JUST GOSSIP ABOUT PEOPLE

Nancy Wynne Tells of the Engagement of Miss Eleanor Robb to Mr. Thomas Lineaweaver—She Chats of Other Things

AN INTERESTING engagement announced today is Eleanor Robb's. Eleanor is the daughter of Mrs. Henry Robb, and she came out last year and had a beautiful time. (Goodness, now that this season's over I should say she came out two seasons ago. I keep forgetting that the debutantes of the last season are no longer debutantes and that after Marion Watts' introduction next Friday the other parties given from now on will be for the buds of the coming season.)

Eleanor is engaged to Tom Lineaweaver, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lineaweaver, of Lebanon.

She is a very sweet girl, and has the earliest hair and the cutest mouth and nose, large eyes and particularly pretty eyebrows. She is a granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Hastings, of 1726 Spruce street, and with her mother and brother, Henry, Jr., lives with the Hastings. Carolyn Baily, who married Theodore Mitchell Hastings, is an aunt by marriage, and the Thomases, of West Chester, are closely related to them also.

Tom Lineaweaver is a relative of Mr. James and Mr. Charles Lineaweaver, of this city, though I could not swear as to whether he is a cousin or a nephew; I simply know they are relatives. I also know that Tom is a great favorite with girls and men and I feel sure the marriage will be a happy one. No date has been set for the wedding.

THE boys who form the committee for the masked party which will be held at the next meeting of the Cinderella Junior dances at the Merion C. C. will be Arthur Baugh, Jr., Woodford Bankson, William Addicks, Isaac Clothier, 3d, Henry Bain, Jr., and Lloyd Renshaw. The dance will be held on Wednesday night of next week and every girl and boy of the school set is muchly excited over it. You are often asked to a fancy dress party and the dancing classes usually have one fancy dress affair a year, but you do not often have a chance to mask, except when you are grown up, and even in your debutante year your mother won't be persuaded to let you go to the Bal Masque, and so you have to wait until you are older for that exciting party.

And here, before you even come out, you are going to mask and have a wonderful time pretending that you are Elsie when you really are Catherine. And isn't it fun to go to a mask dressed exactly like another girl or boy and puzzle every one more than ever.

Mrs. Matthew Baird, Jr., is chairman of the committee in charge of the Cinderella Junior dances, and she announces that the dance will start promptly at 8 o'clock and end at midnight.

I SAW the smartest get-up on Chestnut street on Thursday; yes, in all that rain, too, and it was the rain that helped to make it smart. But for the life of me I could not see positively why was wearing it for the simple reason that the "smart" henna silk umbrella bobbed between me and the owner's face every time I would try to get a glimpse. I thought it was Polly Thayer, for it walked like her and that color would have been wonderful for her. Any way, I'm going to tell you about the suit, for it was beautiful. It was of henna color, almost flame color duvetyne, and the skirt and long-skirted coat were both embroidered, in black silk floss above the hems, the embroidery being about eight inches in width.

The coat had a bit of embroidery between the shoulders and there was embroidery on the cuffs above the narrow fur bands at the wrist. A tuxedo collar and revers of black fur finished the coat. The hat was a small round one of henna silk, just a shade darker than the suit, and the umbrella was of the same shade as the hat. Her hair was dark brown and bobbed and the curve of the cheek and chin and the vivid coloring reminded me of Polly.

It was very unusual and exceedingly smart for as young a girl as she, as for an older person it would have been perhaps a little too bright.

PEGGY is four and has been seeking knowledge steadily of late, and is exercising her memory and very frequently trying to see how much she knows about everything. Naturally mother encourages her and is ever a willing listener in her seeking after knowledge. The other day Peggy, who was sitting on the floor at mother's side playing with some blocks, building innumerable castles, looked up and remarked: "I'm 'membering the name of every animal I know, there's butterflies, an' insects, an' worms an' lions."
