Nancy Wynne Talks of Several Who Will Sail Today for Europe—She Hears Mask and Wig Show Was Greatly Applauded in New York

WHILE quite a few persons who have been abroad have returned to this country, the Van Rensselaers and the Gouverneur Cadwaladers, for instance, many are leaving this week and next and the general exodus Europeward this spring and summer far exceeds last year's goings. I think some persons feared floating mines last year, while now there seems little likelihood of coming in contact with such horrors, as the seas have been pretty well secured by the various navies.

Sailing today on the Canopic will be Mrs. Fred English and her two daughters Beatrice and Elaine. Mrs. Francis X. Dercum is also going on that steamer and Betty Dercum will be with her mother. Still another party consisting of a mother and two daughters will be Mrs. Charles Trotter Thompson and her charming girls, Phoebe and Marie Louise. Marie Louise came out this last season and had a beautiful time. She was in Europe last summer, I remember, because she brought some lovely French frocks home with her to wear at the parties here and as a matter of fact she was one of the best-dressed of the buds last year. I remember one frock especially: she wore it at the first Assembly and looked perfectly sweet in it. It was of pale blue silk and had pale pink rosebuds and leaves as trimming.

WHILE my mind runs on gowns, have you seen the smart afternoon frock of light gray Canton crepe that Mrs. Corbit Lovering is wearing? It's awfully good looking and most becoming, made on long lines and the bodice is cut low at the neck and has short sleeves. The skirt is very pretty, being moderate in length and the softly arranged fullness is very smart. Gray stockings and suede slippers are worn with the gown and her hat is a mushroom shape of gray trimmed simply.

THE Mask and Wig Club had quite an ovation in New York, I hear. They filled the Metropolitan Opera House and were clapped madly by the audience. Do you know I think most shows that have "animules" in them are successes? Remember the horse in "Don Quixote" last year, and the mule in "Whoa Phoebe" several years ago? And the Lion in this year's production seems to take the cake pretty well as it were. And you know how every one loves Hitchcock's "Ethel."

Harry Neilson, who is the business manager of the club this year, went over with them to New York, and he tells me it was simply great to hear little old New York clapping our boys as they did. You know they are to have another performance here. It's to be next week on Friday night, April 29, at the Academy of Music.

Harry Neilson by the way, is the son of Mr. Lewis Neilson, and you know how his family has been identified with the Mask and Wig ever since the days when Tommy Robb, George Kendrick, Jim Clayton, McMichael, Charlie Morgan, Fred Neilson, Howard Mohr and the rest of them were the leading lights and heroes of the first production.

That missionary play Andrew Cives and the Fox in this show is rather awful, you know. But then we must all have a weakness for it, and Bernard Shaw would be the last one to object.

Some of the men who are in this year's production are F. H. Ledyard, W. R. Clark, Jr., who is the lion; H. J. Biderman, Gazzam MacKenzie, Rex Wray, C. E. Cane and, of course, a number of others.

I HEAR that little Nancy Hoyt was the most attractive maid of honor at Hope McMichael's wedding in Washington on Saturday. She was in white and in honor of the Garibaldis. You know the bridegroom is Captain Garibaldi, and his brother, General Garibaldi, was his best man. Hope looked very well. She wore a very short wedding dress, and her veil was short, too—just to the floor. It was all very foreign but most unusual and artistic. I have been told by four or five of those who went down to attend the ceremony. They are going to live in Mexico for a year, I understand.

IT WAS a glowy day last week, and though the wind blustered the world far and wide, and though Mr. H—— is a bit deaf and knows it himself, he could not quite understand why Mr. H—— should look so surprised when he asking, "How's business?" he replied, "Rotten."

"Why?" said Mr. H——. "I said 'How's Mrs. C—?'"

NANCY WYNNE.
