U. S. COURT ORDERS WHISKY TO SEWERS

"Wet" Evidence Which Has Resulted in Convictions to Be Destroyed

VALUED AT THOUSANDS

District Court Judges Dickinson and Thompson today ordered thousands of dollars' worth of contraband liquor here to be turned over to the United States marshal to be destroyed.

The contraband liquor, seized wet goods, which include five hot-water bottles, suitcases, handbags and numerous types of cans, also will be destroyed on the spot, with Deputy Marshals Kelly and McCreary officiating.

The goods involved constitute by far the largest stock consigned to destruction at any one time here. Strict orders are out that every bit of the evidence shall be accounted for to the courts.

This final order brought gloom to the hearts of many of the intimate friends of the consignor, who hoped that maybe some of the liquor could be "removed" other than by dumping it down a sewer.

The contraband liquor includes fourteen quarts of assorted wines and forty-seven quarts of a well-known brand of whisky seized by agents at the saloon of Mrs. Annie C. Gillespie, Fifth and Race streets. Mrs. Gillespie was fined $1500 by the court.

NO "PUSSYFOOTING" IN BERGDOLL PROBE

Congressman Kahn Expects to Uncover "Scandal of National Proportions"

SEEK "MYSTERIOUS PERSON"

"A national scandal of nasty proportions" is what Julius Kahn, representative from California, and chairman of the House military affairs committee, expects to uncover in his investigation of the Bergdoll case.

Mr. Kahn, seen in his office at Washington, not only pledged himself again to a thorough investigation of the escape from the Philadelphia slacker, but said he had taken the first definite steps to get the investigation moving.

Yesterday afternoon was spent by Mr. Kahn scurrying about departments covered in any way with the case, and getting a promise from each that they would furnish complete files of facts they know about Bergdoll to the military affairs committee.

Mr. Kahn believes there is a "mysterious person" or more than one hidden somewhere in the Bergdoll hideout.

"No pussyfooting, no covering up, no quarter anywhere until we get down to brass tacks," is Mr. Kahn's pledge. He says the committee should be ready to receive the examination of documents and witnesses by next week.

I agree with those who think we shall root up a national scandal of nasty proportions," said Mr. Kahn. "But I am mainly interested in showing whether there is one law in America for the rich and another for the poor."

Charles P. McAvoy, United States attorney here, will be one of the witnesses, it is believed, who will be called for the military affairs committee.

German Fawn on Slacker

Meanwhile, news continues to come from Germany concerning Grover, who with Eugene "Doc" Sticker, a native German and Bergdoll's chauffeur companion and friend, is living in the town of Eberbach.

WRECKED SUB, L-1, NEARER SALVAGING

Navy Craft Dragged 50 Yards Into Shoal at Lewes and May Be Brought Here

NOW IN 12 FEET OF WATER

The wrecked United States submarine L-1, grounded off Lewes, Del., has been floated and dragged fifty yards shoreward into a twelve-foot shoal.

This information was telephoned today to the commandant of the Philadelphia Navy Yard by Lieutenant Commander Hobbes Gilson, in charge of the salvaging of the submarine which was rammed last Wednesday by the pilot boat Philadelphia.

Salvage crews worked all night on the tug Kalina and Modoc, pumping water from the after-hold. When the submarine was well pumped out and still refused to float, lines were attached to her and she was dragged free of the mud, with which her propeller and other after-ear had become fouled.

Dragged to the shoal from sixteen feet of water, the L-1 is now in a better position to be salvaged, and there is a possibility that a start may be made with her toward the navy yard today.

Pumps will be kept working while the trip is under way.

Members of the crew of the Philadelphia, in affidavits, blame the crew of the submarine for the collision.

Statements made in affidavit form will be represented by the Pilot's Association of Philadelphia at the inquiry which will resume early next week.

FAMINE! AMERICA knows what it would mean to the country beyond the Rockies if for two years no rain fell in the fertile valleys, no snow drifted deep in the mountain passes. Above, day after day, a hot sky, cloudless, lifeless, save for the circling buzzards, dust clouds whirling across the gaunt plains and dancing along the dry water courses; seed lying dead in the baked ground; trees bleaching gray; bones of uncounted cattle whitening around water holes or sticking grotesquely through taut and rotting hides—that would be the Great West if the rains and snows failed it utterly. Unless help came from across the mountains the people would die—slowly, dreadfully, like beasts, stripping the bark from the trees and tearing up the dried grass roots. Conditions like these prevail in China today.
