JUST GOSSIP ABOUT PEOPLE

Nancy Wynne Talks of Seeing Smart French Clothes. She Chats About More Debutantes Who Are to Be Presented in Fall

JUST enough cold weather to kill fruit trees and freeze the columbines and all the funny little things that you have growing in your window boxes and back yards, and then here it is warm again. And the magnolias look something fierce, just as if something had hit them, and the crocuses have all bent their heads over. However, it's early enough to plant some new things again, and they will hardly be up in time to be frosted again. Tomorrow will be April 1, and it will be springier and springier every day after that.

SPEAKING of spring makes me think of spring weddings, and then I think of spring brides and, consequently, of Hope McMichael, who will be married April 16. I saw her yesterday on the street, looking very spiffy in a small dark blue straw hat trimmed with dark blue flowers and draped with a French lace veil, which fell over her shoulders. She wore, also, a sealskin cape, which was lined with rose pink and her frock was dark blue. A new touch to the costume, which is quite the rage in Paris, was tan suede shoes, and they were worn with black silk stockings.

It has been smart here to wear black or blue silk stockings with brown shoes, but the suede shoe has always been worn with self-colored stockings. This, therefore, is a new departure and it's very effective. Hope is to be married to Captain Ezio Garibaldi in Washington, you know.

ANNE ASHTON is to have a box party at the Mask and Wig tonight and the George Fales Bakers will also entertain in a box at the performance, which is as popular as ever. The Ashtons had intended primarily to entertain on Saturday evening, but changed to Thursday last week. I saw Anne at the Orchestra last Monday looking sweet in a light gray crepe de chine frock.

She had taken off her hat and was holding it in her lap, so I do not know what its color was, but her dress, which was entirely gray, was much enhanced by the exquisite pink rose she held in her hand. It was a large rose and of a singularly beautiful color. And Anne has such a wonderful pink-and-white complexion. I really was quite entranced by her appearance.

TALKING of many debutantes yesterday, my mind seems to be running on that subject and I tell you, who is going to "knock 'em cold" as the young-ters say, next year—Margery Large. She is the daughter of Mrs. Robert Large, who was formerly Mary Roakirt. You know Mrs. Large with her wonderful red hair. She married Bob Large about twenty years ago and he died about four years since. Mrs. Large was really the most wonderful looking person in her crepe veil which she wore for several years after Mr. Large's death. Always striking looking with her wonderful coloring and gorgeous hair, the black of the crepe hat and veil was a remarkable contrast. Mrs. Large is at present in Europe, but will return in the fall or early summer and will introduce Margery at a tea in October. Margery has been visiting Elizabeth Norris, who has gone back to Cuba after spending the winter here, having been a debutante of the last season.

ANOTHER attractive debutante will be Priscilla Morris, a daughter of the late Alfred Paul Morris and Mrs. Morris and a sister of Ottilie Morris, who made her debut this last season. Priscilla is rather tall and has beautiful eyes and wavy hair. Her mother was Miss Mildred Wain, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Wain, of Haverford. The Morrises live at Villanova. I understand that Priscilla will be introduced early in November.

HAVE you heard about the Studio tea that is to be held at the Emergency Aid on Saturday night? I think it will be great fun. Any one who can do so is supposed to do a stunt. Mrs. George Fales Baker, Mrs. George Meriwether, Mrs. Harrison Caner and Mrs. Hamilton Colket and several other women who are interested in these Sunday evening parties at the Emergency Aid will be hostesses of the occasion. There's to be a dance, too, tomorrow night for the home relief work of the E. A.

THE rehearsals had been very careful, and Polly, who is four, was told just when to recite her little piece. Then said Mrs. H——: "If they clap very hard you can go out, and say this one next." Polly went faithfully through the first piece and the audience, highly delighted at the size of her and her beauty and cuteness, clapped far longer than she expected. So running out she held up her small hand and said: "If y'ever top clapping, I dot anuvver t'say."

NANCY WYNNE.

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES

Mr. and Mrs. M. Francis Hanson announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Sarah Hanson, and Mr. Paul A. Vanneman, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul A. Vanneman, of Cynwyd, at a tea given at their home in Sedgwick this afternoon. The marriage will take place early in June.

There is a little Dance Frock—

—that picturesquely answers a host of fashion's queries. Convincing, indeed, are the lines of this unique model of Satin Meteor, ruched so quaintly. There are three of these tiers of ruchings just below the waist, encircled by a silver band, which again blossoms out in a charming rosette.

Captivating are the short sleeves—veritably and really just a dainty arm-hole. There's an irregular hem, of course—this above a tunic.

The Colors: Peach, Tangerine, Orchid, Turquoise and Peacock.
