

TWO LIVES ENDED TO MUSICAL FINALE

Harpist Collapses Before He Can Answer Plaudits of Audience

SUCCUMBS AT PHONOGRAPH

EMILIO BODE BERNARD J. MALLON

Death beat time to the strains of music in Philadelphia yesterday. Emilio Bode, a harpist, was stricken in the midst of an encore at a recital before the Bohemian Club and fell to the edge of the platform. A few hours earlier a screeching phonograph needle had warned the mother of Bernard J. Mallon, manager of a chain store, that he was dead.

Sounds Worse Than It Is A W. J. Jones, 1704 Fairmount avenue, a business cleaner employed by a woman, fell from a scaffold at the home of Mrs. Jones last night. He was treated at the Hahnemann Hospital, where his injuries are described as a fractured left forearm and an injured, but not broken, right arm. A formidable swelling, it means he is in pain and is a serious case.

DR. CONWELL WON'T RETIRE

Pastor Denies Rumor After Tramp to Temple in Snow

Some one started a rumor yesterday that the Rev. Dr. Russell H. Conwell intended to retire as pastor of Grace Baptist Church.

Dr. Conwell repudiated the rumor, as he has demonstrated scores of similar ones to be false and without foundation, by tramping through the snow from his home to the Baptist Temple and directing services as usual.

"Retire? Why didn't I make public announcement within the last few days that I had indefinitely postponed my funeral? Postponed it until I'm ninety years old! Nothing to it, son; nothing to it," was his answer to an inquiry as to whether any foundation existed for the latest rumor.

At least once each year since 1890 some one has said Dr. Conwell was ready to "quit." The 1921 rumor is like the other twenty. Next!

VETERAN AGAIN INJURED

Slips on Ice and Hurts Foot Shattered at Chateau Thierry

Ralph Shortle, a veteran of the world war, who had his foot badly shattered at Chateau Thierry and later was placed at the military hospital in Washington for treatment, slipped on the ice early this morning and again is back in a hospital having the foot treated.

Shortle, who is thirty years old, was returning to his home at 3116 North Twenty-eighth street, when he slipped near Frederick and Emlen streets. He was taken to the Samaritan Hospital. Last year a delicate operation was performed upon his foot. Physicians believe Shortle will not lose the use of the foot.

H. B. ROSENGARTEN DIES

Drug Manufacturer Was Stricken on Eighty-fourth Birthday

Funeral services for H. B. Rosengarten, who was stricken Wednesday, his eighty-fourth birthday, with paralysis, will be held at his residence, 2225 South Seventeenth street. He will be buried in the private family plot in Laurel Hill Cemetery. Grief over the death of his brother, Joseph G. Rosengarten, is believed to have brought on his death Saturday.

Mr. Rosengarten was connected for more than sixty years with the firm of Powers, Weightman, Rosengarten Co. and is said to have accumulated several millions. He devoted his time to business while he allowed his brother to interest himself almost wholly in civic, philanthropic and literary pursuits. A strong bond existed between them.

Mr. Rosengarten was born in Philadelphia February 10, 1837, a son of George D. and Elizabeth Rosengarten. He was educated in private schools here and entered business with his father, Rosengarten & Son, which was consolidated with Powers & Weightman, to form the present company. Mr. Rosengarten's widow was Miss Clara J. Knorr, whom he married in 1868. There are four sons and two daughters, ten grandchildren and two great-grandchildren. The sons are George D., Adolph G., Frederic and Joseph G. Rosengarten and the daughters are Mrs. W. W. Atterbury and Mrs. Lewis Nelson. There are also a sister and a brother, Miss Fanny Rosengarten and Frank H. Rosengarten. The four sons of Mr. Rosengarten were associated with him in business. He was a director of the Northern Trust Co. and a member of the National Chemical Society.
