

ARREST 2 IN THEFT OF McFADDEN GEMS

Former Governess and Maid Are Nabbed Here Before Leaving for France

ONE THOUGHT IMPLICATED

A governess and a maid, formerly employed in the home of George H. McFadden, Jr., at Villanova, were arrested in this city last night in connection with the theft of the McFadden jewels, valued at $500,000, last October.

The governess, Madame Jean, 45 years old, was arrested today for her part in the theft in Paris. The maid arrested is Blanche Magnit, thirty-five years old, also of France. They had been in the employ of the McFaddens for two years.

The women were arrested by John O. Tread, Delaware county detective, and Edward H. Brann, a private detective of Lancaster. They were taken to Media and questioned for more than four hours by District Attorney William Taylor.

Following the examination, the district attorney said he had been unable to gain any incriminating admissions from the maid.

"Things were different with Madame Aubert," Mr. Taylor said. "She made several damaging statements and I am convinced she knows a great deal about the robbery. But I have not been able to get any further from her since the robbery. They will be questioned further today. I would call their arrest a lucky catch."

Efforts will be made to obtain samples of the handwriting of the prisoners, and these will be compared with the writing in a number of anonymous letters which figured in the case. The letters were received by William E. Miller, representative of an insurance company.

The writer professed to know all about the jewels and offered to effect the return of the jewels for a sum of money. The letters will be offered at the hearing.

There have been several arrests in connection with the theft of the McFadden jewels on October 10, but the suspects were released.

Warrants on both the governess and maid were arrested outside the charge of grand larceny. The warrants were sworn before Magistrate F. F. Williamson, and the Philadelphia police had not been apprised of the matter until informed by the newspapers.

Detectives had been trailing Madame Aubert for four months. They decided to arrest her when they learned she had applied to the French consul here for a passport to France.

BRYN MAWR AWARD MADE

Miss Eleanor Boswell Wins Coveted European Fellowship

The award of the Bryn Mawr European Fellowship to Miss Eleanor Boswell, of this city, was announced by Miss Carey Thomas, president of Bryn Mawr College, this morning.

The fellowship is the highest award that can be won by an undergraduate student at the college. It was founded in 1880 and provides for one year's study at a foreign university, English or Continental.

Miss Boswell, a graduate of Germantown High School and the Girls' High School, won with an average of 89.80.

Three other awards were announced by President Thomas, the President M. Carey Thomas European Fellowship for students who have completed one year's graduate work at Bryn Mawr and the Mary E. Garrett Fellowship for two years' graduate work. The first was won by Miss Anna Margaret Marie Leach, of Baltimore, Md., and the second by Miss Amy Lawrence Martin, of Chicago.

OPEN TO "UNDESIRABLES"

Repeat of War Laws Believed to Have Lifted Immigration Bars

Washington, March 18.—(By A. P.)—The Departments of State and Labor have asked the Department of Justice to determine whether Congress, in repealing wartime laws, has lifted the bars which prevent the admission of "undesirables" to the United States.

State and labor officials believe that the repeal of the laws which require a passport for entry into the United States, and the repeal of the laws which require a visa for entry into the United States, has lifted the bars which prevent the admission of "undesirables" to the United States.

The repeal of the laws which require a passport for entry into the United States, and the repeal of the laws which require a visa for entry into the United States, has lifted the bars which prevent the admission of "undesirables" to the United States.

The repeal of the laws which require a passport for entry into the United States, and the repeal of the laws which require a visa for entry into the United States, has lifted the bars which prevent the admission of "undesirables" to the United States.

The repeal of the laws which require a passport for entry into the United States, and the repeal of the laws which require a visa for entry into the United States, has lifted the bars which prevent the admission of "undesirables" to the United States.

The repeal of the laws which require a passport for entry into the United States, and the repeal of the laws which require a visa for entry into the United States, has lifted the bars which prevent the admission of "undesirables" to the United States.

The repeal of the laws which require a passport for entry into the United States, and the repeal of the laws which require a visa for entry into the United States, has lifted the bars which prevent the admission of "undesirables" to the United States.

