SAILORS IN CRASH, DRUNK, IS CHARGE

Two Service Men and Chauffeur Held After Machine Hits Trolley Car

TRIED TO "BUCK TRAFFIC"

Two sailors and a civilian, much worse for violation of the prohibition amendment, according to the police, were injured last night at Eleventh and Winter streets when their motor car crashed into a trolley.

The smash-up made a wreck of the motor car and badly cut and bruised the three occupants—Robert Hannan and R. F. Keleher, both twenty years old, sailors at League Island, and Edward Flood, a civilian chauffeur at ward 33, United States Naval Hospital at the navy yard.

The two seamen were given leave of absence last night and decided they would seek a motor to really see the city, so commandeered the naval machine and enlisted the services of its chauffeur.

They were seen driving south on Eleventh street by Thomas Paxton, a motorist of an Eleventh street car, the machine careening madly from side to side and bucking the traffic, as it ran north on that street.

Fearing an accident, Paxton stopped his car about thirty feet from the street and thought the drivers of the automobile would certainly see it and avoid a collision. But not so; the party was not bothering to look at little things like trolleys; they struck it head on.

The three were taken to the Hahnemann Hospital and treated for lacerations and intoxication. Flood was arrested by police of the Eleventh and Winter streets station for driving when in an intoxicated condition and the two sailors for being drunk and disorderly.

At a hearing this morning before Magistrate Trella, Flood was held in $500 bail for court and the sailors were discharged.
