Prevent Languor-Try Rice, Nut and Celery Croquettes

By MRS. M. A. WILSON

(Coveright, 1921, by Mgs. M. A. Wilson, CPRING time frequently brings that Sall gone and very much tired out feeling-a yawning time-and we feel without ambition to do our work. To those who fail to take heed of mother nature's warning, readjustments of sveryday habits are liable to be a bit wearisome. However, these readjust-ments are necessary if you wish to es-cape the spring fever and languor.

During the cold wintry days the body carbonizes the fuel to supply the necessary bodily heat; sometimes the body has been working overtime and has demanded large amounts of fuel and while heat was not utilized by the manded large all this heat was not utilized by the all this heat was not utilized by the body a goodly portion of it was used for energy. This surplus energy makes for energy. This surplus energy makes us alert and more active during the win-

Now along comes the springlike and halmy weather and the body demands less heat and less foods producing this need. A slow-down of heat production lowers the energy, hence a feeling of languor—the tired feeling and general

The appetite becomes finicky, noth-The appetite becomes finicky, nothing tastes good and we discard winter foods and have real difficulty in finding foods that take their place. This is not because of the food shortage, but because of our lack of knowledge necessary to cover this difficulty. Ease up for a day or two and give nature an opportunity to help the body get rid of its excessive waste products. Clean house, as it were.

yourself.

The best blood purifier known today is the kidneys—so eat foods that will keep them in good condition. This is the season to cut down sharply on nitrogenous foods, such as meats, eggs, dried peas, beans, lentils, cheese and fish, and thus reduce the poisons manufactured from these foods during the process of diseastion.

Eat, in place of them, plenty of fresh green foods, salads, milk, whole wheat bread and both the fresh and dried fruits. Omit overseasoning. So many of us use large proportions of salt, pepper and other seasonings, which irritate the stomach and intestines and interfere with digestion, and thus di-rectly injure the kidneys. You will be agreeably surprised when you acquire a taste for the natural unsalted foodshen you find how delicious they are and then you will realize that the habit of drenching all the foods liberally with alt and pepper is truly a mistake. The use of unsalted creamery butter will give a delicious flavor to the food. Whole wheat and rye bread for variety, with a good eggless mayonnaise dressing, will prevent monotony in this menu, which excludes the use of meat, cheese, fish and dried legumes and eggs, and uses in their places a liberal and abundant diet of nature's own foods.

When You Iron

Have a clean, well-padded board table set at comfortable height. Use clean, smooth irons. Rubbing them occasionally with wax or paraffin will keep them in good condition. Rusty or dirty irons should be scoured with sandsoap or bath brick, washed, wiped dry, heated, waxed and rubbed smooth.

Have clothes evenly dampened and noothly and tightly rolled.

Iron fabrics with the lengthwise thread, if possible, and iron as large a space at one time as possible. Most materials look best if ironed thoroughly first the parts that dry out y and that will hang off the board finished.

For silks, woolens and colored materials, use medium-hot irons. Iron all these materials on the wrong side, except aprons and children's dresses that need a smooth surface to keep clean longer. Silks and woolens may be ironed on the right side if covered with dampened cheesecloth, say household specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture.

So-many of the season's girdles act like a bashful young man. Something prevents them from moving up.

This shy waist line of today's drawing is typical of the new mode. It is not indicated at all in the front and, although here it extends around the back, many others confine their attentions entirely to the sides.

The model of today is a navy serge coat-dress, trimmed with red and blue embroidery arranged skillfully. The buttons are covered with self-material, and a touch of red piping is found on collar and sleves.

were all sold. Well, now a new ship-ment has come in, and this time— what do you think?—the prices are lower. As a matter of fact they cost just exactly $1. They are three-quar-ter-length chains of black beads. At the end of the chain is a beautiful plaque also of jet, and hanging from this is a tassel of beads—or if you prefer, you can get one with a pear-shaped bead pendant.

Of course, you have seen the smart tweed hats that are being worn so extensively this year. In many cases they have been made along with the tweed suit to match the suit. But if you did not get one when you bought your suit you can still buy one, which if it will not match perfectly, will at least blend. One shop has a large selection of many colors. They are straight-brimmed affairs that can be turned up or down at will. Their price is $6 each.

You have seen the black neck ribbons many times—those that come ready-made with a clasp and a little buckle or ornament, and on which one wears a locket-or watch or other ornament. But have you seen these in yellow ribbon? No, not yellow, but a perfect gold cotor? For certain pendants and to wear with certain dresses a gold-colored ribbon would be even more effective.

Utilizing Heat

Home gardeners who have hot-water heating plants in their dwellings may find it convenient to use this source of heat in a hotbed where plants can be grown in early spring, garden specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture say. In case this is done a pit should be dug and the walls built of concrete and a raised floor of boards placed
