Let me state my own block, for instance, Let me state my own block, for instance, I am a poor man. Five years ago I purchased a home in this block and had to mortisge it heavily. I paid $3300 for it. We all paid a tax on a $3400 assessment through. For several years this constitued. This year we had our assessment raised to $4400, and we are informed that neither that the state of the feditor of the Evening Public Ledger:

Sir—I wish to offer some ideas on the question brought up by "C. I. L." in today's edition—namely, whether it is wise to piace billiard tables and bowling alleys in churches. My pointon is that everything can be summed up by its results, and so it is be result of this move that should be considered.

Many men and boys who care for peor and bowling as a recreation would have an opportunity to enjoy the same under good influences if we had these games under the church roof. The average poolroom is not very elevating in character.

I can't see at present that any bad influence could result from the plan, inasmatus as it is the part of the conspreading and the set.

You can easily understand what a strug-led I have had to so through, with a small slary and the high cost of living, and now have have assessed my house for $1200 were than I paid for it, and more than it is clusily worth. If I go to the City Hall and take complaint, as I did, I am toid that me one in the row sold their house for some one in the row sold their house for some one in the row sold their house for $7000 and if I am willing to sell mine for the massessed rat? The man who sold his house for $7000 had put about $1200 to $1500 of improvements on it, yet I must be taxed for his ability to improve his property. I have not been able to even have one room papered in five years, badly as one room papered in five years, badly as several of them need it.

Now I am sure that any one will see the injustice in a case like this, and I am only one of many thousands. Of course, I would not sell my house for its assessed value, and neither would thousands of others, for where could we go, with the profiteers sbroad, to find another home? I did not be shread, to find another home? I did not be many who forget all this country has accomplished under President Wilson's leadership.

We were all in step with him until the majority of us let the "Boys get the mone," and it is sacred to me, will have to struggle along. Probably I ill not le able to meet the additional cost, they will have to put me out. You the board of assessment revision know we, Are we. same ilx through the People's Forum. E. A. McCALL.

Dickens a Favorite To the Editor of the Evening Public Ledger:

Sir-I do not know what the other readers f your paper think about it, but, in my pinion, the greatest of all novelists was harles Dickens. I have read many books, enjoyed none as much as Dickens. I r tire of reading them over asain, certainly hold for me a mysterious nation. I think his way of describing

Questions Answered

To the Editor of the Evening Public Ledger: Sir-In reply to Mr. Wilton's query, which was printed recently in the People's Forum. yould say that the author of the phrase 'You can't make a silk purse out of a sow's ear" was William O. Brann, better known as "Brann, the Iconoclast," now dead. Mr. Brann used the expression in his reply to Slattery, the impostor, who lectured against the Roman Catholic Church. C. L. T. An Old Favorite To the Editor c; the Evening Public Ledger: Sir—I see Mr. E. L. Anker, of Reading, Pa., in People's Forum, asked for the old song "Do They Miss Me at Home?" The song published is not the one asked for. As near as I can remember, the song b

"DO THEY MISS ME AT HOME?" Do they miss me at home, do they miss m Twould be an assurance most dear To know at this moment some loved one Were sayin' I wish he were here! To feel that the group at, the fireside Were thinking of me as I roam.

Oh, yes! 'Twould be jov beyond measure To know that they miss me at home.

When twilight approaches, the season That ever is sacred to song,

Does some one repeat my name over
And sigh that I tarry so long?

And is there a chord in the music

That's missed when my voice is away.

And a chord in each heart that awaketh

Regret at my wearisome stay?

Do they set me a chair near the table When evening's home pleasures are nigh,
When the candles are lit in the parlor
And the stars in the calm azure sky?
And when the "good nights" are repeated
And all lay them down to their sleep,
Do they think of their absent, and waft me
A whisnered "good night" while they A ,whispered "good night" while the sleep?

Do they miss me at home? Do they m me
At morning, at noon or at night? And liners one gloomy shade 'round their That only my presence can light? Are Joya less invitingly welcome And pleasure less hale than before Because one is missed from the circle Because I am with them no more

An Optimistic Poem To the Editor of the Evening Public Ledge Sir—I will appreciate it very much if you will please print in your interesting People's Forum Robert W. Service's poem entitled "Grin." MONROE T. AIMES.

"Missing! Why should he be missing?
He would fight until he fell.
And if wounded, killed or prisoner,
Some one there would be to tell."

"W. M. L." asks for a parody on "Cur-few," which is entitled "Murphy Shall Not Sing Tonight,"

"T. C. A." wishes a poem containing the following lines:

"Life is like a mighty river, flowing of from day to day.

Men, like vessels launched upon it, som times wrecked or cast away."

"W. E. C." asks for a poem containing following lines:
"Stow every inch of canvas, boys,
