DERCY MARMONT, the English

PERCY MARMONT, the English actor, is Norma Talmadge's leading man in her First National Picture, "The Branded Woman," which will be screened at the Stanton commencing next Monday.

Other members of the cast are well known lights of the cinema world, including Vincent Serrano, George Faw. cett. Grace Studdiford, Gaston Glass, Jean Armour, Edna Murphy, H. J. Carvill, Charles Lane, Sidney Herbert, Edouard Durand and Henrietta Floyd.

The production is founded on Oliver D. Bailey's stage play, "Branded," having been adapted to the screen by Anita Loos and Albert Parker, It was directed by Albert Parker and photographed by J. Roy Hunt.

Hugo Ballin was especially engaged to design some of the settings, which are considered among the most remarkable filmed.

CO MANY alleged realistic scenes which have supposedly resulted in personal injury to motion picture artists have been depicted and reported by press seents that when a genuine accident occurs in a studio people are led to believe that it is merely an effort on the part of an ambitious publicity man to "grab off" some space in a newspaner.

Two motion picture players were ac Two motion picture players were actually hurt during the filming of "The Inside of the Cup," which will have its first local showing Monday at the Palace. The actors were Richard Carlyle and David Torrence, both of whom play important roles in this Paramount picturization of Winston Churchill's novel.

THE girl who was almost fright-THE girl who was almost frightened out of motion pictures by her ewn looks," aptly describe Betty Francisco, former Follies beauty, now playing an important role in "Midsummer Madness," the Paramount picture playing its second week at the Arcadia.

Blonde Betty has been in pictures only a short time, but she has been on the stage ever since she was a child.
She and her older sister, Marguerite, always had been posnessed of a desire to act before the footlight. They tried to actisfy their ambitions by appearing in school plays and home talent productions, and when Betty was nine their opportunity came.

They were living in Little Rock,

opportunity came.

They were living in Little Rock, Ark, and one week the manager of the Majestic Theatre was short an act. Betty and Marguerite were given two hours notice to appear in the act they had been putting on at amateur affairs. They were the hit of the show and from that on were in theatricals, first in vaudeville and then in musical comedy.

CHARACTERIZATION unique in the A history of both stage and screen is the role of a dumb paralytic, enacted by Marc MacDermott during the last by Marc MacDermott during the last act of "While New York Sleeps," a vivid screen melodrama, which enters upon its second week at the Victoria on Monday. This picture is regarded by many critics as the most sensational of its kind ever made. Owing to the nature of his role in the episode referred to, Mr. MacDermott is compelled to carry on his own part of the conversation and to register the many emotions his part requires solely through the inecium of his eyes.

OBSERVATION of the laws and fundamental conventionalities of society, while considered by those who lead the Bohemian life to be a useless code followed only by the unenlightened, is nevertheless the only course to pursue
