WHAT'S WHAT

In a very young girl, affection may be merely a symptom of dissatisfaction with her "no in."

His usually starts early in his career of amusing himself. He is a young fellow of a fellow...

IT ISN'T the toy that they like now, it is the thought of getting it, and getting another one after that.

They seldom tarry at home in their own nursery—they must be in some one else's nursery being amused.

They weren't taught when they were little, a piece of paper was just a piece of paper to them, and if the "four corners" didn't have anything better than that to play with, they were young to appreciate.

THE BABY WHO CAN PLAY WITH A PIECE OF PAPER

Gets More Joy Out of His Whole Life Than the Child Who Must Be Amused With Expensive Toys—And So Does His Mother

"THERE is not a child in the world," declared a New York welfare worker, "who plays so effectively on a ten-cent piece as a New York kiddie."

At his side is a fuzzy Teddy bear, alone and forgotten. His feet dangle upon a long eared Bunny, and he casts it indifferently to the floor—peering out afterward to see what made the thud.