The repeal of the laws which require a passport for entry into the United States, and the repeal of the laws which require a visa for entry into the United States, has lifted the bars which prevent the admission of "undesirables" to the United States.

The repeal of the laws which require a passport for entry into the United States, and the repeal of the laws which require a visa for entry into the United States, has lifted the bars which prevent the admission of "undesirables" to the United States.

The repeal of the laws which require a passport for entry into the United States, and the repeal of the laws which require a visa for entry into the United States, has lifted the bars which prevent the admission of "undesirables" to the United States.

The repeal of the laws which require a passport for entry into the United States, and the repeal of the laws which require a visa for entry into the United States, has lifted the bars which prevent the admission of "undesirables" to the United States.

The repeal of the laws which require a passport for entry into the United States, and the repeal of the laws which require a visa for entry into the United States, has lifted the bars which prevent the admission of "undesirables" to the United States.

The repeal of the laws which require a passport for entry into the United States, and the repeal of the laws which require a visa for entry into the United States, has lifted the bars which prevent the admission of "undesirables" to the United States.

The repeal of the laws which require a passport for entry into the United States, and the repeal of the laws which require a visa for entry into the United States, has lifted the bars which prevent the admission of "undesirables" to the United States.

The repeal of the laws which require a passport for entry into the United States, and the repeal of the laws which require a visa for entry into the United States, has lifted the bars which prevent the admission of "undesirables" to the United States.

The repeal of the laws which require a passport for entry into the United States, and the repeal of the laws which require a visa for entry into the United States, has lifted the bars which prevent the admission of "undesirables" to the United States.

The repeal of the laws which require a passport for entry into the United States, and the repeal of the laws which require a visa for entry into the United States, has lifted the bars which prevent the admission of "undesirables" to the United States.

The repeal of the laws which require a passport for entry into the United States, and the repeal of the laws which require a visa for entry into the United States, has lifted the bars which prevent the admission of "undesirables" to the United States.

The repeal of the laws which require a passport for entry into the United States, and the repeal of the laws which require a visa for entry into the United States, has lifted the bars which prevent the admission of "undesirables" to the United States.

The repeal of the laws which require a passport for entry into the United States, and the repeal of the laws which require a visa for entry into the United States, has lifted the bars which prevent the admission of "undesirables" to the United States.

MACKENZIE, EDITOR AND WRITER, DEAD

Was Accredited War Correspondent on General Pershing's Staff

PRODUCED TWO NOVELS

New York, March 18.—Cameron Mackenzie, magazine publisher and writer, died yesterday, a short time after that vessel left Liverpool for New York, according to a radiogram received by his brother, Dr. George M. Mackenzie, of 220 East Sixty-second street. During the war he was one of the accredited correspondents to the staff of General Pershing representing the London Chronicle.

After the armistice he was a special correspondent of the New York Herald in Warsaw, and for two years was Polish correspondent for the London Morning Post. He had been in London since the war. He was one of the accredited correspondents to the staff of General Pershing representing the London Chronicle.

Mr. Mackenzie was thirty-eight years old. He was born in Wilkes-Barre, Pa., the son of James Cameron Mackenzie, founder of Lawrenceville School, and present head of Mackenzie School, Meadville, Pa. After graduation from Lawrenceville he went to Yale for a year, then entered New York University law school, where he graduated in 1907.

During his law course he was engaged in newspaper work, and at its completion became assistant managing editor of the "Ladies' World."

He went to the magazine editing, and with Frederic L. Collins bought a controlling interest in the magazine. This journal is now the "Ladies' World."

He wrote the magazine's editorial, and spent his spare time writing two novels, "The Man Who Tried to Be It," and "The Man Who Tried to Be It."

His work as war correspondent earned him a reputation as a writer. In 1918 Mr. Mackenzie married Miss Elizabeth McClure, daughter of S. S. McClure, founder of the magazine of the same name. Mrs. Mackenzie and one child are at present in Switzerland.

Mr. Mackenzie was a member of the New York University law school, where he graduated in 1907.

