

EX-KAISERIN LAID IN POTSDAM TOMB

Funeral of Former German Empress Attended by Generals and Old Court Attaches

HUSBAND AND SON ABSENT

By the Associated Press
Potsdam, April 19.—Amid the tolling of bells which marked the solemn hour, funeral services for Augusta Victoria, former German empress, were held today in this royal residential suburb of Berlin, which had witnessed so many scenes of splendor in the departed days of Hohenzollern rule.

Over the simple coffin in the mausoleum, or Antique Temple, in the Potsdam palace grounds, where the services were held, had been raised the familiar standard of the ex-empress, and yellow and black streamers were draped from the four sons of the former royal couple who were free to attend the services. Lacking was the presence of the husband, the former emperor, and of the eldest son of the family, former Crown Prince Frederick William, exiles in Holland.

Princes and Princesses Present
Four black-plumed steeds from the former royal stables drew the funeral car, which was preceded by the former chamberlains of the court, bearing the royal insignia. Generals Von Loewenfeld and von Lyncker and former Ministers of State Von Dolbrueck and Breitenbach, Knights of the Black Eagle, held the corners of the purple robes which covered the funeral car.

and princesses and other members of the former German royal family in equipages of state. They were followed by members of the ex-emperor's court and distinguished army officers, among whom were Generals Von Hindenburg, Ludendorff, von Mackensen and von Kluck. Immediately following the coffin was General von Falkenhayn, who carried on a cushion the ex-empress' many decorations.

At 10.30 o'clock the cortege reached the mausoleum, where were held the services, to which members of the Hohenzollern family and private guests were admitted. They were conducted by Dr. Dryander, the former court chaplain, assisted by the choir of the Dom Cathedral, which sang, "Christ Is My Redeemer Liveth," "Christ In My Life" and other hymns familiar to Protestant Germans.

Thrones Attend Services
At the conclusion of the services, throughout which the tolling of the church bells continued, the admission of the public to the mausoleum was begun. It was arranged that the public should file past the bier until 7 o'clock tonight, after which the mausoleum is to be closed to view until the permanent crypt in the Antique Temple, where the Hohenzollern couple will be buried, has been completed.

The throngs which made their way to Potsdam to witness the funeral ceremonies for former Empress Augusta Victoria crowded all manner of conveyances to this home of ex-royalty. The first regular trains which left Berlin at 5.30 o'clock carried men and women on the running boards and even on the roofs, while the crowds inside were so tightly jammed as to leave hardly breathing room. The special train provided by the court marshal for the invited guests also was filled to its capacity. It carried numerous plumed and helmeted former army and navy officers, whose livery was in striking contrast to the plain black garb of the distinguished civilians, who contented themselves with wearing their red-ribboned decorations or iron cross.

Officially, Berlin was not taking a holiday, as the Prussian cabinet had issued an order prohibiting a school recess and also had informed the governmental employees that they were expected to report for duty as usual. Neither the national nor the Prussian government was officially represented at the ceremonies.
