Nancy Wynne Tells of Plans for European Trips. Mrs. John A. Brown and Miss McKim to Sail Shortly for France—Other Goings and Comings

I SAW Mr. and Mrs. Morris Winstar coming out of Broad Street Station together yesterday. Mrs. Winstar was wearing a beautiful frock of dark blue velvet, the skirt being trimmed with insets of quillings of the same material. Her coat was in three-quarter length and was of seakink, the wide collar and flaring cuffs being of squirrel fur. Her hat was a toque of gray velvet with a flaring brim which turned back from the face and finished at the back of the head with a spreading wing.

But the dolman top coats are so good looking, though I can't quite like the way you have to hold your hands to keep them in place. This folded effect is rather remarkable, and in cold weather you can't wear a muff, and even if your hands do go into the cuffs they get cold.

But the coats themselves are simply lovely, and so smart looking and becoming. I tell you who looks beautiful in a dark blue velvet dolman top coat—Miss Edithan. Her dress was of Julia Lewis, you know, and has the most wonderful reddish gold hair and a very fair complexion. Her coat is trimmed with collar and wide cuffs of squirrel, and when I saw her on Walnut street she was wearing a hat of dark brown silk, fashioned with points at either side, finished with fringed ribbon. Mrs. Francis Grant is a sister of Mrs. Morris and Mrs. Lewis is, too. You remember Mary Lewis did splendid war work on the other side.

Speaking of the other side, I hear that Letitia McKim is going abroad again, but not alone. She is going with Mrs. John A. Brown, and they are planning a wonderful trip together. They expect to stay about six months, if not longer, and will visit France, Italy and England. Mrs. Brown has been in deep mourning for several years since the death of Mr. Brown, and has only lately started to go about in a bit again. She is a most charming woman and will doubtless have a beautiful trip together.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Robins, too, are going abroad at the end of April or beginning of May. Margaret also is going, and they expect to stay quite a long time. Mrs. Robins has been one of the most indefatigable members of the Emergency Aid all during the winter and since that time, giving much of her personal time to the furtherance of the aims of that influential body of women. She has been in charge of the department for the unemployed men this winter and has helped a great many to obtain work.

She, you remember, was with the Red Cross in Serbia and other Balkan states and she has received the most wonderful service decorations for the work she did for the poor and suffering in those small countries.

Did you know that Hope McMichael is home? She arrived in New York a couple of weeks ago, and went first to stay with her aunt, Mrs. Henry Hoyt, in Washington. Mrs. Hoyt was a Miss McMichael, a sister of the late Morton McMichael, 2d, who was Hope's father. She announced Hope's engagement to Eric Garibaldi, a grandson of the famous Garibaldi. Hope met him on her way to Europe last year when she went broad to do reconstruction work. Her marriage is scheduled to take place April 16 in Washington.

RECONSTRUCTION work makes me think of Miss Anne Morgan, who, I hear, is to speak in the foyer of the Academy April 6, about conditions in France. Her talk is to be given under the auspices of the American committee for devastated France, and it's not for raising money, nor will tickets be sold for the event. It is purely an invitation affair. I feel that it will be extremely interesting. Miss Morgan, as you know, I am sure, is the daughter of the late Pierpont Morgan, the financier, and she has given of her time and money to the reconstruction work in France in an enormous degree. She has been touring the Middle West telling of conditions in the still war-torn regions of France. You know she has received personally the Croix de Guerre with palms from the French Government, the Grand Mathieu, of 1509 North Broad street, who will be married to Mr. Daniel S. Whitman on Wednesday evening, March 30, in the Memorial Lutheran Church, Sixteenth and Jefferson streets. The guests will include the bride party.
