

MRS. COOLIDGE NOT 'AFRAID' OF CAPITAL

Wife of Vice President-Elect Says She Will Just Go Along in New Life

EXPECT TO BREAK 'RULES'

Unwaxed and unruined at the prospect of becoming the Second Lady of the Land, Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, wife of the Vice President-elect, is preparing for the move to Washington today. She took along her sense of humor from Boston yesterday when she accompanied her husband to Washington, and said that it was in perfect working order.

Mrs. Coolidge was accompanied by Mrs. J. W. Stearns, whose husband is Mr. Coolidge's closest friend and adviser. She left her sons, Calvin, Jr., and John, at the school in Northampton, Mass., where they are preparing to enter college.

Her altogether genial laugh peered through the car, and women in pink chairs looked up from books or candies or magazines to smile with and at the wife of the next Vice President.

Asks to Break Social Rules "But how in the world are you ever going to learn the rules observed in official society?" "As I go along," said she, imperiously, "I suppose I will break most of them at first, but I'll learn."

Has No 'Hobbies' "By the way, Mrs. Coolidge, probably you must follow in the footsteps of every one of the women of our capital. They all have 'hobbies' or 'hobbies'."

writings that describe you and Mr. Coolidge as the epitome of economy lead us to believe you do all your housework and everything. "Oh, that is a mistaken idea," she hastened to correct. "I've always had a servant. I have never learned to cook," she said and laughed.

Not Interested in Clubs "You are not interested in clubs for women or political matters at all?" "No, not in clubs or politics. I'm deeply interested in education, though. I think nothing is of greater importance to the country than education. It is the most serious consequence," she said with vigor.

to the country than education. It is the most serious consequence," she said with vigor. Mrs. Coolidge admitted that she loved Northampton better probably than she could learn to love Washington.

ESSEX

Holds this Double Advantage - Price and Quality

PERFORMANCE and quality establish comparisons. Thus it is natural that men rank the Essex with much costlier cars. But in addition we urge you to consider the Essex price, when you are measuring its ability and endurance against other cars.

It has shown speed up to 74 miles an hour. Its 3037 miles in 50 hours, averaging more than a mile a minute, was never equaled. And think that four separate Essex cars broke the Trans-continental record, which scores of cars had attempted for five years in vain.

In appearance, detail, and reliability as well as price it commands preference of judicious buyers.
