THE WINNING JINGLE

One day in his airplane, brand new,
Tom Thumb whizzed far, far out of view,
Into fields filled with rice!
He cried, "My, this is nice
I'll just land and tell Chink 'how-de-do.'"

THE HONOR ROLL

"Velly nice day," said Chink with a queue. Mary C. Eisele, 814 Federal street, Camden, N. J. Age, eleven.

For right into China he blew! Helen Watson, 1435 East Moyamensing avenue. Age, fourteen.

Foo Chow'll give me rice for my stew. Edith E. Clark, 5031 Cedar avenue. Age, eight.

But alas! 'Twas a dream we all knew. Sol Greenstein, 1669 North Lindenwood street. Age, fourteen.

A pudding for me and my crew! Theresa Tauber, 3026 North Lambert street. Age, ten.

Here's China we're "peekin" into. Helen Markward, Merchantville, N. J. Age, eight.

No more will I use the choo-choo. Paul E. Gleeson, 6417 Lambert street. Age, seven.

But look out for that Chinaman's queue. John Hadfield, Downingtown, Pa. Age, nine.

Now he's "raisin' some peas and a queue. Donald Ward Henry, 821 North Sixty-fourth (rear). Age, eleven.

About Easter!

Easter's coming! And so the jingle today is about Easter. Don't you think the little girl in the picture is cunning! I wonder what is going to happen to her Easter Sunday? Try and guess in your last line to the jingle. Or maybe you can think up some other way to find a good answer. Let's start all together this very minute.

Jack's Postoffice Box

Ethel Rabins, 716 South Fifty-sixth street, each write a very good poem indeed. She sent in a jolly jingle one about the Jingle box, and it would surely be printed, but it's a little too long.

Guess who Katherine Hasson, 2002 Ennis street, wants to win? Her school, the Edgar Allan Poe, is saving up to make a fine big gift to the starving children of Europe, and that's where her $10 would go.

Lillian McBride, 1229 North Frazier street, is discouraged. Won't some brave little lingler write to the postoffice box and tell this downhearted one why it doesn't pay to give up?

Such fine, jolly little letters that comes from Jack's pals every day. Now names to be put down in the memory book are Louise Streeter, Martha Gallagher, Verne Elizabeth Kennedy, Catherine Fiber, Evelyn Hunter, Morris Lincus, "Betty," Israel Seotkin, Fannie Zucker, Margaretta Gibbons, Lucille Veron Kramer, Daisy Fass, Elmyra McMullin, Marie Gray, Ethel Kelly, Russell Barry, Emma Dill, Sam Barnit, Francis A. Hauck, Jr., Dorothy Gimber, Alice Galen and James Blaney.

The rules of this contest are exactly the same as the rules for the grown-up limericks contest on Page 2. Get some member of your family—or your school teacher—to explain them to you and then you will not make mistakes.

Be sure to address your answer to the postoffice box number that is given in the coupon each day.

All answers must be received by 9 A. M. of the day following the date given on the picture. Address Jack's Jingle Box, Philadelphia.
