City Council, July 27, asking for information concerning the sinking fund.

On Wednesday, Mr. Hadley declared before Council that the Mayor had refused to sign the statement, on the ground that the resolution of July 27 was an insult and not offered in good faith.

Mr. Hadley said what he is reported to have said about the alleged mysterious statement in reply to the councilman's resolution, his memory is at fault, said the Mayor yesterday.

Mr. Hadley's statement today follows: "I have no desire to enter into any controversy with the Mayor or any one else. My relations have always been pleasant and it is my desire that they shall continue so."

It was subsequently put in letter form and during the week beginning Monday, August 23, I endeavored on two or three occasions to get in touch with the Mayor at his office personally to discuss the tentative draft of the letter and consider any changes that might be desired.

On Thursday I made a definite engagement with the Mayor's office to meet him at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, but when I reached there before 2 o'clock he had left the office.

was delivered to his office that afternoon by messenger. Whether the Mayor saw this letter prior to the following Tuesday afternoon, the day of the meeting of City Council, I do not know, but assume from his public statements that he did not.

"There was no signature of either Mr. Stotsbury or myself upon the tentative draft of the reply to City Council, as we desired a reply that would meet the unanimous approval of the commissioners, and I was submitting it to the Mayor for his signature if it met with his approval."

"The letter was returned by the Mayor assigned on September 7. At the September meeting of department heads held several days subsequent to September 7 the Mayor expressed to me in the presence of the members of his cabinet his regret at the hasty manner in which he disposed of my letter and said that he did not mean any offense to Mr. Stotsbury or myself, but that he felt loathly the action of City Council in passing such a resolution."

VETERANS TO REORGANIZE

Business Men Aid Drive of Connolly Post, No. 94

The Connolly Post, No. 94, American Legion, named in honor of two brothers killed in action while serving with the 110th Infantry, Twenty-eighth Division, is being reorganized.

An appeal has been made to all ex-service men of the Thirtieth ward to enroll. Further impetus was given the drive when William P. Timney, former draft-board chairman, announced the colors will be presented by the business men of the Thirtieth ward at a smoker to be held early in December.

WAR VETERAN DIES

William Springfield, twenty-eight years old, of 408 South Boulevard, Gloucester City, N. J., died last night at the home of his parents after a few days' illness.

He was chaplain of Gloucester Post of the American Legion, of which he was one of the organizers. He had never fully recovered from wounds received while in the British army service during the war.

Springfield was aboard the ill-fated British steamer Otranto which was mined and torpedoed off the coast of Ireland. In the explosion that followed he was wounded and taken to a hospital in Liverpool where he was a patient many weeks. He had enlisted as a wireless operator having taken a course at the Franklin Institute.

IF USED to be that watches were more prized for their decorative value than for their accuracy, but three centuries of watchmaking have given us a timepiece that is at once useful and beautiful—such a dainty time-keeper as the tiny watch-shaped watch of diamonds and platinum that I saw today at the store of Van Dusen & Stokes, 1123 Chestnut street.

Even those of us who have encountered with difficulty in securing our winter's supply of coal, are just a bit hesitant about using it all up during the first few months, what with rumors of a coal shortage. It isn't really necessary to start the furnace now, or to have an auxiliary heater, such as the Lavo, a radiant heater which I saw at the store of J. Franklin Miller, 1312 Chestnut street. It warms a room very quickly. The Perfection Oil Heater is portable and very economical, and there are several good electric heaters, too, at Miller's. The Radiantone is a gas heater built on scientific principles, which gives out a great amount of heat. For the room that is difficult to heat such an auxiliary heater is most desirable.

IF YOU'RE one of those lucky people who are going to the Thanksgiving game, you'll want a warm sweater to wear underneath your coat. The camel-hair sweater, made of fine light and soft all-wool, I saw a very pretty one at the store of A. G. Snodgrass & Bros., 1210 Chestnut Street. Those skater suits of tan camel-hair trimmed with brown chenille are smart looking. They come in all white, too, and in black trimmed with white. For those with the high-balled sports shoe, the narrow toe of tan and the range which come in delightful shades of old rose, purple, blue, brown, tan and brown. Something new in which you may be interested are the all-wool washable stockings with camouflaged clocks.

REALLY, the buying of a wrap or a coat is a simple matter. One should not be thinking seriously of the purchase of a photograph. One should not buy without giving several photographs a fair test. Consider the purchase of a photograph in much the same light as the selection of an automobile. Borrow a road from a friend or buy one made by your favorite artist. Then try it out on several occasions. Trust your own judgment, for, once you buy it, you will have to listen to it day after day. In making your final decision, you will note the difference between the Perfection and all other photographs. The two that are of the highest quality are the Perfection and the Perfection. The Perfection showrooms are at 1123 Chestnut street.

THE GIFT BOOK, that most absorbing little handbook which illustrates the wonderful services which you will find at the store of Bailey, Banks & Biddle Company is now ready. It is so helpful at this time when you are indulging your brains for gift suggestions. There is jewelry for the intimate gifts—rings, watches, pins, cuff links, dainties, mesh bags. For the bride there is silver—and such variety from which to choose—from the silver tea or dinner service, all the way down to an inexpensive little bonbon dish. And there are so many things for the house—huge grandfather clocks, mufin stands, nests of tables, lamps, vases, candlesticks. The Gift Book, with price list, will be sent upon application.

THE BLUE STORE, at 1310 Chestnut Street is affording a wonderful opportunity just now for the purchase of one's winter wardrobe at a really worth-while saving. For a limited time this store has reduced its merchandise in all departments 25 per cent. You can well understand what such a saving means on a fur coat, for instance. The head of the fur department, who is one of the best furriers in Philadelphia, has bought so advantageously that the furs are marked at most reasonable prices. And now they have been further reduced 25 per cent. There is a very swaggy leopard skin coat, ideal for sports wear, at a remarkably low price, considering its quality, and those gorgeous fur wraps for afternoon and evening wear can be bought most reasonably upon application.

"Happiness in Every Box"

TOMORROW at 12th and Chestnut A different kind of Candy Store Opens—Come to Our Birthday Party!

THIS is more than the opening of a candy store—it's the introduction to Philadelphia of the United Retail Stores Candy Service—a service devised to bring candy lovers and pure, wholesome confections together on a better basis. This service "takes the twist" out of the candy business, cuts out in-between profits and expenses, eliminates waste, extravagance and useless handling—brings directly to the consumer the natural food products that constitute good candy.

New York—"Happiness in Every Box." It is a delightful place to visit, with cheerful, we-are-here-to-please-you service.

In addition to a general line of fine candies we have brought the original recipes and the identical candy makers from our New Orleans factory to Philadelphia to make here in this city in our Sunlight Candy Kitchen at 117 South Second Street, the delicious Fuerst & Kramer Home-Made Confections, famous in New Orleans and all over the Southland.

Proof of Our Service! The first United Candy Store opened in New York on May 8th. So enthusiastically have New Yorkers indorsed this idea that today we have nine stores in New York City and one in Newark. In addition, we are operating four stores in New Orleans. By Christmas we expect to have at least three stores open in Philadelphia—the one opening at 12th and Chestnut tomorrow, another at 1504 Market and the third at 5201 Market. This rapid development is made possible only through the whole-hearted appreciation by the public of our efforts to provide better candy, better service and fairer prices.

We list below a few—a very few—of the candies to be offered in this new store tomorrow. These candies tell their own story of goodness and purity.
