MRS. WILSON GIVES CHAFING DISH MEALS

Some Tempting Concoctions That Are Easily and Quickly Made for a Light Dinner or Evening Refreshments

"GO. DEAR message, go, and wish to fallows, dired. Two cups

Flowers from the garden, fish from the well,

Meat to all, in the great hall."

Meat to all, in the great hall."

Six young matrons have formed a chaffing dish club, and they intend to spend one afternoon cach week to gether, sewing, and then their husbands are to join them for the evening meal then they go to a lecture, or theatre, and then back for a final bite to cat before wending their way honeward. One young busband informed me that this party existed all last winter, minus the chaffing dish, and that the expense attached to dining in fown hate in the evening, caused them to debate upon the advisability of the continuance of these weekly parties. Then one of the matrons called a control and arranged for the chaffing dish supper. She had just received in electric chaffing dish as an anniversary giff. She volunteered to bring her dish each time.

To become familiar with the use of it, the ladies descided to begin by having chaffing dish husehoons each time they met, and it was may asstep from this to the chaffing dish dinner.

So many delicious meals can be are pared in this dish that I am going to give you some menus that can be used for dinner as well as those for late suppores.

Here are half a dozen snappy dinners from the chaffing dish:
