INCHES FROM The Golden-Plated Rule By Lillian Paschal Day

The safe harbor of Home is mine. Thank You for the Sunlight.

It is a singing rapture.
Thank You for Beauty.
Your wonderful world is full of it.
Thank You for Flowers.

They are Your thoughts made visible. Thank You for Music.

They are diamond mines of thought.

Love given and received, twin joys.
Thank You for Work.
It is one of Your greatest gifts.
I may serve You and mankind.

It is greatest, most glorious of all.
No land in all the earth compares.
Land of Liberty and Loyalty.
My sires gave their lives for it.
A precious heritage they bequeathed.

A blessed opportunity is that. Thank You for My Country.

lts shrine is in my heart: Patriotism, a flame ever alight

Thank You for Immortality.

Last gift and greatest of all.

I shall meet You face to face.

My beloved gone before I shall see.

All this when my work is done.

The I that is I shall never die.

Thank You.

Thank You. Amen.

It is Your Voice. Thank You for Books

Thank You for Love.

A Song of Thanks

This isn't a story at all. It's just a song of thanksgiving. But it's an Inch of the Golden Rule. For gratefulness is good.

I like to hear "Thank You."

It means an overflowing heart,
Which is a full life—summum bonum. taught my boys to say it.
o I'm saying it to my Father

To the Giver of all good:
Thank You for Peace.
Even the kind we have now.
But yesterday Red War gripped us. You have delivered us from these: Battle-murder and sudden death; The terror that flieth by night; l'estilence that stalketh at noonday That was hell—this is heaven.
Thank You for Hope.
It is the rainbow of Your promise.
Your Sun is behind the clouds. It shines down into our souls. Thank You for Health. My body is whole and glad.
Thank You for Food.
The riches of Your earth You give.
Harvest and Fruitage are abundant. It is a Land of Plenty. Thank You for Shelter. A warm fireside, windows of light. Cheer and comfort surround me,

Now to step from a sheltered home into a big office and feel oneself under the critical scrutiny of girl after girl was a bit of a strain, but the only evidence Muriel gave of it was an unconscious, cool little reserve which covered a very real fear that the girls were not going to like her and accept her as one of themselves. And this reserve, misinferpreted as a feeling of superiority, created the very atmosphere she had astinctively dreaded—an atmosphere of sloof unfriendliness.

"Get the Egg"

"Get the Egg"

"Don't waste time worrying over why a black hen lays a white egg—get the egg first; then, if you must worry, do it later."

That, in a sentence, is the business philosophy of Miss Genevieve McCann, of Lansing, Mich., a woman who has not only made a success along a meet unusual line of endeavor, but who has obtained a position where her sex renders her unique, the post of chief clerk of the Michigan Game, Fish and Forestry Commission.

of the Michigan Game, Fish and For-estry Commission.

Not many years ago, when Miss Mc-Cann was still in her teens, she came to the conclusion that the only way to get along in the world was to have some definite objective, some goal toward which she would constantly work. While still a numit at the constantly definite objective, some goal toward which she would constantly work. While still a pupil at the convent at St. Ignace, Mich., she began to specialize in the study of wild animals and birds, with a side course of her own in the habits and habitats of fish. The investigations which she pursued in the surrounding country were not only interesting, but on the day she graduated, led to an appointment to the branch office of the state Game, Fish and Forest Department at Sault Ste. Marie. A few months later she was promoted to the general headquarters at the state capital.

The death of the chief clerk opened up a vacancy which the commissioner determined to fill by the appointment of the man who had the best record in the department and, greatly to the surprise of the head of the service, he found that the "man with the best record" was a woman!

"Yes," admitted Miss McCann, after she had been notified of her promotion," I am naturally gratified at the confidence in my ability which this appointment proves. But, more than that, I'm gratified again to see the truth of my pet slogan pointed out. I haven't worried about why things happen. I tried to get results—first, last and all the time—and I think that's the only way any one can achieve success. "Get the egg" and do your worrying later."

cold — without being preheated or cooked. Automatic control was set for 50 minutes. Gas was lighted and oven door closed. No further attention was given it.

At dinner time the oven door was opened and the meal taken up. The roast, with a wealth of juice and flavor, was done to a turn. Soup, potatoes, peas and pudding were equally tempting.

That, in brief, is the sort of thing the Acorn will do for you three meals a day, 365 days a year. It not only saves you from three to five hours times each day, but cooks perfectly and saves on gas and food bills.
