

PHILA. FRATS PLAN TO SUE TEACHER

Retain Lawyers After Camden Principal Calls Societies "Immoral and Vicious" RETRACTION IS REFUSED

Attorneys were retained today by the allied Greek letter fraternities of this city who members are indicated by cause Miss Clara S. Burroughs, principal of the Camden High School, declared the "frats" are "immoral and vicious."

Miss Burroughs expressed her opinion of the student fraternities in explaining why she suspended seven Camden students from their regular activities except study.

Philadelphia chapters of the fraternities have entered the controversy because the Camden principal's action conflicted with their charter. Harry L. Schmidt, an attorney for the city, was retained as was Edwin G. Nease, an attorney of the fraternities.

Issue Joint Statement A joint statement was issued today by the fraternities, in which they declared the principal's action was "immoral and vicious."

It is not the intention of the fraternities to become involved in any kind of legal education in this city, but they do not do this as a matter of course. They are merely interested in the high school and university fraternities of the city, which are in several instances, as Miss Burroughs pointed out, the same as those of the city.

These statements by Miss Burroughs are broad and strike at the very existence of the fraternities and should be more fully examined. My opinion is that the principal's action is not only immoral but also unjust.

She blamed the boys' parents for the controversy that has arisen over the suspension of the students, and declared that except for the attitude of their families the boys would have never "pledged," which she says is all that is demanded by the fraternities, and that their relatives should be held responsible for the action.

"I have not considered this for the parents' fact," Miss Burroughs said. "In fact, I have not had time to read it carefully."

"The boys have not yet spoken what the school has asked them to do. If they do I can see no change in the situation. I am not demanding that you renounce their membership in the frat-parents, left for home on East Seventy-ninth street about noon on December 12, 1919, after telling her mother that she intended to buy a book store. She was never heard from again, although investigators had traced her movements to a Fifty-ninth street store where she had purchased a box of candy, and later to a book store. It could not be learned whether she had ever reached a Fifth avenue department store where she intended to buy a gown.

DOROTHY ARNOLD MYSTERY IS SOLVED; N. Y. POLICE SAY

No Longer Listed as Missing. Captain Ayers Asserts; Father Denies It

New York, April 9.—By A. P.—The disappearance of Dorothy Arnold on December 12, 1919, which provided one of the greatest mysteries of the police department, Captain John H. Ayers, head of the missing persons' bureau, declared in an address here last night. He refused to tell whether Miss Arnold was alive or dead, stating that this was a confidential matter of the police department.

Elizabeth, daughter of Captain Ayers' statement was made by John S. Keith, attorney for Francis R. Arnold, the girl's father, who declared the mystery of the girl's disappearance was as great as it had been on the day she vanished nearly seven years ago.

"In my statement about missing girls," he said, "I would have said many of you have heard of the case of Dorothy Arnold. Do you recall that when the girl was searched for her had mysteriously 'gone'? Her parents, relatives and friends were held in a number of letters, suddenly ceased their inquiries."

A man on the platform then asked if it was an intricate case. "If that I can say is that it has been solved by the department," replied Captain Ayers.

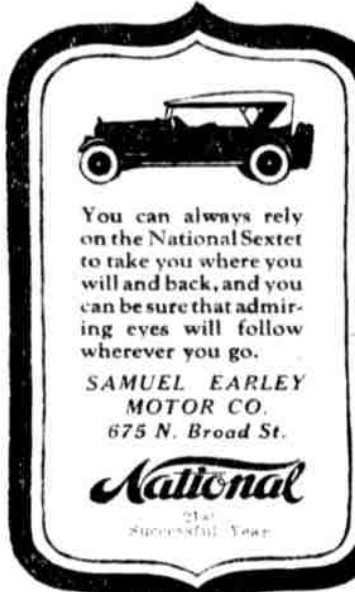

Mr. Keith expressed indignation when informed of Captain Ayers' remarks. "There hasn't been the slightest clearing of the mystery," he said. "We don't know any more about her disappearance except that we have eliminated all clues as they came up. Captain Ayers' remarks are unwarranted and untrue. The police department knows that Dorothy Arnold is still missing."

Miss Arnold, the daughter of wealthy parents, left for home on East Seventy-ninth street about noon on December 12, 1919, after telling her mother that she intended to buy a book store. She was never heard from again, although investigators had traced her movements to a Fifty-ninth street store where she had purchased a box of candy, and later to a book store. It could not be learned whether she had ever reached a Fifth avenue department store where she intended to buy a gown.

FARM JOBS TO AID IDLE OF DISTRICT

147,115 Out of Work Here on March 15, Report of U. S. Bank Shows

IMPROVEMENT IS SHOWN

Farm labor and demands for work on public improvements are expected to take up some of the present labor surplus in the Philadelphia district, according to a general summary of business conditions issued today by the Federal Reserve Bank of the Third Philadelphia District.

The demand for farm labor already is making itself felt, according to the summary and the public works to be undertaken throughout the State are expected to give employment to many men.

According to the Federal Reserve estimate, there was on March 15 an approximate total of 147,115 men idle in Philadelphia, Altoona, Harrisburg, Johnstown and Scranton. Of these, 35,450, or 24 per cent, are classed as common labor.

Banks and business houses have reported to the Federal Reserve that collections in the last month have been slow. Borrowing from banks has fallen off, except in the agricultural districts.

The summary shows that on the whole retail trade in Pennsylvania compares favorably with that of a year ago, sales having shown an increase of 3.4 per cent over the same month in 1920.

The report says that reductions in the number of employees are reported from nearly all districts, the textile industry only being excepted. Many textile mills are employing more workers than at the first of the year.
