

FRANKLIN STATUE STARTS LAST LAP

Bartlett's "Poor Richard" Proceeds Up River on Trip to Waterbury

TO BE HONORED EN ROUTE

Following the route taken by Benjamin Franklin himself on his journey from New England to Philadelphia, Bartlett's statue of "Poor Richard," which has been in this city during the two days' exercises in Franklin's honor, left this morning for the Race street pier on another lap of its journey to Waterbury, Conn.

The statue, draped in wreaths and flowers, was put aboard a navy yard tug at 11 o'clock. Its next stop will be Burlington, N. J., where it is expected to arrive late this afternoon. A demonstration has been planned there. The statue is being accompanied on its river journey by a delegation of patriots and representatives of the Sons of the American Revolution, who have followed it from Baltimore. The navy tug, George F. Pierce, with a naval band of honor, is escorting it up the river.

Captain William E. Benson, assistant captain of the navy yard, is in charge of the statue's pilgrimage. J. Henry South, Jr., and Anthony W. Robinson, representatives of the Sons of the American Revolution, are also on board. Lieutenant Commander Clarence Gulbranson is in charge of ceremonies that will take place on the statue's arrival at Burlington.

It is expected that the statue will reach the S. of A. R., together with Captain Yates Stirling and Commander Louis McCoy Nulton, commander of the navy yard, at the departure of the tug from the city. During its stay here it reposed in the Shading of Independence Hall.

Demonstrations have been planned in Franklin's honor when it reaches Princeton and Perth Amboy. On its arrival at Waterbury ex-President Taft will be the speaker at the exercises. The statue will be accompanied to the city of Waterbury in the will of Eliza Leavenworth, a citizen. It is being driven to Waterbury by the great state-mann and author, Judge Edward C. Bonnell, head of the Philadelphia reception committee, also made an address. At the close of these exercises Bonnell and Alfred Bonnell, dressed in Colonial costume, decorated Franklin's tomb with handsome floral wreaths.

NAB THIRD MURDER SUSPECT

Man Arrested in South in Connection With John Dalton Shooting

John Austin, the third Negro wanted for the murder of John Dalton in Sharon Hill last July, has been arrested in the South and turned over to the police in this city. He is at present being held in the Third and Chestnut street station, where it is said he has confessed. He will be delivered to the Delaware county authorities.

Walter A. Lewis has already been convicted of first degree murder and Bonnoke Jasper has confessed to having been an accomplice in the shooting. Austin was the only one of the three highwaymen still at large.

John Dalton was a former service man and son of Dr. David Dalton. He was shot and killed within two squares of his home during a duel with three Negroes who tried to hold him up.
