

ATTACK COLOMBIAN TREATY IN SENATE

Kellogg, Leading Opposition, Replies to Speech by Lodge Today

TARIFF BILL IS AWAITED

Washington, April 13.—Continued debate on the Colombian treaty promised to occupy practically the entire time of the Senate today, while the House has planned to remain in session only a few minutes. The calendar in the House found that only a few minutes were available for private bills before the members had planned to take advantage of an early adjournment to witness the opening game of the major league baseball season here.

Before adjournment was taken, however, the House ways and means committee was expected to report on the emergency tariff bill. By agreement reached yesterday, after President Harding had urged the necessity for an emergency measure in his message to Congress, the bill is a duplicate of that voted at the first session by President Wilson, except that its application is reduced from ten to six months.

Senator Kellogg, leading the opposition in the light of the terms of the Colombian treaty, was prepared to open the Senate debate in reply to the address yesterday by Senator Lodge in which the majority leader urged early ratification not only on the ground that it would improve this country's relations with Latin America, but because of economic considerations as well.

Knox to Speak, Today
Senator Pomeroy, Democrat, Ohio, was scheduled to follow Senator Kellogg in the debate today, and Senator Knox, Republican, Indiana, is expected to speak. Both favor immediate ratification.

Prospects of a fight over the plan of the Republican Senate, announced in conference yesterday, to increase their membership on the ten major committees from fifteen to sixteen also loomed in the Senate today. Senator Lodge prepared to resist a change in the Senate rules necessary to put the program into effect, claiming that its allotment to him of but six places on such committees would be disproportionate to their membership.

Republican Senate leaders continued their general expressions of approval of the treaty today. Senator Lodge's declaration in his message to Congress that the United States could have no part in the Versailles League of Nations, and also his declaration favoring termination of the state of war by congressional resolution.

Smoot Sales Tax Bill In
While old and new legislative proposals in the Senate yesterday numbered less than 200, as compared with 2500-odd Monday in the House, they ranged from tax plans, through anti-strike legislation to adjustment of international disputes.

Senator Smoot, put in his bill establishing a sales tax in lieu of excess profits taxing methods, and also an anti-strike measure against wood importation.

Senator Reed reintroducing a resolution suggesting the President ask Great Britain whether the West Indian need sessions could not be held to the United States in part payment of present indebtedness, added a suggestion for an inquiry of the League of Nations as to the French Antilles. Senator La Follette, proposed recognition of the "Fresh Republics."

Senator Frevelinghouse, proposed creating a coal commission.

A Public Welfare Department Bill was sponsored by Senator Kenyon.

PLAN SOLDIERS' PASSOVER
Young Men's Hebrew Association to Help Service Men

All enlisted men, which will be conducted by Rabbi Max D. Klein, of the Adath Jeshurun synagogue. The service will be given accommodations for the Seder night and will attend services at the temples and synagogues the following morning. The service will be also given at private homes for the entire Passover week. All soldiers and sailors who will be unable to go to their homes are requested to notify their commanding officers at the following address: John H. ## CHAMBER ACTS IN DISPUTE

Will Attempt to Settle Printers' Wage Controversy

The chamber of commerce will try to settle a wage dispute in the printing trades. A conference is to take place between employees and employers before a committee composed of Ernest T. Trigg, chairman; John E. Lloyd, Percival E. Forrester and J. P. Buchanan.

Recently the labor leaders asked permission to place their case before the Industrial Relations Committee, and did so. The officials of the Typographical union of employers in the printing industry, yesterday sent a communication to the committee outlining their side of the matter.

Labor leaders in the printing trades ask a four-hour work week with pay to remain on the basis of a four-hour week. The same demands have been made in every city in the United States, and the time set for the readjustment is May 1. The usual alternative is a strike that would tie up the printing industry.

Washington, April 13.—President Harding today told a delegation which called on him to urge the release of Eugene V. Debs and all other prisoners convicted under the war-time espionage act that he contemplated no action looking to general amnesty for such prisoners until a state of peace had been declared.

The delegation issued a formal statement after leaving the White House in which they stated that they had received a "most courteous" answer, asking questions to bring out certain points.

"We spoke of his entire sympathy with the cause of the prisoners, in an era of frank discussion and an atmosphere of good will established in America," the statement added, "and added that the cases of these prisoners should be brought to the attention of the Department of Justice."

