In accounting for the break in the foreign exchange market, the obvious fact that the market has been advancing steadily for some time, reaching new high records, and was likely to be subject to realizing by profit-taking speculators, was ignored. Our old-established industries, under the beneficent influence of protection, have been developed to the point where they can easily supply the entire requirements of the home market. Not one of them that needs protective duties to equalize differences in production costs here and abroad can, for obvious reasons, sell its products in foreign markets in competition with Surpeans. Therefore every yard or pound of goods imported means a corresponding stoppage of such home machinery and loss of employment to some home workman.

Science and the Bible To the Editor of the Evening Public Ledger. Sir-The remarks of "G. J." as to the Bible and science are fine, but need some ad-dition. Some science is truth-not all. One only needs to look back a very few years to only needs to look back a very few years to see many things accepted as fact and truth but now discarded, as "G. J." rightly says. The error too many people make is that they assume "a very probable theory" to be cor-rect and try to fit the Bible to it. Our col-leges are much to blame for stressing such theories as facts.

shown at least one and given some informa-tion as to how it operated will be time enough to accept it.

Another cause of supposed difference be-tween the libble and what we understand to be truth as seen in nature is that we do not teach the libble properly. Although given citen in purable and often in very condensed form it is understandable by those who have form, it is understandable by those who have form, it is understandable by those who have eyes to see and ears to hear. The account of the creation is perfectly understandable and agrees with our accepted geologic story if we remember that Moses almost surely was given the facts by means of a vision and that he wrote those facts as an observer on the surface of the then forming earth would have written them. Any one deplays the account should tall my box doubling the account should tell us how Moses learned the facts if not this way. This chapter seems to be a clearly revealed truth. Any teacher who teaches otherwise should wake up.

A further rational explanation is that men were created long before Adam and that Adam was the first man in the same sense that Christ was the second man accounts of two creations are not confused carratives of the same thing. Many things in the Bible bears out this, and Winchell and other leading geologists have expressed themselves as holding to the bellet in pre-

AMERICA'S ANSWER
By R. W. Idilard.
Rest ye in peace, ye Finnders dead,
The fight that ye so gravely led We've taken up. And we will keep
True faith with you who lie asjeep
With each a cross to mark his bed,
And popples blowing overhead.
Where once his own life blood ran red.
So let your rest be sweet and deep
In Flanders fields. Fear not that ye have died for naught The torch ye threw to us we caught. The torch ye threw to us we caught. Ten million hands will hold it high. And freedom's light shall never die. We've learned the lesson that se taught in Flanders fields.
