A Bold Stroke in Furniture—2000 Pieces in a Sudden Let-Go at Half

An Old-Time Tenderness Hath Still Its Charms

Sit thee down for a few minutes, dear man, by the side of that old mother of yours, and she will be young again, in her eyes and words, as you hold her little hand.

Get off from your work or your class at school in time to be at your old home in the country on Thursday for breakfast on Thanksgiving morning, and if mother or father wants you to go over to the old meeting house Thanksgiving service with them, do it, do it sure!

Give the old folks a happy day and take with you a present for the mother, if it is only a pair of gloves or a box of candy.

[Signed]

John Wanamaker

Nov. 22, 1920.

A Miscellany of Women's Dresses at $20, $25 and $30

All of these dresses have been from $7.50 to $12.50 higher, but now that sizes are broken we are as glad to clear them out at the reduction as our customers will be to buy them. There is a little of everything in the lot—Jersey dresses, crapes de chine, satins, tricotées, serges—tailored, headed and embroidered, in tans, browns, taupes, grays, blacks and mauves. These are very practical day dresses, for morning and afternoon, to wear under coats or in the house.

A few large sizes are in the lot.

First Time Prices Come Down on Women's Fur-Trimmed Wraps

Fifty of the handsomest fur-trimmed street wraps now hanging on our racks have each had $50 taken from its price. This does not include sports coats or evening wraps. It does include every other fur-trimmed coat or wrap formerly marked over $250 in price. There are the most beautiful civetines, eroras and bolivias trimmed with large collars of squirrel, mole, lynx and nutria. Some of them are copied.

Every one of these wraps is an exclusive model and the very newest fashion. The saving of $50 in the price of each wrap means more than usual on such a garment as this.

New prices read from $200 to $518.

(First Floor, Central)

A New Sports Hat to Wear to the Thanksgiving Game

There are soft, lustrous velours in dark and lighter colors, there are stitched velvets and felts in various styles and colors.

There are sailors, hats with close brims, small hats, hats of medium size, mushrooms and other good shapes.

Every hat has been more expensive. And these prices represent good savings!

(Main Floor, Market)

This is the longest step anybody has taken in the direction of old-time, low-price opportunities in furpiture.

It is the greatest offering in years, the greatest in the number and variety of pieces offered at such a sweeping economy.

There are 1000 bedroom pieces alone. There are more than 500 dining-room pieces.

There are hundreds of living-room, library and hall pieces.

In each of these divisions, complete suits can be matched up from the individual pieces, but there are many complete suits already in the collection, perhaps one of one kind up to as many as fifteen or twenty of another.

It is a really splendid assortment of furniture, helpfully broad in variety and reliable, without exception, in quality.

Suits and pieces of unusual individual charm in design or decoration are numerously represented. Pieces and suits of just the kind that people set their hearts on—but hesitated at the price—are plentiful in the disposal. Now is their opportunity.

Everything in the whole 2000 pieces is at half the original price. It is the boldest stroke in furniture that has been struck in years. The pieces here mentioned are only a fraction of the entire collection.