During his law course he was engaged in newspaper work, and at its completion became assistant managing editor of the "Ladies' World."

He went to the magazine editing, and with Frederic L. Collins bought a controlling interest in the magazine. This journal is now the "Ladies' World."

He wrote the magazine's editorial, and spent his spare time writing two novels, "The Man Who Tried to Be It," and "The Man Who Tried to Be It."

His work as war correspondent earned him a reputation as a writer. In 1918 Mr. Mackenzie married Miss Elizabeth McClure, daughter of S. S. McClure, founder of the magazine of the same name. Mrs. Mackenzie and one child are at present in Switzerland.

Mr. Mackenzie was a member of the New York University law school, where he graduated in 1907.

During his law course he was engaged in newspaper work, and at its completion became assistant managing editor of the "Ladies' World."

He went to the magazine editing, and with Frederic L. Collins bought a controlling interest in the magazine. This journal is now the "Ladies' World."

He wrote the magazine's editorial, and spent his spare time writing two novels, "The Man Who Tried to Be It," and "The Man Who Tried to Be It."

His work as war correspondent earned him a reputation as a writer. In 1918 Mr. Mackenzie married Miss Elizabeth McClure, daughter of S. S. McClure, founder of the magazine of the same name. Mrs. Mackenzie and one child are at present in Switzerland.

Mr. Mackenzie was a member of the New York University law school, where he graduated in 1907.

During his law course he was engaged in newspaper work, and at its completion became assistant managing editor of the "Ladies' World."

He went to the magazine editing, and with Frederic L. Collins bought a controlling interest in the magazine. This journal is now the "Ladies' World."

He wrote the magazine's editorial, and spent his spare time writing two novels, "The Man Who Tried to Be It," and "The Man Who Tried to Be It."

His work as war correspondent earned him a reputation as a writer. In 1918 Mr. Mackenzie married Miss Elizabeth McClure, daughter of S. S. McClure, founder of the magazine of the same name. Mrs. Mackenzie and one child are at present in Switzerland.

Mr. Mackenzie was a member of the New York University law school, where he graduated in 1907.

During his law course he was engaged in newspaper work, and at its completion became assistant managing editor of the "Ladies' World."

He went to the magazine editing, and with Frederic L. Collins bought a controlling interest in the magazine. This journal is now the "Ladies' World."

He wrote the magazine's editorial, and spent his spare time writing two novels, "The Man Who Tried to Be It," and "The Man Who Tried to Be It."

His work as war correspondent earned him a reputation as a writer. In 1918 Mr. Mackenzie married Miss Elizabeth McClure, daughter of S. S. McClure, founder of the magazine of the same name. Mrs. Mackenzie and one child are at present in Switzerland.

Mr. Mackenzie was a member of the New York University law school, where he graduated in 1907.

During his law course he was engaged in newspaper work, and at its completion became assistant managing editor of the "Ladies' World."

He went to the magazine editing, and with Frederic L. Collins bought a controlling interest in the magazine. This journal is now the "Ladies' World."

He wrote the magazine's editorial, and spent his spare time writing two novels, "The Man Who Tried to Be It," and "The Man Who Tried to Be It."

His work as war correspondent earned him a reputation as a writer. In 1918 Mr. Mackenzie married Miss Elizabeth McClure, daughter of S. S. McClure, founder of the magazine of the same name. Mrs. Mackenzie and one child are at present in Switzerland.

Mr. Mackenzie was a member of the New York University law school, where he graduated in 1907.

During his law course he was engaged in newspaper work, and at its completion became assistant managing editor of the "Ladies' World."

He went to the magazine editing, and with Frederic L. Collins bought a controlling interest in the magazine. This journal is now the "Ladies' World."

He wrote the magazine's editorial, and spent his spare time writing two novels, "The Man Who Tried to Be It," and "The Man Who Tried to Be It."

His work as war correspondent earned him a reputation as a writer. In 1918 Mr. Mackenzie married Miss Elizabeth McClure, daughter of S. S. McClure, founder of the magazine of the same name. Mrs. Mackenzie and one child are at present in Switzerland.

