

MRS. WILSON CLAIMS THAT HOME-MADE SOUP IS BEST

And Goes a Long Way Toward Proving It by an Excellent Recipe for a Vegetable Potage With Dumplings

By MRS. M. A. WILSON

THE housewife soon discovers the best place to market, and if she is inclined to shop around, she is sure to obtain full value for her money.

Bring slowly to a boil and then place on the simmering burner and cook for three and one-half hours. Now add the dumplings made as follows:

Place in a saucepan: One and one-quarter cups of flour, One teaspoon of salt, One-half teaspoon of pepper, One-half teaspoon of thyme, One teaspoon of baking powder.

Sift to mix and then add five tablespoons of water and work to a smooth dough. Dip the hands in flour and then mix off small pieces of dough, the size of a pea, and drop in the stock.

Now place one cup of flour in a bowl and add one cup of cold water and beat with a fork to dissolve the flour. Pour into the soup, stirring all the time. Cook for one-half hour and then season and serve.

This makes about one gallon of very good soup and it will give the family plenty for three days. You know that vegetable soup is always best when reheated.

Browned Beef Tie the meat into shape and then with a damp cloth and pat one-half cup of flour into the meat. Then heat one-half cup of shortening in a saucepan until smoking hot. Now add the meat and brown quickly. Add two cups of boiling water and cover closely. Pare six turnips, trim ends and then cut in wedge-shaped pieces. Add to the meat, with one-half dozen onions. Cook very slowly until tender and then season and serve, garnish with points of toast. Top of ribs of beef can also be used for this dish.

Lamb Potpie Wine the meat and then place in a saucepan and cover with boiling water. Prepare the carrots, turnips and onions as for the browned beef and then add. Cook slowly until the meat is tender. When the meat is ready season and thicken the gravy slightly. Reserve one cup of gravy and then mix the meat in a large shallow baking pan and prepare a crust as follows. Place in a mixing bowl:

Four cups of sifted flour, One teaspoon of salt, One-half teaspoon of pepper, Three level tablespoons of baking powder.

Sift to mix and then rub into the flour one-half cup of shortening and use one cup of water to form a dough. Turn on a pastry board and roll out one-half inch thick. Cut with biscuit cutter. Use these biscuits overlapping slightly to cover the top of the meat pie. Brush with water and then bake in a moderate oven for forty minutes, baste with the cup of gravy reserved for this purpose.

Prune and Raisin Cake Soak the prunes in plenty of water overnight and then in the morning add the raisins and cook very slowly until tender. Serve part for Sunday breakfast and then turn the balance into a sieve to drain. Remove the stones from the prunes. Now place in a mixing bowl:

Two cups of flour, One-half teaspoon of salt, Four tablespoons of baking powder, Four tablespoons of sugar, One cup of water.

Beat to mix and then turn into a well-greased and floured deep layer-cake pan, spreading the batter higher on the sides than in the center. Cover with the prepared prunes and raisins and dust with cinnamon and then sprinkle with one-half cup of brown sugar. Bake in a moderate oven for thirty minutes. Use the juice of the prunes and raisins for sauce.

WHAT'S WHAT BY HELEN DEBIE

When writing a business letter strict formalities should be observed. The object of writing should be stated as clearly and as completely as possible. The person to whom the letter is written, nothing should be mentioned that is foreign to the matter in hand.

What Ingenuity Will Do

Helen had gone to the sewing club with a piece of linen and the fixed intention of pulling the threads and repairing the hemstitching all linen. Incidentally, it was to be made into a small and "very best" pillow-slip smoothly white and with narrow flit along the hemstitched side.

THE DAILY NOVELETTE

Mother's Easter Bonnet

By LILLIAN M. RICHARDS

Father's love for his silver, or sister's love for nice clothes, were as nothing, compared to mother's love for her work bonnet.

"Now," said her daughter, coaxingly, "you simply must buy yourself a new hat for Easter."

"Tush, tush, do!" Mrs. Hadley replied. "Your father'd think I was plum crazy, buying a new hat when this one's plenty good enough."

"That's just it," impatiently spoke her daughter. "You think anything's good enough for you, and it isn't. I don't care what father thinks. It isn't as if he couldn't afford it, him owning the largest grocery store in town."

"But, mumsy dear," she continued to plead, "can't you see that people will soon think you miserly? You'll only hurt father's business by wearing old clothes; everyone'll think him a lover of the almighty dollar, and they'll be afraid to trade with him."

Things You'll Love to Make

Botik-Lined Sash

Sashes are quite the thing on spring frocks and suits. The stunning one shown above is fashioned of silk and georgette, the latter draped in a beautiful border design.

On their way home, Helen, with the boys in the back seat, had all she could do to keep them from singing. "There she goes, there she goes, all dressed up in her Sunday clothes!" while her father sitting at the wheel with a sour expression ignored her mother, at his side. All of a sudden, a strong gust of wind sent Mrs. Hadley's new hat down the road in back of them. Disturbed, her husband stopped the car.

"Seems to me," he growled, "if you're going to wear such tomfoolery, you could at least pin it on." As he started to back the car, another gust of wind sent the hat toward them and under the wheels. Like a hurt child, Mrs. Hadley looked over the side and saw her new bonnet crushed in the mud.

There, snapped her husband, "that's the end of that thing."

"There, there," said Helen, entering unexpectedly. "We'll just teach him a lesson. I know he's the best dad in the world, and wouldn't hurt you intentionally, but he must be made to see things as they are."

"I didn't mean to give 'way, dear," replied her mother. "We'll just forget it."

"No, we won't," declared the girl. "Father doesn't appreciate your worth. You've got to be sick a while—yes you have," as her mother started to protest. "Then, we'll realize your value."

From the next two days Mrs. Hadley enjoyed a much-needed rest. But down stairs things went havoc. The meals were never on time, and then poorly cooked. The house was untidy and the boys ran wild. Mr. Hadley sulked and grumbled, but it did no good. He missed his peaceful evenings in the quiet living room, reading the paper, while mother Hadley mended socks. Now all was noise and confusion. No one put the boys to bed, so they romped until all hours.
