THREE YORK ROAD FIRES Ogontz School Menaced and Flame

Three fires, two of them small, caused great excitement along Old York road last night. Brush on the grounds of the Ogontz School for Girls, at Rydal, became ignited and the flames spread so rapidly there was fear for the school buildings. The Abington fire department put out the flames.

Just before this fire the police automobile driven by Desk Sergeant Harry Messer, of Abington, caught fire near the police station and was badly damaged. About the time this fire was extinguished the barn on the farm of tinguished the barn on the farm of Harry Rroads, in the extreme southeast considered of great value fire and burned to the ground. This investigation into the textile situation was undertaken by an industrial relations commission of the federation. Dr. Batten is chairman of the commis-in the commission, which is made up of clergy and laymen of several denominations.

"This is a very complex problem," said Dr. Batten. "We are trying to bring together representatives of the employers and the workers so they may consider all the questions involved. To many employers John T. Flood, secretary of the Friends of Irish Freedom, today renewed a challenge to Philadelphia wages only. It is really a deeper problem. The workers feel they are more than mere hands, they want to be taken into conference with their employers.
