

HARDING SERENE ON FLORIDA TRIP

Worked Hard While at Marion and Now Is Ready for Complete Rest

REPORTERS IRRITATE HIM

By the Associated Press

On Board President-elect Harding's train, Jan. 21.—With his troubles packed in a kit bag that he intends to keep tightly locked for at least two weeks, President-elect Harding turned his thoughts to golf strokes and fishing rods today as he surveyed southward for a vacation in Florida.

The association of nations, tax reforms, the cabinet and all other topics that are busy in his mind during the last six weeks in Marion are to be put as far away from his mind as possible until he has had a good rest. His Marion conference frequently kept him active from early morning until late at night, and the strain and lack of exercise have told materially on his physical condition.

Not once since his return from Panama early in December has he been able to visit his favorite playground, the golf links. Walking has been his only recreation, and he has found little time even for that.

A fishing trip down the eastern shore of Florida is to occupy the first two weeks of his stay in the South. It is his hope to be completely isolated from observation during the period, though he may venture forth once or twice to Earle in February. He will take up his residence at St. Augustine Hotel, where he will remain until just before his inauguration.

Mr. Harding's private car, which left Marion at midnight, went southward today attached to regular passenger trains, and was to pass through Chattanooga late in the afternoon and reach Atlanta during the evening. He will arrive at St. Augustine tomorrow.

Two who have been his companions on all the trips since his nomination were not included in the party aboard the private car. They are Walter Dill Scott, president of Northwestern University, and noted as a psychologist, last night gave out a written statement on his return from a trip to Marion to Senator Harding about helping to open the Joseph Medill School of Journalism, saying that he "had found the President-elect a vigorous man, with a firm handshake, resonant voice and clear eye."

The statement added: "I found an optimistic man in Mr. Harding when he assumed the part of a newspaper editor and a champion of ethical and religious leadership. He knew that I sought no political position and that I had sought his advice on education in Journalism. In making an appeal he responded in the neighborly way that has so universally characterized his actions and endeared him to American people."

"Mr. Harding, as President-elect, when surrounded by reporters and politicians, is quite unlike Mr. Harding the editor and editor. For months he has been hounded by reporters seeking a sensational story and by politicians seeking favors. It is not strange that his delicate sensibilities have become sensitive. Every approach of a reporter or politician has become to him like a blow to an open wound. His whole being assumes an attitude of defense. Fortunately his sturdy constitution has not broken, and it is reasonably certain that the irritability and the sensitiveness of his nervous system will disappear before he emerges from the Indian river region."

"I was so fascinated by his reminiscences and by his enthusiasm for the cause of journalism that I failed to make adequate mental notes of all that Mr. Harding said, but the following sentences found place in my memory: "The American press has not lived up to its responsibilities in holding the thought of the people. It has limited itself too much to dispensing sensational news and making money. It has been influenced more by commercial than by ethical standards. It is very important that all available agencies should combine to elevate not only the ideal, but also the practice of the American press."

Washington, Jan. 21.—Staggering burdens of taxation resulting from the world war have caused the peoples of all nations to favor a world agreement on disarmament, Henry White, former ambassador to France and a member of the American peace commission to Paris, declared today before the House naval affairs committee.

"I think the world is crying for some agreement," said Mr. White, "but I do not favor the United States being the only nation to disarm."

The United States, he added, should take the initiative in the disarmament movement in a state of chaos over the world in this country. Any gathering looking to general disarmament should include France and Italy as well as the United States, Great Britain and Japan, the former ambassador said, but discussion looking to a reduction of naval building only should be limited, for present at least, to Great Britain, Japan and the United States.

White's "United States" was not "United States" in the sense of a nation, but in the sense of a political party. He is a Democrat, and he is not a statesman, but a politician, he said.

Mr. White said that he is not a statesman, but a politician, he said. He is not a statesman, but a politician, he said. He is not a statesman, but a politician, he said.

DENIES MONOPOLY IN SOFT COAL FIELD

Three Largest Companies Produce Less Than 10 P. C. of Output, Producers Claim

By the Associated Press

Washington, Jan. 21.—"Bituminous coal production is free from anything approaching control or potential control by any group," Ralph Crews, attorney for the Consolidation Coal Co., testified today before a Senate committee, in opposing the Calder bill to regulate the industry.

The three largest producers, of which the Consolidation is one, Mr. Crews said, control together "less than 10 per cent of the yearly output."

High prices for coal last year, he said, were due almost entirely to transportation difficulties.

A general discussion of prices followed and the witness said that "out of all these conditions there have undoubtedly grown some abuses in the coal business and these I am not here to defend."

"However," he continued, "the most important thing for us to do is to get back to a sane consideration of these things from a pre-war state of mind, and look for remedies that will be effective in normal times."

Special instances of the "excessive" cost of coal at the mine and a charge that so-called co-operation between a New York coal association and the agent of the Department of Justice had been used for the benefit of the coal association members, was introduced yesterday by A. W. Riley, special assistant to the attorney general.

Mr. Riley testified that three anthracite coal companies, only one of which, Madras Hill & Co., of Philadelphia, he called by name—has charged from $14 to $15 a ton for anthracite at the mine in the latter part of last fall, when the market was depressed and both at their height. He amplified his statement in regard to the operations of Madras, Hill & Co. by testifying that his investigation disclosed that company charged for the same coal at the same time $9 a ton in one case and $14 a ton in another.
