The number of persons affected by the famine has been variously estimated at from 5,000,000 to 21,000,000, the latter being the number given by the United International committee.

It is conceded, however, that the first estimates were exaggerated owing to the lack of an accurate census and the spotty character of the famine, which now affects neighboring towns with different degrees of severity, due to improvement brought about by the late crops.
