Unbeaten Elevens Battle for Gridiron Supremacy on Muddy Field

Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 25.—As a fit-ng climax to a brilliant football season, the contest between the Pitt Pan-thers and the Nittany Lions today is the most important event of the gridiron for turkey day. Both teams are coached by two of the eleverest mentors in the by two of the cheverest mentors in the land, and each has pointed his team for this particular game. Neither has been defeated, although Lehigh tied Penn State and Syracuse tred Pitt, but Lehigh and Syracuse have both fallen by the wayside against other teams and therefore are not classed with the mahines that have been built up by Glenn

In order to Insure, a score.

Tenn State's squad did not come into the city until this morning, in order to keep them away from the rabid mob that crowds the downtown hotels, where the supporters of the Blue and White arc congregated. Bezek and his assistants came in and were at the big smoker of Penn State at the Chamber of Commerce last night. The former leader of the Pittsburgh Pirates wasn't boastful, but expressed confidence in his boys and said that they would do their best. Glenn Warner is quietly confident that the Pauthers will either win or tie with the Center countians as his team hasn't been beaten twice in succession since he came to Pittsburgh Syracuse almost did it, however, as the New Yorkers won from the Blue and Gold last year and tied them this season.

It was raining heavily when Warner trotted out his squad yesterday afternoon, and as the gridiron was covered with straw, he gave the Panthers a light workout on the outer edge of Forbes Field, the practice being mainly signals, with some end running ampinuting. Today's contest will be the twenty-third between the two teams since 1803, Penn State has won thirteen out of the Penn State has won thirteen out of the twenty-two played so far. Last year's score was 20 to 0, the Bezdek machine smashing its way through the Pitt line with ease. Incidentally, the Presidents have not won from the Maurianese since W. from the Mountaineers since, W. and J will appear the underdog in today's battle. The reverses the Presidents have sustained at the hands of Syracuse, Pitt and Carnegie Tech have lowered the stock of the Red and Black to a point where the odds appear to be considerably favorable to the team from Morgantown. The Mountaineers are in the pink of physical condition, having come through their recent games without mishap or injury to players. On the other hand, W. and J. will present a line-up that Presidents would be able to muster were all their men in shape. Eielson, of course, will not play, and McLaughlin, with a broken toe, is out of the game for good. Brenkert is still "toting" a broken hand, but will play, while West has a bad leg. That's a rather poor condition for a high-class backfield. Mortow will use Lawrence at quarterback in today's tilt with Erickson and West at the halfback places and Brenkert at fullback.