Mr. Mackenzie was a member of the New York University law school, where he graduated in 1907.

During his law course he was engaged in newspaper work, and at its completion became assistant managing editor of the "Ladies' World."

He went to the magazine editing, and with Frederic L. Collins bought a controlling interest in the magazine. This journal is now the "Ladies' World."

HARDING TO CONFER ON EMBARGO PLEA

Indicates Desire to Consult Cabinet Members Before Acting on Western Appeal

READY TO FRAME TARIFF

By the Associated Press. Washington, March 18.—President Harding had under advisement today an appeal from western senators and representatives that he place an immediate embargo on the importation of a number of farm commodities, including wool, hides, meats and butter, represented as most keenly affected by foreign competition. When the request was made in conference late yesterday, President Harding, after listening to that many producers in those lines, favored rain unless relief was forthcoming, indicating that he desired to confer with certain cabinet members before acting on the appeal. Other products on the proposed embargo list were lemons, cottonseed oil and long staple cotton.

According to his program for rushing through at the special session of Congress an anti-dumping bill, together with an added American valuation measure, the president is expected to act on the embargo bill, the House ways and means committee referred to treasury department officials today its resolution adopted yesterday, which would frame a tariff schedule for its consideration.

With the committee also still holding firmly to the view that a permanent tariff bill should have priority over tax revision on the legislative program, it was intimated by Chairman Cordery that the actual work of writing the tariff measure might be begun today. Meanwhile there had been no intimation as to whether President Harding, who expects to confer in a day with cabinet members of the committee favoring tariff priority, had approved the program agreed upon at the recent conference between Republicans of the committee and the Senate Finance committee.

At the treasury department, although Secretary Mellon publicly has expressed his opinion on the question of priority, officials there, however, have been the formulation of a tax revision policy. A detailed survey of revenue sources and the extent of each might be drawn upon for a federal income tax under way in order to have necessary tax data ready for submission to congressmen in a possible bill they call for.

At the treasury department, although Secretary Mellon publicly has expressed his opinion on the question of priority, officials there, however, have been the formulation of a tax revision policy. A detailed survey of revenue sources and the extent of each might be drawn upon for a federal income tax under way in order to have necessary tax data ready for submission to congressmen in a possible bill they call for.

At the treasury department, although Secretary Mellon publicly has expressed his opinion on the question of priority, officials there, however, have been the formulation of a tax revision policy. A detailed survey of revenue sources and the extent of each might be drawn upon for a federal income tax under way in order to have necessary tax data ready for submission to congressmen in a possible bill they call for.

At the treasury department, although Secretary Mellon publicly has expressed his opinion on the question of priority, officials there, however, have been the formulation of a tax revision policy. A detailed survey of revenue sources and the extent of each might be drawn upon for a federal income tax under way in order to have necessary tax data ready for submission to congressmen in a possible bill they call for.

At the treasury department, although Secretary Mellon publicly has expressed his opinion on the question of priority, officials there, however, have been the formulation of a tax revision policy. A detailed survey of revenue sources and the extent of each might be drawn upon for a federal income tax under way in order to have necessary tax data ready for submission to congressmen in a possible bill they call for.

At the treasury department, although Secretary Mellon publicly has expressed his opinion on the question of priority, officials there, however, have been the formulation of a tax revision policy. A detailed survey of revenue sources and the extent of each might be drawn upon for a federal income tax under way in order to have necessary tax data ready for submission to congressmen in a possible bill they call for.

At the treasury department, although Secretary Mellon publicly has expressed his opinion on the question of priority, officials there, however, have been the formulation of a tax revision policy. A detailed survey of revenue sources and the extent of each might be drawn upon for a federal income tax under way in order to have necessary tax data ready for submission to congressmen in a possible bill they call for.

At the treasury department, although Secretary Mellon publicly has expressed his opinion on the question of priority, officials there, however, have been the formulation of a tax revision policy. A detailed survey of revenue sources and the extent of each might be drawn upon for a federal income tax under way in order to have necessary tax data ready for submission to congressmen in a possible bill they call for.

