

TODAY'S MYSTERY STORY

By PHILIP FRANCIS NOWLAN

Saturday's Mystery Solution

IN THE case of "The Hollow Scarab," the thing that convinced Harvey Hunt of the innocence of Randall was the very fact that he had reported the theft of the scarab-stipkin in which the smuggled diamond was concealed.

going to spend the night with a school chum or something like that. It'll make a much better movie plot than the sob story you've just doped out, and it'll have the advantage of being the truth. I'll go further and suggest that when you find those parents, you examine their spoiled daughter's desk for a sample of handwriting similar to this, and when you find it, arrest the writer, either as the murderer or an accessory.

DREAMLAND ADVENTURES

Judge Owl's Busy Day

By DADDY

JUDGE OWL was in a fight with the law today. He sat in his court, but he was not in the mood to hear any more cases. He had a headache, and he was tired. He had been up all night, and he was not in the mood to hear any more cases.

say something pleasant, even though the wind was howling outside, swirling the snow into huge drifts.

The other owl said never a word. Now that seemed very strange to Judge Owl, but it really wasn't strange at all. The other owl was just a stuffed owl that had stood on the perch above the door for years and years.

Blue Jay, when the other owl didn't speak or stir, saw that it wasn't a live animal at all. He bit the stuffed owl on the neck and it fell over.
