Mary — "Seek Athletic Friends." Is Advice

"I'm glad that we are—friends!" she said, demurely. She gave the last word a faint emphasis. "People tell me that I omke a good friend—the always-andalways, never-changing kind!"

"Oh, say! Don't drag in other people." I feel jealous!

"Mr. Carrington Bellairs—I'm wondering how you like your work with him?" Impulsively he blurted out the question.

"Oh, I like it pretty well." She tried to make her tones sound casual—and failed. "He's frightfully clever. Work with such a man couldn't fail to be intensely interesting. He has a very pretty ward, Eve Rochester. Have you."

Clarissa Loses Her Temper

At eirst when Clarissa must that he recars were making no impression of Jim and that he was plainly thinking of something else, she was amized. Then she was angry and really frightened. After all underneath all her findfiness Clarissa, was little more than a child. Marriage to her was the only ideal state, and it was fixed and eternal ance it was undertaken. The prospect of Jim's no longer loving her filled her with al kinds of unknown terrors. Why, Jim was hers, she could not imagine life without him. She recalled the situations in the lurid magazine stories she often read situations which were interesting to read about, but which she had never thought of in connection with her own life.

Things You'll Love to Make Exchange Duvetyn and Silk Bag.

Dear Madam—Although I follow your very interesting column every night, this is the first time I have come for your always kind and helpful advice.

I am a member of a senior class in high school. We are contemplating a trip to Washington the latter part of April, to extend over three days. Could you suggest just what kind of clothes would be suitable to take?

Do you think a tailored suit or a serge dress would be all right to wear on the train? Since we are taking only traveling bags, our wardrobe must needs be limited.

You can get along with very little extra clothing on this trip. Either the Dear Madam-Although I follow

Dear Madam—Will you please advise me how I can clean gray suede slippers? They are light gray and they get dirty so quickly. Can you please tell me how I can make them clean again?

There are preparations on the market, sold in the shoe stores or drug stores, for the express purpose of cleaning suede slippers. A box of one of these would be quite as inexpensive as a home cleaner, for it would last for several applications.
