The case is illustrative, doubtless, of United States Government through its charity and welfare work.

The case is illustrative, doubtless, of hundreds of other parishes, churches and institutions in Philadelphia and eastern Pennsylvania. Senate committee on reconstruction about to undertake a similar work, it is not improbable that the Pennsylvania Legislature will institute some sort of inquiry into a situation within its borders that has become well-nigh intolders that has become west-nigh intol-erable to its citizens.

Such action, however, should present different characteristics from the in-vestigation instituted during the Brum-baugh regime, which was so manifestly weak as practically to discredit the re-sults of its findings.
