REGULAR PRICES. PAULETTE QUOTES ONLY

rom many interesting reductions in women's hose to be had at the good shop of B. F. Dewees, 1122 Chestnut, this week, let me quote an important few. For example, pure silk stockings, full fashioned, with mercerized garter tops and soles, are reduced from $2.50 to $1.95. They come in black, cordovan, African brown and Russia calf.

Handsome stockings for Christmas-giving are some of pure black silk, clocked in white, and also white clocked with black. Formerly priced at $4.75, they are now only $3.50 a pair. Woolen sports hosiery in heather mixtures, combining brown-and-black, green-and-black, (nearly all sports woolens are so) stockings are this week, at Dewees', only $1.25 a pair. In the children's hosiery department there are also bargains-such as children's stockings, finely ribbed and mercerized, in black or cordovan, sizes 7 to 91/2, which are this week selling 3 pairs for $1.45, instead of the usual price of A certain smart little shop is having a sale of the most authentic bargains one could find in many a day's journay through the reliable shops. Only seeing them will convince you that such desirable frocks can be sold for $30-think of it, $30, for really good class little models that the discriminating woman or girl would delight in wearing! The shop happens to be Lilla's, at 1305 Walnut St., a little shop of reliability, courtesy and absolutely nonprofiteering prices. The frocks in this generous $30 assortment have been selling (I saw them originally priced) for from $45 to $60, and were low at that, and most of them were nearer the $60 mark. There are tricotines, velveteens, satins and Geor-gettes, mostly in 16 year sizes, and the fashions vary widely, from tailored street models to the dressier afternoon frocks. It's one of the best buy of the season, I assure you. Personally, whenever I am in doubt about purchasing a frock into Lilla's I drop, and when I pop out again my troubles are left behind.

Geo. Allen's shop, at 1214 Chestnut, has become a very satisfactory habit with me—truly, it is a shop of high qualities, reasonable pricings and authentic reductions. The impregnable Allen reputation stands back of every purchase, this I know. Just at present it is getting ready its always interesting Christmas gifts-$2 powder glasses for the dresser, covered with silk veiled in gold net and wreathed with ribbon flowers; pretty, flat powder bowls, somewhat larger, covered in blue or rose brocade, at $2.25; perfume bottles, frocked in gold cloth to harmon-ize, $1.50 and $1.75, and a handy little silken powder bag with a puff buttom through which the powder sifts when patted. This is $1.25. But don't pass Allen's glove counter, either, without a peep. I honestly know of no glove counter in the city to equal it for quality and value economically received. Just now they have a marvelous real French dress glove, a Trefousse overseam model in tan, gray, white, black and navy, at a temporary reduction, $3, instead of $4. These will make handsome Christmas gifts. And these are but a few

When I dropped into Theodore Siefert's, that non-profiteering furrier, at 1426 Walnut Street, I slipped on a derling coat and luxuriated in it-just a few minutes of niake-believe that it was mine. It is only $600, remarkably inexpensive and fashioned of beautiful moleskin. It is a full, youthful model, loosely held in at the waistline by an unusually handsome heavy girdle of hand-crocheted gray silk. It has a wonderful collar in which to have one's presented the property of the which to bury one's nose and chin on freezing days, and such graceful bell sleeves in which are concealed little silk puff sleeves, called "wind shields," to prevent the air from going up. The snug pockets are warmly lined with velvet—and oh, the luscious lining! For only $650 there is a darling moleskin cape, one of the new models, made effectively with reversed skins and having a deep inset shoulder cape effect (being inset there is no added bulk) of gray squirrel—what a wonderful afternoon and evening wrap it would make! There is a mole cape similarly

L AST night saw the first ball of the season. It was given by Mr. and Mrs. Stevens Heckscher for their daughter, Lucretia Heckscher, 2d, who was introduced at a tea given on Monday by her grandmother, Mrs. Thomas Leaming. It was truly a beautiful affair, and the decorations of the room were expusite. Large palms, ferns and chrysanthemums were used, and Mrs. Heckscher, Mrs. Leaming and Miss Lateretia Heckscher, of Boston, the aunt for whom Rita was named, received the guests.

dinners before the ball. The George Packards entertained for Mary Howland; Mr. John Pearsall gave a theatre party for his daughter Margaret, and Mrs. James Large entertained at dinner for Margaretta Harrison. The Henry Michells gave a dinner for Anne Ashton, and Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Atterbury entertained for Gertrude Consaway, while the Langdon Mitchells gave a dinner for Helena at their home in De Lancey place. Mary Bayard was given a dinner by her uncle and aunt. Mr. and Mrs. Field entertained for their daughter Elizabeth.