At the treasury department, although Secretary Mellon publicly has expressed his opinion on the question of priority, officials there, however, have been the formulation of a tax revision policy. A detailed survey of revenue sources and the extent of each might be drawn upon for a federal income tax under way in order to have necessary tax data ready for submission to congressmen in a possible bill they call for.

At the treasury department, although Secretary Mellon publicly has expressed his opinion on the question of priority, officials there, however, have been the formulation of a tax revision policy. A detailed survey of revenue sources and the extent of each might be drawn upon for a federal income tax under way in order to have necessary tax data ready for submission to congressmen in a possible bill they call for.

At the treasury department, although Secretary Mellon publicly has expressed his opinion on the question of priority, officials there, however, have been the formulation of a tax revision policy. A detailed survey of revenue sources and the extent of each might be drawn upon for a federal income tax under way in order to have necessary tax data ready for submission to congressmen in a possible bill they call for.

At the treasury department, although Secretary Mellon publicly has expressed his opinion on the question of priority, officials there, however, have been the formulation of a tax revision policy. A detailed survey of revenue sources and the extent of each might be drawn upon for a federal income tax under way in order to have necessary tax data ready for submission to congressmen in a possible bill they call for.

At the treasury department, although Secretary Mellon publicly has expressed his opinion on the question of priority, officials there, however, have been the formulation of a tax revision policy. A detailed survey of revenue sources and the extent of each might be drawn upon for a federal income tax under way in order to have necessary tax data ready for submission to congressmen in a possible bill they call for.

At the treasury department, although Secretary Mellon publicly has expressed his opinion on the question of priority, officials there, however, have been the formulation of a tax revision policy. A detailed survey of revenue sources and the extent of each might be drawn upon for a federal income tax under way in order to have necessary tax data ready for submission to congressmen in a possible bill they call for.

At the treasury department, although Secretary Mellon publicly has expressed his opinion on the question of priority, officials there, however, have been the formulation of a tax revision policy. A detailed survey of revenue sources and the extent of each might be drawn upon for a federal income tax under way in order to have necessary tax data ready for submission to congressmen in a possible bill they call for.

At the treasury department, although Secretary Mellon publicly has expressed his opinion on the question of priority, officials there, however, have been the formulation of a tax revision policy. A detailed survey of revenue sources and the extent of each might be drawn upon for a federal income tax under way in order to have necessary tax data ready for submission to congressmen in a possible bill they call for.

At the treasury department, although Secretary Mellon publicly has expressed his opinion on the question of priority, officials there, however, have been the formulation of a tax revision policy. A detailed survey of revenue sources and the extent of each might be drawn upon for a federal income tax under way in order to have necessary tax data ready for submission to congressmen in a possible bill they call for.

At the treasury department, although Secretary Mellon publicly has expressed his opinion on the question of priority, officials there, however, have been the formulation of a tax revision policy. A detailed survey of revenue sources and the extent of each might be drawn upon for a federal income tax under way in order to have necessary tax data ready for submission to congressmen in a possible bill they call for.

At the treasury department, although Secretary Mellon publicly has expressed his opinion on the question of priority, officials there, however, have been the formulation of a tax revision policy. A detailed survey of revenue sources and the extent of each might be drawn upon for a federal income tax under way in order to have necessary tax data ready for submission to congressmen in a possible bill they call for.

At the treasury department, although Secretary Mellon publicly has expressed his opinion on the question of priority, officials there, however, have been the formulation of a tax revision policy. A detailed survey of revenue sources and the extent of each might be drawn upon for a federal income tax under way in order to have necessary tax data ready for submission to congressmen in a possible bill they call for.

At the treasury department, although Secretary Mellon publicly has expressed his opinion on the question of priority, officials there, however, have been the formulation of a tax revision policy. A detailed survey of revenue sources and the extent of each might be drawn upon for a federal income tax under way in order to have necessary tax data ready for submission to congressmen in a possible bill they call for.

