

IRISH HOME RULE EFFECTIVE TODAY

British Officials Take Steps to Enforce Law Enacted
Last December

ELECTION IS SET FOR MAY 3

By the Associated Press
London, April 19.—Steps to bring into operation the Irish act, providing for home rule in the island, were taken today by the British Government.

This law, which was described by King George as "the fruit of thirty years of ceaseless controversy," was passed by Parliament on December 21, 1914, and received royal assent a short time later. Sinn Féin leaders in Ireland have been outspoken in opposition to it.

Elections of members of the northern and southern Irish parliaments will be held May 3. Under present plans, the parliaments will be elected on the basis of the law, and the elections will be held on the basis of the law.

"LABRADOR DOCTOR" AND HIS WIFE

Dr. W. T. Grenfell and his wife, who are in Philadelphia today on the end of a tour of the country on behalf of the million-dollar fund Dr. Grenfell is raising to carry on his spiritual and physical missionary work in Labrador.

Divorce Unknown in Chilly Labrador

Every one keeps active and busy. Homes are neat and clean. The people are intelligent and alert, but, of course, there are no opportunities in Labrador for what you term higher education. At present we have sixteen of our young men in the United States studying science, industry and other subjects that will help them in their labors in the North. What use have we for Caesar and Greek art in Labrador? We need practical things.

As Dr. Grenfell talked, Mrs. Grenfell entered the room. The man's eyes brightened as he introduced her. "She can do anything in the world," he said. "And she is the greatest help man could have."

Mrs. Grenfell's smile was indulgent. She is tall, almost the same height as her husband, slender and has the grace usual with outdoor life. Her hair, combed in pompadour, is graying. She is just as eager and happy over the work in the north as Dr. Grenfell.

"We have never been parted," explained the doctor. "When we felt it necessary for our family to separate we sent our three children to their grandmother so they could go to school in Brookline, but Mrs. Grenfell and I remained together. People do that in the north. She has helped me in my medical work."

Dr. Grenfell established the Labrador mission in 1892 and has been surgeon, sportsman, missionary, guide, philosopher and friend to all since then. He is a true optimist, always cheerful, wide awake and ready with the right suggestion, whether it is a hearty laugh, a serious operation or a bottle of medicine.

Dr. Grenfell is returning to Labrador after having raised more than $600,000 toward the million-dollar endowment fund which is meant to carry on the work he started. Grenfell committee members will continue working for the fund.

HOME OF JOHNSON ART UP TO COURT

Arguments Heard on Final Disposition of Treasures of Late Lawyer

CITY FAVORS GALLERY

Ultimate disposition of the art treasures of the late John G. Johnson was submitted to the Orphans' Court today.

Argument was heard by the five judges on exceptions presented to the report and recommendations of M. Hampton Todd, as master, who held that the Johnson homestead, at 510 South Broad street, should be sold and the proceeds applied to the cost of the construction of the new Art Gallery on the Parkway, which will have a wing specially to house the Johnson collection.

It is estimated that the cost of the gallery will be in the neighborhood of $5,000,000. The Johnson pictures, estimated to be worth $4,000,000, are now in vaults of a safe deposit and storage company.

The exceptions included objections by Harrison Morris, as a citizen and taxpayer, who desires the property of the lawyer retained and the art works be left there undisturbed. The city is in favor of the Todd plan, and assistant judges were present to answer the arguments.

It has been asserted there are so many pictures and paintings that every available space in the old Johnson home would not be ample to exhibit these works of art properly. While the house is spacious, it is asserted, it is not suitable for an art gallery. When the premises were examined after the death of Mr. Johnson, which occurred April 14, 1917, pictures were found in closets, back of doors, standing on the floors and piled on chairs and in every conceivable space.

The following resolution, passed by the board of trustees, is the only announcement of plans:

"The official relationship between them and the University can be more readily determined after they and the board shall have had ample opportunity for conference respecting policies, aims and administrative details. All, therefore, that the board can do at present is to urge Dr. Pennington, as the board now most earnestly urges him, to consent to serve as acting president until he and General Wood shall have worked out for submission to the board a scheme of administration for the University in which concern for its educational interests shall take precedence of everything else."

Members of Coopers' International Union Deny Trouble Over

Members of the Coopers' International Union, at a meeting yesterday in C. A. R. Hall, 721 Wharton street, denounced the cooperator employers for making public a statement to the effect that the strike of coopers in this city had been settled by the employers appealing to the wives of the strikers, who urged their husbands to return to work.

Andrew C. Hughes, the president, said this was a falsehood and part of the propaganda of all employers and the Chamber of Commerce to break up the union labor movement in this city and force the open shop in all trades.

"The strike is not settled," said Mr. Hughes, "but will continue until the policy of the employers toward their workers is more consistent."

The workers are more consistent, said the labor men given out by the industrial relations committee of the Chamber of Commerce, a representative of which stated yesterday that it was entirely true.

Major General Leonard Wood was elected "head" of the University of Pennsylvania at a meeting of the board of trustees yesterday.

THUGS' RUSE FAILS; TWO AUTOISTS FLEE

One Bandit Kicked in Face,
Other Bowled Over After Trying Red Light Stunt

WOULD-BE VICTIM FELLED

Harry Barrett, of Ceresco, Pa., and William Casey, of Plymouth Meeting, turned the tables on two men who held them up by means of a ruse near City Line last night.

The two were returning home from Chestnut Hill when they saw a motor car placed sideways across the road and on its running board a man holding a red lantern. They stopped their machine, thinking that either the road was blocked or that the driver of the motor car was in trouble.

The man carrying the red lantern walked toward them, and as he drew near he suddenly "donned" his lantern, drew a revolver and ordered Barrett and Casey to throw up their hands.

Instead of complying with the command Casey reached out and struck the man. By this time, however, a second hold-up man, not in evidence until now, had sneaked around in the rear, and struck Casey over the head with a pistol. He slumped back into his seat unconscious.

Barrett reached out of his seat and kicked the first assailant in the face. Then he turned to the man on the other side of the machine, who was making an effort to board the car. Barrett struck him across the face, knocking him from his position on the running board.

He started his machine, made a wide detour about the highwaymen's car, placed across the road, and successfully escaped. Casey regained consciousness during the ride.