In presenting their arguments the committee cited various court decisions which held that the act of these prisoners referred to were not guilty of overt acts, but merely of holding opinions which were construed as harmful.

The delegation, numbering about 200, included the following: Charles R. Edwards, of New England, who is the leader of the delegation; Charles R. Edwards, of New England, who is the leader of the delegation; Charles R. Edwards, of New England, who is the leader of the delegation.

CHESTER MAN GETS $100 AND LOSES VACANT LOOK

Diners Who Used to Find Limericks in Their Soup Are Safe at Last—Restaurant Worker Wins

It was a quiet day in Chester. No day is very noisy in Chester what with prohibition and the trolley fares being now sufficient to pay for grease on all the curves in the car tracks.

But this was an extra quiet day, "full of poignance and pregnant with unspoken significance" as our sub-school of literature might have it.

From the door of his modest home came out John Anderson, looking as if he had just stepped out of the door of a restaurant. He was dressed in a suit and tie, and he had a vacant look on his face.

"One, two, three—one, two, three—one," he counted. "It was their young, hard-working limerick daily, counting on his fingers, and he was counting on his fingers, and he was counting on his fingers."

"Would it ever stop? Was a perfectly good restaurant employee, to end finally on a padded cell, forever counting limerick lines on his fingers? To end only this time would it."

Secretary Weeks announced that there would be two additional vacancies in the grade of major general, due to the retirement of Major Generals Morrison and Dickman, and that they would be filled by the promotion of Brigadier Generals Charles J. Bailey and Samuel D. Sturgis.

SONS AID MOTHER IN FATHER'S SUIT

Harkins Boys Testify Against Parent, Who Asks Damages of "Other Man"

SAY SHE WAS DEVOTED

Her two sons, sixteen and seventeen years old, indignantly defended their mother's character as the chief witnesses for the defense in the $100,000 suit of Media of Thomas M. Harkins, 6930 De Laney street, against Frederick G. Jones, for alienation of Mrs. Harkins' affections. Jones was a boarder in the Harkins home in Benfield, Delaware county, in 1919.

Both sons unflinchingly testified to their mother's fidelity to their estranged father, and to his alleged efforts to defame her character when he met them in Philadelphia following his departure from the Harkins home in Benfield, Delaware county, in 1919.

Says He Called Names
"When my father left our home in Benfield in 1919," he said, "the communication with me and asked me to meet him at Broad Street Station. At this meeting he called mother vile names. I told him he had no reason to believe my mother was leading a double life."

"I told him she was just as good and true to us and to him as she had ever been, and that there was no justification for his action in leaving home."

"Cross-examined by Howard E. Hannum, attorney for the father, the son admitted Jones helped his mother wash dishes."

"Did he ever look for her?" asked Hannum.
"Yes, he did," the son replied. "That's nothing. I do a little of that myself."

"Caron Harkins, the older son, a senior in the Haverford High School, was unable to suppress his indignation when he testified."

"I met my father in the Reading Terminal in Philadelphia," he said, "some time after he left our home in Benfield. He summoned me."

"This whole conversation was so disagreeable concerning my mother that it made me mad. I walked away from him and would no longer listen to him."

4,000,000 Workers Expected to Be Idle in Great Britain After 10 P. M.

PREMIER STILL HOPEFUL
By the Associated Press

London, April 13.—Great Britain's "Triple Alliance" of labor will call its members from their posts at 10 o'clock Friday night, it was announced here today.

The decision follows inability of the National Miners' Federation to reach an agreement with the mine owners and the government for the settlement of the miners' strike, which began April 1.

"The 'Triple Alliance' is made up of the National Miners' Federation, having a membership of 800,000; the National Union of Railwaymen, with 300,000 members, and the National Federation of Transport Workers, including a large membership of 300,000.

It has been estimated that if the "alliance" should call a strike there would be nearly 4,000,000 persons idle in England as a result.

Still Hopes to Avert Strike
Speaking of the strike announcement, Prime Minister Lloyd George stated in the House of Commons that the situation was "of great and increasing gravity," but he still hoped wiser counsels might prevail.

Meanwhile, added the premier, the government was taking all possible steps to meet the emergency. Mr. Lloyd George said he strongly deplored the decision of the "Triple Alliance," but suggested that a discussion of the question in the House today would not be advisable.
