MITCHELL DOESN'T MIND LOSING TO BENNY LEONARD-SEE HOW RICHIE IS WITH THAT $20,000

"COME ON AN' FIGHT," GASPS BENNY, SAVING HIS TITLE AND BREATH TO LATER STOP STURDY MITCHELL

By ROBERT W. MAXWELL Sports Editor Evening Public Ledger

New York, Jan. 15.

CHAMPIONSHIPS have been won by hefty wallops to vulnerable spots on and about the chin and body. others have changed hands on a referee's decision, but it is seldem that a championship, lottering and reeling and about to fall into the hands of another, is saved by the power of speech, which is stang for the gift of gab.

Last night, before a packed arean in Madison Senare Garden, Benny Leonard talked Richie Mitchell out of the lightweight championship of the world. He made a speech which had no continuity : short, ungrammatical sentences were used, and Mitchell, instead of tearing in and trying to land a finishing punch, stood still and listened,

Leonard, who had been knocked down for a count of nine, was able to weather the storm until the bell clanged. It was in the first round, Benny won in the sixth, when Referee Haukop stopped the battle to save the western boy from further punishment. The champion won by a technical knockout. he never would have had a chance had he not used his active brain in the first. It was quick thinking—some-thing which characterizes the work of a titleholder.

It was one of the most thrilling and sensational bouts seen here or any place else in many a day. Leonard did not have an easy time of it. Its was in danger until the sixth round started and then the tide torned. The crowd was in an uprose from the start and received full value for the $170,000 or more which flowed into the box office for the triple benefit-Leonard, Mitchell and devastated France.

It must have been a relief to Leonard when the bout ended after one minute and fifty-five seconds of the sixth The champion jumped at his opponent and landed a right flush on the jaw.

Mitchell dropped for the count of nine. Benny jabbed to the face and body and followed with another right to the jaw, which sont Richle realing into a neutral corner. Another right book to the head dropped Mitchell again. but he came up for more punishment.

Mitchell was a pitiable sight. His right eye was closed, his face was strenked with blood and his knees were trembling. Huddlind in the corner, held up by the ropes on either sile, he covered his face as Leonard rained volley of lefts and rights to the head and body. Richle started to fall and reached out to grab the ropes with his right band.

Richie fell, Referre Haultop started to count and at the count of four he tried to urise. His knows gave way under him and he fell back again. By what looked like a superbuman effort he was on his feet before the ten seconds were tolled off, but stood against the ropes in a belpless condition.

They was a look of headblermont on his face as he stood there swaying, with his arms daugling at his sides First Lionard thought it was a trick and stepped back Then he walked in, calmly measured his man for the final blow, only to have the referee jump between them, wave him away and lead Mitchell to his corner.

WAS a fitting ending for the battle. Mitchell another funch might have injured him seriously.

Loser Put Up Great Battle

MITCHELL put up a great battle. He surprised every one, and for a time looked like a certain win ner. In the first, when he was talked out of what looked like a knockout, he missed the title by one second. the second he had the champion webbly, and in the third Leonard would have fallen to the floor had he not grabbed Mitchell to hold himself up.

It is an unusual sight to see Leonard on the fle taking the count and shaking his head to clear his befuddled brein, but that is what happened last night. And the knockdown came when least expected-in fact when it looked as if the battle was over, with Mitchell on his back taking the final count.

Funny how one wallop will change the complexion of Benny started in full of confidence, while Mitchell a fight ! was visibly nervous. Itle right glove covered his jaw and the started out to put up a purely defensive battle. He closely watched Benny's right hand, but neglected to pay attention to the left. The champion had a kick in either band and proved it.

After feinting a couple of seconds Leonard bluffed I with his right and suddenly hooked his left to the jaw. He left shot out like a rapier and landed flush on Benny's nose. Then the champion began to talk. "Come on an' fight," he gasped, as he motioned Richie to gome to him with his hands, "Let's make this continued, as he backed away, with Mitchell good." h pursuing him. "Heard you had a wicked wallop. Let's we what you got. Come on an' fight and quit stalling. If you don't you'll go down again. What's the matter?' Mitchell listened to every word and by that time Benny had recovered enough to do some jabbing, execute some footwork, clinch and last the round.

No wonder the spectators were in a frenzy. First, Mitchell went down three times and looked like a certain loser, when he suddenly turned the battle in his favor and had the coveted championship almost in his grasp. It certainly looked bad for Leonard.

Benny still was groggy when the second round began, but kept up a constant flow of chatter. Richie's right was almost closed and he kept his right glove covering his jaw. He was taking no chances. Benny jabbed feebly to the injured eve and then attempted a left hook to the head. Mitchell stepped in and shot a hard right to the jaw which staggered the champion. Once more it looked as if the title was about to change hands, but Leonard clinched and wrestled until his head cleared, Benny was careful after this. He resorted to clever footwork to avoid the rushes of his foe and got away with it. His defense was superb and did not open up until just before the bell. Then he landed a right and left to Mitchell's head.

At this time the crowd was shouting itself hoarse. Mitchell was getting better and Leonard still was in bad shape

Mitchell's dumaged eve and his bruised face did not esent a pretty picture when the third round began, but he carried himself like a champion. There was an air of supreme confidence in every move and he started out as if were fighting a preliminary set-up. He evidently had forgotten the three knock-downs in the first, but remembered the fragile jaw which stopped hefty wallops in the first and second. Benny tried to be cautious, but his full strength had not yet been restored.

Benny sent a left book to the head and once more Mitchell countered with a right. This time the champion almost went the voyage. The blow struck him coming down, that is, it was a sort of an overhead hook. Had it struck the chin there would have been another champion However, the blow was high, landing on the today . check bone.

EONARD'S knew sugard, there was a glassy Le stare in his even as he nitched forward. Mitchell reas in front of him traing to hit him again and Benny grabbed him. He held on until separated by the referee, and then sourced to use his left to keep Richie away. He was successful in this and at the end of the round was in fair shape.

• It Was a Narrow Escape

THIAT was a narrow escape for the champion, and in I the fourth, heeding the advice of Billy Gibson, changed his style of battle. No longer did he try for a knockout. He was careful and clever.

Mitchell's eye was getting worse and he pecked at that injured optic. Richie's lightning left kept pumping away at Benny's face and the battle was fought at long range. Once both tried right swings at the same time and both missed. Mitchell also missed several wicked rights aimed at the jaw.

Leonard started to win the battle in the fifth. He kept jabbing Richie's injured eye and blocked every lead made by the westerner. The champion had fully recov-ered and was boxing in his oldtime form. Mitchell was getting weak from his exertions, but Benny did not take advantage of it. He had respect for the western boy's right. Mitchell landed a straight left which sent Leohard's head back just as the gong sounded.

Then came the sixth. Leonard jumped out of his orner and like a whirlwind carried the fight to Mitchell. Richie could not block the blows and went down. After rising he went down again, and before he could recover the third wallon went home Mitchell was beaten. He gave everything he had and fought as long as he was able. He could see with only one eye, his face was bruised and battered, his body racked with pain, but he was game to the end. He was on his feet when the battle ended. Only a game guy could do that.