At the treasury department, although Secretary Mellon publicly has expressed his opinion on the question of priority, officials there, however, have been the formulation of a tax revision policy. A detailed survey of revenue sources and the extent of each might be drawn upon for a federal income tax under way in order to have necessary tax data ready for submission to congressmen in a possible bill they call for.

At the treasury department, although Secretary Mellon publicly has expressed his opinion on the question of priority, officials there, however, have been the formulation of a tax revision policy. A detailed survey of revenue sources and the extent of each might be drawn upon for a federal income tax under way in order to have necessary tax data ready for submission to congressmen in a possible bill they call for.

At the treasury department, although Secretary Mellon publicly has expressed his opinion on the question of priority, officials there, however, have been the formulation of a tax revision policy. A detailed survey of revenue sources and the extent of each might be drawn upon for a federal income tax under way in order to have necessary tax data ready for submission to congressmen in a possible bill they call for.

At the treasury department, although Secretary Mellon publicly has expressed his opinion on the question of priority, officials there, however, have been the formulation of a tax revision policy. A detailed survey of revenue sources and the extent of each might be drawn upon for a federal income tax under way in order to have necessary tax data ready for submission to congressmen in a possible bill they call for.

At the treasury department, although Secretary Mellon publicly has expressed his opinion on the question of priority, officials there, however, have been the formulation of a tax revision policy. A detailed survey of revenue sources and the extent of each might be drawn upon for a federal income tax under way in order to have necessary tax data ready for submission to congressmen in a possible bill they call for.

At the treasury department, although Secretary Mellon publicly has expressed his opinion on the question of priority, officials there, however, have been the formulation of a tax revision policy. A detailed survey of revenue sources and the extent of each might be drawn upon for a federal income tax under way in order to have necessary tax data ready for submission to congressmen in a possible bill they call for.

At the treasury department, although Secretary Mellon publicly has expressed his opinion on the question of priority, officials there, however, have been the formulation of a tax revision policy. A detailed survey of revenue sources and the extent of each might be drawn upon for a federal income tax under way in order to have necessary tax data ready for submission to congressmen in a possible bill they call for.

At the treasury department, although Secretary Mellon publicly has expressed his opinion on the question of priority, officials there, however, have been the formulation of a tax revision policy. A detailed survey of revenue sources and the extent of each might be drawn upon for a federal income tax under way in order to have necessary tax data ready for submission to congressmen in a possible bill they call for.

At the treasury department, although Secretary Mellon publicly has expressed his opinion on the question of priority, officials there, however, have been the formulation of a tax revision policy. A detailed survey of revenue sources and the extent of each might be drawn upon for a federal income tax under way in order to have necessary tax data ready for submission to congressmen in a possible bill they call for.

At the treasury department, although Secretary Mellon publicly has expressed his opinion on the question of priority, officials there, however, have been the formulation of a tax revision policy. A detailed survey of revenue sources and the extent of each might be drawn upon for a federal income tax under way in order to have necessary tax data ready for submission to congressmen in a possible bill they call for.

At the treasury department, although Secretary Mellon publicly has expressed his opinion on the question of priority, officials there, however, have been the formulation of a tax revision policy. A detailed survey of revenue sources and the extent of each might be drawn upon for a federal income tax under way in order to have necessary tax data ready for submission to congressmen in a possible bill they call for.

At the treasury department, although Secretary Mellon publicly has expressed his opinion on the question of priority, officials there, however, have been the formulation of a tax revision policy. A detailed survey of revenue sources and the extent of each might be drawn upon for a federal income tax under way in order to have necessary tax data ready for submission to congressmen in a possible bill they call for.

At the treasury department, although Secretary Mellon publicly has expressed his opinion on the question of priority, officials there, however, have been the formulation of a tax revision policy. A detailed survey of revenue sources and the extent of each might be drawn upon for a federal income tax under way in order to have necessary tax data ready for submission to congressmen in a possible bill they call for.

