

HEARING AGAINST CAR LINE HALTED

Commissioner Clement Continues Case Against Holmesburg Company

ATTORNEYS WASTED TIME

Hearing on a complaint against the Franklin, Tenny and Holmesburg Railway Co. was cut short today by Public Service Commissioner Clement when he ordered the hearing suspended on a motion to adjourn.

The complaint was the Holmesburg Improvement Association, represented by James Alcorn, former city auditor, and the Pleasant Hill Association, represented by Benjamin D. Rankin. The railway company's counsel was W. W. Montgomery, Jr.

How much money is paid in extra-ordinary salaries to executive officers of the company? he asked. Mr. Alcorn replied: "I don't know."

When the complainants put more questions to the witness, Mr. Montgomery advised them of trying to "quibble" the things up. At this point Commissioner Clement ended the hearing.

HOLDS COURT ERRED

Chiropractor Convicted of Practicing Medicine Asks Retrial

Argument was heard by Judge Ferguson today on the motion for a new trial made by James E. Keel, a chiropractor, with offices at Fifty-second and Market streets, who was convicted of practicing medicine without a license or certificate. Decision was withheld.

Keel did not prescribe drugs, but, it is alleged, diagnosed ailments of the human body, such as is only permitted to duly licensed physicians. It was argued by the defense that the conviction was wrong under the indictment, charging the practicing of surgery or medicine without a license.

DANCING MASTERS FIGHT VULGARITY

Representatives to Ask Mayor's Aid in Abolishing Indecencies in Pastime

CONFERENCE WEDNESDAY

The Dancing Masters' Association of Philadelphia will meet Mayor Moore Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock to discuss the abolishing of indecent and vulgar dancing.

The association has been actively engaged for two months in getting information to put before the Mayor.

Miss Margarette Walz, a dancing instructor, was appointed to secure a committee of twenty, ten dancing teachers and ten hoodlums who permit dancing, to attend the meeting.

In speaking of the matter today, Miss Walz said: "We are very confident that our efforts will meet with success. But the public must be made to realize that the outcome rests greatly on them. More so than on us, we can go just so far without their support."

"Their support has to be more than talk as it has been in the past. We want action and less talk. This is the general public I refer to that resorts being justified by the immoral public."

"There are laws governing disorderly and immoral conduct in dance halls and ball rooms, and all we ask is the enforcement of these laws. We feel sure the Mayor will back us in this, and if a few licenses were revoked or forfeited it would go a long way toward correcting this disgraceful condition."

"Don't let us down on particular dances. The most dignified dances have been vulgarized by flippant young girls and men. Vulgar dances have not been taught, but have been made that way by the instructors. The name of a dance means nothing, but we want to eliminate personal vulgarity. Every dancing teacher in Philadelphia is back of this movement, and while we would like the support of the hotelmen we can get along without them. They are a little slow in adopting our views, but we are giving them an opportunity to join us now."

"The laws are lax that oppose Sunday baseball and movies, yet permit seven days in the week nights that are resulting in our dance floors, so-called. Let us have a clean-up on this, and we are giving them an opportunity to join us now."

The degree exercises were conducted this afternoon under the direction of John W. Dougherty, master of the fourth degree, assisted by the Rev. William J. Ladd, Samuel J. Brown, James P. Fogarty, M. J. McEnery, Hugh P. Dunlop, Francis A. McCarren and Joseph C. McMenamin.

Tonight a reception will be held in honor of the initiates, a feature of which will be a dinner by a trained corps of young people.

GARBAGE DRIVERS IN TAXI

Later in Jail Because Cockerer Throws Brick at Them

Three drivers of city garbage wagons, paid off at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, decided to ride home from work in a taxi. They hired a cab at Eleventh and Brown streets, and the driver $5 and told him to proceed.

At Tenth and Race streets, a fourth garbage driver recognized the three occupants of the cab. He threw a brick at them through a window of the cab, in either a jealous or a playful mood, as one knows which.

The driver then drove the three men to the garage of his company at Twelfth and Vine streets. There, it is said, the company attempted to collect $10 damages for the broken window. The men refused to pay it. They were arrested and will have a hearing today at the Eleventh and Winter streets station before Magistrate Greig.

Cream of the Choice in Clothes

In Clothing manufacturing as in every other industry there are certain makers whose product stands out from the crowd—makers who excel in some or in many points of production.

These makers naturally seek retailers whose reputation and facilities afford a logical outlet for the distribution of their clothing to the ultimate consumer—the great discriminating American public.

In Philadelphia Jacob Reed's Sons are working in close harmony with a limited and carefully considered group of manufacturers whose unequalled clothing may not be had except at Reed's.

QUEER INDIAN BOOK ISSUED BY MUSEUM OF UNIVERSITY

Simplified Spelling Used by Translator of Legend Handed Down by Guatemalan Indians—Original Language Looks Like Greek

"My hair was still black," "The two things which they see done, or course, are not alike," "Some provisions are like our own are done," "I say as nearly as possible to you."

These sentences are taken at random from the most recent volume issued by the anthropological department of the University Museum, which has just appeared.

Mr. Barlett was very kindly interested in the volume by President Roosevelt of a simplified form of spelling. He followed the suggestion to introduce such spelling books, and made some personal investigations of his own which eventually led him to invent a form of writing quite peculiar to him.

The full title of the volume is "The Hills and the Con," a legend put into writing by the late Tiburtius Kaal and others.

The original and the translation run in parallel form and have something of the nature of a fairy story. The Indian language resembles, more than anything else, Greek, and because of Mr. Barlett's peculiar word forms, the translation often looks strangely foreign.

In his preface, the translator takes up the subject of the language of the Guatemalan Indians, explains the differences, and tells something of the life and character of Tiburtius Kaal, whose picture is also contained in the volume.

YOUTH "BORROWED" RING. GIRL CAUSES HIS ARREST

Then Former Landlady Appears to Press Charge of Theft

Harold R. Palmer, who was arrested on a charge preferred by a young woman whose diamond ring he is said to have taken, was held in $1000 bail today for some personal investigation on a charge preferred by another woman.

Mrs. Mary Hayes, 2602 North Perry street, who had obtained a warrant for Palmer's arrest, testified before Magistrate Greig in the Twenty-second street and Hunting Park avenue station, that the defendant rented a room at her home last October, borrowed $21 from her and later disappeared without paying a board bill. A diamond ring, the property of her daughter Catherine, disappeared at the same time, she said.

Palmer, who said his home is in Bridesville, N. Y., was arrested yesterday when he telephoned to Miss Ada Pascol, 1502 Butler street, and asked her to meet him at Twenty-second and Spruce Garden streets. Palmer, she told the police, had "borrowed" a diamond ring from her and had never returned it. It was recovered in a pawnshop.
