GIRL IS RECONCILED

Young Woman Who Ran Away When Chastised Yields to Threat of Cell

MOTHER COMES FOR HER

Helen Tymesen is seventeen years old and lives in New York, but her "daddy" reprimended her with the business end of a two inch-wide razor strop when she persisted in staying out late at nights.

This was a month ago. Here em phatically decided that razor strops were made for a specific purpose and that purpose ans not corporal punish ment of a well-bullt, full-grown girl.

So she came to Philadelphia and obtained a job-no, a position-in a bank, in a clerical capacity. The girl is well trained and an efficient worker, and she liked her work. She seement an apart ment to North Eleventia street near York, and had almost forgetten the effects of the rater strep incident

When Helen was "reprinanded" mother was ill, in a hospital Ste learned of the affair and of Helen's departure, several days ages when she re-curred house. Her efforts to make her daughter brought her to this city, and Detectives MacDongall and Richard-son, of the Park and Lehigh avenues station located and arrested the girl last

Mother and daughter met in Lieu-tenant Le Maistre s office.
"I won't go lieue, I' go to fail first. I won't be reprimateded with a razor strop, venemently declared.

Lieutenant Le Maistre told Helen he didn't want to be compelled to send her to an institution, and shortly before 9 o'clock last night sent a detective with the mother and daughter to the North Philadelphia station, to see them safely started on the train to New York. The Tymesen home address is S22 East

WOMAN OF 68. ROBBED. DIES

Man Who Aided Apoplexy Victim, Took Her Savings

Mrs. Anna Walters, the sixty-eight year-old woman who was robbed of $565, her life's savings, by a young man who helped her when she became ill on the street last Thursday, died Saturday night at her home, 4017 Cak

Mrs. Walters was returning from the bank from which she had taken money when she was stricken money when she was stricken with apoplexy at turbodes and Leiper streets. A young man who saw her fal-was the first to reach her and offered to assist her home.

The offer was accepted. When there two women neighbors entered got there two women neighbors entered. He told them to get a doctor while he administered first aid to Mrs. Walters. They left on the mission, and while they were gone he took the 8505 from Mrs. Walters' pockethook and field.

Mrs. Walters' condition became worse when she realized that all her savings were gone and late Saturday right she