At the treasury department, although Secretary Mellon publicly has expressed his opinion on the question of priority, officials there, however, have been the formulation of a tax revision policy. A detailed survey of revenue sources and the extent of each might be drawn upon for a federal income tax under way in order to have necessary tax data ready for submission to congressmen in a possible bill they call for.

At the treasury department, although Secretary Mellon publicly has expressed his opinion on the question of priority, officials there, however, have been the formulation of a tax revision policy. A detailed survey of revenue sources and the extent of each might be drawn upon for a federal income tax under way in order to have necessary tax data ready for submission to congressmen in a possible bill they call for.

At the treasury department, although Secretary Mellon publicly has expressed his opinion on the question of priority, officials there, however, have been the formulation of a tax revision policy. A detailed survey of revenue sources and the extent of each might be drawn upon for a federal income tax under way in order to have necessary tax data ready for submission to congressmen in a possible bill they call for.

At the treasury department, although Secretary Mellon publicly has expressed his opinion on the question of priority, officials there, however, have been the formulation of a tax revision policy. A detailed survey of revenue sources and the extent of each might be drawn upon for a federal income tax under way in order to have necessary tax data ready for submission to congressmen in a possible bill they call for.

At the treasury department, although Secretary Mellon publicly has expressed his opinion on the question of priority, officials there, however, have been the formulation of a tax revision policy. A detailed survey of revenue sources and the extent of each might be drawn upon for a federal income tax under way in order to have necessary tax data ready for submission to congressmen in a possible bill they call for.

At the treasury department, although Secretary Mellon publicly has expressed his opinion on the question of priority, officials there, however, have been the formulation of a tax revision policy. A detailed survey of revenue sources and the extent of each might be drawn upon for a federal income tax under way in order to have necessary tax data ready for submission to congressmen in a possible bill they call for.

ARCHITECT-ENGINEERS ADMIRE PUNNING LINE IN SHOE-STORE VERSE

Ballinger Co. Executives Award Lim'rick Prize to Mrs. Walter Cox, Who Lives at 2029 Sansom Street

One Hundred Dollars Daily For the Best Last Line Supplied by Any Reader of the Evening Public Ledger to the Incomplete Lim'rick Which Appears Below

RULES OF THE LIMERICK CONTEST

1. Contest is open to any one. All that is required is to write and send in your last line to the Limerick Editor. The best line will be selected for publication. The prize for the best line will be $100.00. The prize for the best line will be $100.00. The prize for the best line will be $100.00.

2. Contest is open to any one. All that is required is to write and send in your last line to the Limerick Editor. The best line will be selected for publication. The prize for the best line will be $100.00. The prize for the best line will be $100.00. The prize for the best line will be $100.00.

3. Contest is open to any one. All that is required is to write and send in your last line to the Limerick Editor. The best line will be selected for publication. The prize for the best line will be $100.00. The prize for the best line will be $100.00. The prize for the best line will be $100.00.

4. Contest is open to any one. All that is required is to write and send in your last line to the Limerick Editor. The best line will be selected for publication. The prize for the best line will be $100.00. The prize for the best line will be $100.00. The prize for the best line will be $100.00.

5. Contest is open to any one. All that is required is to write and send in your last line to the Limerick Editor. The best line will be selected for publication. The prize for the best line will be $100.00. The prize for the best line will be $100.00. The prize for the best line will be $100.00.

6. Contest is open to any one. All that is required is to write and send in your last line to the Limerick Editor. The best line will be selected for publication. The prize for the best line will be $100.00. The prize for the best line will be $100.00. The prize for the best line will be $100.00.

7. Contest is open to any one. All that is required is to write and send in your last line to the Limerick Editor. The best line will be selected for publication. The prize for the best line will be $100.00. The prize for the best line will be $100.00. The prize for the best line will be $100.00.

8. Contest is open to any one. All that is required is to write and send in your last line to the Limerick Editor. The best line will be selected for publication. The prize for the best line will be $100.00. The prize for the best line will be $100.00. The prize for the best line will be $100.00.

9. Contest is open to any one. All that is required is to write and send in your last line to the Limer