OF COURSE we most of us agree on the general principles of goodness, but many of us have our own ideas of how to attain it and differ on what we must endure before we can really be called thoroughly good. Ted. however, knows what must be done to attain goodness. There is not the least doubt in his mind. Ted goes to Sunday school regularly and at the end of the session the children all file into the church and stand under the pulpit while the minister pronounces the benediction.

Mother noticed that Ted was watching the minister very intently during the benediction. Now, this particular minister preaches extremely well, and in his preaching quite uses himself up and is, much exhausted at the end of the service, and when mother and Ted were walking home after the service.
