

BRITISH NAVY HEAD FOR DISARMAMENT

Baron Lee Declares He Would Welcome Definite Move by United States

"MOST IMPORTANT DUTY"

By the Associated Press
London, March 17.—Baron Lee of Fareham, first lord of the admiralty, discussing naval matters at a meeting of naval architects yesterday referred to the question of disarmament. He said the only question was who would initiate the discussion, but on this point the British Government would not stand on ceremony. The government, he declared, welcomed the hint thrown out by President Harding in his inaugural address and that it would meet with cordial and helpful response here.

"I can only say," Baron Lee added, "that if an invitation comes from Washington I am prepared to put aside any other business in order to take part in a business which there can be nothing more pressing in the affairs of this world."

Baron Lee said he agreed with Mr. Denby, the American secretary of the navy, that Great Britain and America could control the seas.

"But," he added, "the question is whether we have the right of direction with regard to our navies when consulting each other. I think this government has a clear record. In the present estimates we have set an example of reduction and taken risks and are prepared to go far in a mutual agreement."

"It is not enough to talk about blood being thicker than water. What we want is the plain horse sense characteristic of both countries. From my long knowledge of America I have a profound belief in the business of talking and appealing to the square deal. I hold strongly that we are not engaged in a game of bluff, but that we ought to lay all our cards on the table."

"We see the naval committee of the United States Senate laying down the principle that America shall maintain a navy at least equal to that of any other power. That is a claim to equality which this country never has accepted in the past and never would accept save in connection with the great English-speaking nation which sprang from our loins and ever holding a great place in our regard and confidence."

The difference between our formula and America's is too slight to be made the subject of controversy, still less of friction or hostility."

(The foregoing paragraph is a correct quotation given out by Baron Lee today. He says a London dispatch of last night misquoted him as saying: "That is a claim that we should never have expected," etc.)

"If ever a war should occur between us and any of our late allies, it will be the fault of blind or criminal leading, for which our statesmen, whether in London, Washington, Tokio or the capital of any other naval power, would be condemned and execrated in history if they failed to avert such a tragedy."

San Jose, Costa Rica, March 17.—(By A. P.)—Opponents of the Acosta government of Costa Rica are sharply criticizing the administration for terminating hostilities between this country and Panama, following intervention by the United States.

Exciting scenes are occurring in Congress, many members of which are denouncing the government as "favoring Panama and endangering the independence of Costa Rica." The government is endeavoring to calm the storm by conciliatory replies.
