

JOB HUNTERS' TIDE ENGULFS HARDING

Office-seekers and Hobbyriders Threaten to Deluge President-Elect

"DESPERATE" ALL ON HAND

By the Associated Press
St. Augustine, Fla., Feb. 11.—The quadrantal tidal wave of office seekers and hobbyriders that always engulfs a President-elect on the eve of his inauguration is rising steadily about Warren G. Harding here today. The candidates are being driven away from Marion by the prospect of "best minds" and then held at bay for three weeks while Mr. Harding is on vacation. The rush of the hobbyriders and the office-seekers now to assume the proportions of a deluge. Its force is not softened by the circumstance that the plums of patronage for eight years.

With just three weeks remaining before the advent of the new administration, more than 100,000 office-seekers are looking for jobs. Mr. Harding's appointment list has been so long that it has been necessary to spread it out to dry by his secretaries, has assumed large proportions. Of course many of those who have been summoned for consultation on various positions are not coming. Mr. Harding's appointment list has been so long that it has been necessary to spread it out to dry by his secretaries, has assumed large proportions. Of course many of those who have been summoned for consultation on various positions are not coming.

Despite the influx of visitors, however, Mr. Harding expects to keep a portion of each day for work of his own choosing. He is expected to be in the city on the afternoon of the inauguration. Charles, S. C., Feb. 11.—(By A. P.)—Mrs. Warren G. Harding and Dr. Charles E. Sawyer, the Harding family physician, passed through here today on their way to St. Augustine from Washington. A detailed baggage car delayed their train here an hour and a half.

BANDIT MURDERER HANGED

In His Last Hours Declared That Capital Punishment Was Wrong
Chicago, Feb. 11.—(By A. P.)—Edward Brislane was hanged in the county jail here at 9:10 a. m. for the murder of William Miller, manager of a motion picture theatre. Mills was killed in a hold-up of the box office of the theatre.

In his last hours in the death cell declared that capital punishment was wrong and should be abolished. News of Governor Small's refusal to grant a reprieve was given him last night, and for the first time he showed signs of a breakdown, refusing to touch an elaborate chicken dinner. When a visit from his sweethearts interrupted his preparation of a long article on capital punishment, he dried her tears and assured her he would be received, not leaving until after she had gone that his last hope of evading the gallows was already gone.

YOUNG CELLIST PLAYS

Romeo Cella Gives Recital in Witherspoon Hall With Good Impression
Romeo Cella, a young cellist of this city and a brother of Theodore Cella, for some years harpist of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and later first harpist of the National (Hoban) Orchestra of New York, gave a recital in Witherspoon Hall last evening under the auspices of the University Extension Society. There was an audience of fair size present, which acclaimed the work of the soloist and his assistants generously.

Mr. Cella played three times, the first time giving the Andante Religioso by Becker, a short number by David Popper and the popular scherzo of Van Goens. The second appearance was the chief number of the program, the cello concerto of Saint-Saens and the third a miscellaneous group. He showed about the same characteristics in all the compositions. His technique is generally good, although the octave work in the concluding measures of the concerto was not perfect; but the left-hand technique is better than the bow technique. His tone is of agreeable quality, but is not so powerful as is necessary for certain phases of concert work.

This was especially noticeable in the Van Goens scherzo, in parts of which it was difficult to hear the solo instrument, although it must be admitted that the accompaniment of Mr. Cella was perhaps indirectly strong for a feathery movement like this scherzo. Mr. Cella showed excellent musical taste in all his solos, and with more experience will make a fine concert cellist.

He was to have been assisted by his brother Theodore, but the latter was taken ill and was unable to appear. His place was splendidly filled at a moment's notice by Lewis James Howell, who sang with all his customary artistry and scored his usual success. Mr. Howell sang Haydn's "She Never Told Her Love" and by request the aria "Largo al Factotum" from "The Barber of Seville," both being received with great applause. On his second appearance Mr. Howell sang Homer's "Enchiridion" and recited "How Beautiful Were Once the Roses" to Arensky's music. Arthur Hice, who played Mr. Cella's accompaniments, also appeared as piano soloist in the C sharp minor Polonaise of Chopin.

29 DIE AS TORNADO DESTROYS VILLAGE

Property Damage Estimated at $600,000—75 Negro Houses Were Blown Down

5-MILE LANE DEVASTATED

By the Associated Press
Ocoee, Ga., Feb. 11.—Another search for dead and injured and an inventory of property loss in yesterday's tornado was in progress here today. It was definitely established that one white person, Beunie Franklin Hill, seventy-two years old, and twenty-eight Negroes lost their lives and forty-four people were injured.

The property loss is estimated to be at least $600,000. Seventy-five Negro houses were destroyed. The region visited by the tornado was completely devastated. It is an area nearly five miles long and half a mile wide, stretching from Gardner almost to Toombsboro.

The chief property damage occurred at the plant of the Cleveland-Ocoee Lumber Co., where most of the village large part of the plant was destroyed and millions of feet of lumber scattered for hundreds of yards in every direction. The wind played many freaks. A school building, in which there were eighty children, was destroyed, but all of the pupils escaped with no more injury than bruises. Bodies of some of the air for great distances and badly mangled.

Scores of houses were razed and giant trees were twisted off and boards and other objects were blown about as if shot from a gun. Most of the bodies were found in an open field, where they had been carried by some freak job which of the wind. Cars were blown from the railway tracks and fowls stripped clear of their feathers.

Torrential downpours of rain accompanied the wind and all rivers and streams were reported today at flood, and still rising.

RAIL BROTHERHOOD MEN MAP REBUTTAL

Committee Working on Reply to Specific Objections of Carriers

WILL PRESENT IT TO BOARD

By the Associated Press
Chicago, Feb. 11.—Labor officials, representing fifteen railroad brotherhoods, today mapped out their campaign of rebuttal to the railway executives' plea for abrogation of national agreements before the United States railroad labor board. No session of the board was held today, pending notification from the unions as to when they will be ready to proceed with the case.

Yesterday's ruling of the board denying the railroads' request, made through W. W. Atterbury, of the Pennsylvania Railroad, for immediate abrogation of the agreements, brought the case back to its regular schedule. Frank P. Walsh, retained as counsel for the railroads, departed last night for New York after hearing a decision favorable to the unions before he had introduced his arguments. It was said in labor circles that he probably would return next week.

Meanwhile a committee of eighteen brotherhood officers is working on a reply to the specific objections to various rules as presented by the carriers' committee during the last five weeks. B. M. Jewell, chairman of the employers' committee, declared yesterday before the board that for ten days he had been "up in an airship" and had devoted all his time and that of the committee to preparation of a reply to the Atterbury request.

He said it would be necessary to make a new survey of the situation before he could advise the board when he would be ready to proceed with the case. This he promised to do today and he said he expected to notify the board tomorrow of the date when his committee would have its evidence ready. When the board adjourned yesterday it set Monday as the tentative date for reconvening.

Penn Club Elects Officers
