U. OF P. CONCERT TONIGHT
Music Clubs Will Preserve Pre-Cornell Game Custom
The annual concert of the combined musical clubs of the University of Pennsylvania will be given this evening at 8:30 o'clock in the ballroom of the Manufacturers' Club.
The organizations taking part are the Glee Club and the Instrumental Club. The concert always precedes the Penn-Cornell football game, but for the first time in a number of years the Cornell musical clubs will not take part. The musical program will be followed by dancing until 2 o'clock. Markel's orchestra will play.
The concert is officially part of the house party celebration which the fraternities at the University have revived this year. It is underwritten by the fraternities that have entire charge of the arrangements.
The program follows:
Part I.
1. "Songs of Pennsylvania," arranged by Weaver; Glee Club.
2. "Japanese Sandman"; Instrumental Club.
3. "Sea Fever," by Masfield and Andrews; Glee Club.
4. Trio: Violin, cello and piano.
5. "Good Night," by Hartman; Glee Club.
Part II.
6. "Bells," medley, arranged by Weaver; Instrumental Club.
7. "My Love," by Barker; Glee Club.
8. Saxophone Quintette.
9. "War Songs," arranged by Brush; Glee Club.
10. "Whispering," medley, arranged by Weaver; Instrumental Club.
11. "Fight On, Pennsylvania"; command clubs.

ORGAN IN CHURCH SUMMONS POLICE
Alleged Poor Box Looter Nabbed When He Sets Crowbar on Keys
FIND CASH ON PRISONER

The deep, rich tones of an organ rolling forth from the German Lutheran Emanuel Church, Fourth and Carpenter streets, early today led to the discovery that the poor box had been tampered with and that an attempt had been made to steal the silver communion service.
Police say Joseph Katz, who claims he has no home, set a crowbar on the organ keys, after starting the electric pump. Money found on Katz, the police assert, was taken from the rifled poor box.
The Rev. Dr. Rudolph Nieder, pastor of the church, whose home is adjoining, was awakened at 2 o'clock this morning by deep organ notes. He arose, looked across at the church and was amazed to see the edifice illuminated.
Believing that the organist might be practicing, even at that early hour, the pastor, telephoned the home of William Bachman, the organist, at 1402 East Moyamensing avenue. Bachman answered the phone and assured Dr. Nieder he had been practicing slumber instead of harmony.
Bachman hurried to the church, accompanied Patrolman Kellam on the way over. They found the side window of the church had been forced. The poor box had been broken open and rips on a door leading to the basement showed an intruder had tried to reach a safe containing the communion service.
Bachman switched off the electric pump and removed the iron bar from the keys while Kellam searched the church for the intruder. The search was unsuccessful.
A hunt around the outside of the church, according to the police, located a man, who later said he was Katz, crouched down behind a fence. He was taken to the Seventh and Carpenter streets station.
District detectives, who questioned the prisoner, claim Katz told them he started the organ to drown the noise

NARROWS PROVOST CHOICE
John C. Bell Hints It May Be Dr. Pennington or Dr. de Schweinitz

The elimination of all prospective candidates for the post of provost of the University of Pennsylvania with the exception of Dr. Josiah H. Pennington, present acting provost, and Dr. George E. de Schweinitz, is indicated in a remark by John C. Bell, a trustee of the University.
At the dinner of the Graduate School of Medicine on Monday night, at which Dr. Edgar Fahs Smith, former provost, Dr. Pennington and Dr. de Schweinitz were present, Mr. Bell in speaking to the faculty of the school said:
"I am in the presence of the past provost, the present provost and the future provost of the University of Pennsylvania."
When asked to explain the interpretation of his remark, Mr. Bell said that upon seeing the three men present, he made the remark in a jest, but that "many a true word is spoken in jest."
Dr. de Schweinitz stated that Mr. Bell's remarks were purely in the way of jest and that he had nothing to add to them.
Thanksgiving Feast Stolen
Hungry robbers who broke open a showcase in front of the McCrorey store, at 1207 Market street, yesterday, made off with a complete Thanksgiving dinner—roast turkey, celery, cranberries and all. The showcase has for several days held the store restaurant's Thanksgiving advertisement. The thieves took dishes and paper napkins as well as the food.

The Beauty of the Waltham Watch
OH, what a beautiful watch! How many times we have said that, or heard others say it, when confronted in the jeweler's shop-window or upon his counter with the slim, golden beauty that has captured our admiration.
A beautiful watch has a strange power of fascination. Its beauty is alive. It speaks to us of Time. It measures for us Time's value and transition. When we buy one, it becomes immediately a part of our life. It goes everywhere with us. We depend on it. And if it fails us, we feel that "a friend" has played us false.
We do not buy a watch merely for its good looks. If that were so, we should not be really buying a watch but a watch case. So the beauty of our watch must go deeper than the outside. It must reach into every part, no matter how tiny. It must delve into and be the sum and substance of the whole "works"—the "movement" that ticks the seconds, day and night, for us.
BEAUTY is much more than appearance. A watch may look good—but is it good? That is what we are most interested in. We hear much to-day of "ultra" this and "extra" that. The "ultra" beautiful, the "extra" thin, and we are apt to be confused as to what is the best value for our money.
We venture to say that there are hundreds of thousands of watches reposing in bureau drawers, or among discarded trinkets, that were once bought because of the "pretty," "cute," "cunning" or "smart" watch case wherein reposed the "works" that refused to keep time.
Of course, you should buy Beauty in your watch. But buy beauty on the outside and "beautiful" time-keeping on the inside.
The Waltham Watch can be bought in the most beautiful cases imaginable. True, you may not find Waltham Watches plentiful because they are the most desired, the most sought-after watches. From the tiny lady's watch, the works of which are not as large as a dime in circumference (the smallest "movement" made in America), to the generous sized railroad man's watch—the famous Waltham "Vanguard"—the Waltham is "wanted" by those who value time-keeping ability.
The beautiful "works" of the Waltham Watch have won many honors and gold medals against all comers at the world's great exposition. It was the "works" of Waltham Watches that placed "America first in watchmaking." These Waltham "works" were the wonder and admiration of foreign watchmakers. They openly said so.
The name "Waltham" across the dial of the watch you buy is an American word that carries with it watchmaking leadership, watchmaking integrity, watchmaking dependability. It means the best watch, for the price you pay, that it is possible to buy.
The Waltham Watch represents nearly three-quarters of a century of watchmaking improvement. Many of the advancements in modern watchmaking came from the Waltham laboratories. The Waltham Watch embodies many unique superiorities of construction and durability found in no other watch. Often you meet men, and women too, who will proudly show you their Waltham Watch that is still keeping dependable time as it did the day they bought it, twenty, thirty, forty, fifty years ago.
You buy a watch to serve you—to tell the time for you—to outlast the years of life. There is an element of friendship, of almost human association, between the watch that has watched faithfully, constantly, over Time for a long period of years, and the owner of it.
Waltham Watches are heirlooms in thousands of American families. Grandfathers have passed them on to grandsons, and grandmothers to granddaughters. They have become a bond in Time with the Time that has passed and is no more.
AND it is because of their Beauty in Service, their chaste design and their lasting ability to keep time that the Waltham Watch is now the most sought-after watch in the world. It is not easy to obtain. The rigid inspection before it leaves the great Waltham organization limits the output. This insistence upon quality and performance is a Waltham Creed. But it is a watch worth waiting for—worth any man's or woman's determination to own.
The Waltham Watch will repay your faith in it by giving you the lifelong service for which it was made—to keep and tell the time.
