IS STILL THE THING

By CORINNE LOWE

There are lots of good fichus, good fichus in the sea (of fashion), and in order to be convinced of it all one needs do is to review some of the charming cettons and linens now being shown. The fact of it is that the fichu is so be-three culprits—but they had fied. Mary was still yelling justily in his ear, and Jasper, after much contriving, managed to get the clothes off the dripping little body and Mary was laid in the crib and told to stay put.

Then he made a wild dash for something to mop up the floor with and embroidered towels and bath mats were all the same to Jasper. A half-hour later things weren't quite so sloppy. In that half hour, outside of Jasper and Mary, it would seem that there was not another soul in the house; but after opening various closest doors and rummaging behind trunks in the attic, Jasper collected the missing trio and then for the next half hour followed a quartet, the like of which Jasper never heard before and sincerely hopes never to hear again. When Nan, radiant from her afternoon's outing, stepped into the living room, a more peaceful-looking husband never breathed and the house was very, very still.

"Where are the children?"
"So early?"
"Yu."

"So early?"
"Yup."
"Yup."
"The kids—" Then Nan listened to the afternoon's performance and in spite of all had hard work to conceal a grin.
"What's worrying me is the thought that I likely got more coid padding in that confounded water. Nan, do you know where we could get a girl?"
"Not right now," answered Nan, demurely. "But I might inquire."
"Do so, then," snapped Jasper. "It'll take some help to bring up those young hyenas—and Lord help the applicant, she'll have some job!"

English Women

In England women are now engaged in every branch of pharmaceutical work. Mies Betty Casement, trained nurse and daughter of an English army officer, has crossed the sea to become doctor, dentist, nurse and general consultant for the settlements that dot sixty miles of the sombre Newfoundland coast. Miss Margaret Bondfield, the new secretary of the British Women Workers' Federation, started her career as a shop apprentice at the age of fourteen. She is an eloquent speaker and an organizing genius.
