EVERY once in so often I receive requests for dishes that are just unusual, and when this occurs I try to arrange several of them together, in order that other housewives who are interested in new recipes will have an opportunity to try them.

If you have some good and homey dishes, send me your recipes. I shall be very glad to give them to the readers of this page so that they may enjoy them with you.

My Dear Mrs. Wilson—Will you kindly publish a recipe for a white layer cake to be baked in two thick layers with coco filling—not a cream, but of the consistency of a hard sauce? I am quite sure you have one in mind, so am thanking you in advance.

Beston Baked Beans

Wash one and one-half cups of marrow fat beans and sonk in plenty of warm water. Let stand over night; in the morning wash again and then place in a kettle and cover with warm water and bring to a boil. Cook for ten minutes and then turn into a colander and drain. Wash under running water and return to the kettle and add two medium-sized onions, chopped fine, and a pinch of thyme and sufficient water to cover. Boli for fifteen minutes and then turn into a bean jug and add:

One pound of salt pork, cut in pieces, Four tablespoons of mustard,
Two cups of tomate pulp rubbed through a sieve.

Bake in a slow oven for six bours.

There should be sufficient water to cover.

Cumberland Valley White Layer Cake Place in a mixing bowl
Three and one-half cups of flour,

One half teaspoon of salt,
Two level tablespoons baking powder.
Sift twice and then add
One and quarter cups of sugar.

Rub the sugar and flour between the hands to blend and then rub into the mixture until the flour is very fine and crambly Tico-thirds oup of shortening.

Then use One half cups of milk or

One teaspoon of vanilla extract. One-half teaspoon of almond extract. Beat to a smooth batter and then fold the stiffy beaten whites of three eggs. Bake in two deep, well-greased layer-cake pans in a moderate oven for twenty minutes. Turn from the pans

My Dear Mrs. Wilson—Kindly publish how to can cranberries—to serve with cold meats—so that they will keep all year. Thanking you in advance. MRS. D. J.

Cranberries may be filled into jars and covered with fresh cold water and then sealed airtight just like rhubarb, or they may be stewed and filed into jars and then partially sealed and processed for forty minutes in the hot bath. The cranberries may be sweetened or just as you prefer. Or they can be made into jelly. Try the following it over the top. Bake in a slow oven until the custard is set.

One quart of cranberries, One and one-quarter cups of scater.

Just Air

Possibly it's because he lives at Asbury Park, N. J., or possibly it's on account of the fact that he has always been of a mechanical turn of mind, but the fact remains that Frank R. Chester has long had a leaning toward the invention of a device which would add a new thrill to the strolls along the boardwalks at various seaside amusement parks, where people are perfectly willing to spend ten or fifteen cents to try out something novel, particularly when the competitive element enters into it.

"The toy balloon idea." Chester figured. "appeals to the grown-ups as well as to the kiddles, though the former probably wouldn't care to admit it. There ought to be some way to inflate balloons of this kind mechanically and, at the same time, to make it sufficiently difficult to be interesting from the standpoint of the person who is trying to complete the operation. Now if there were only some way of controlling the inflation, of letting the air out if the process were undertaken too rapidly—"

Night after night Chester worked on the idea and finally he devised an apparatus upon which he not only secured patent rights but has obtained options on some very prosperous seaside locations. As a background he selected a painted drop showing an aviation field, with observation balloons and airplanes in full flight. Then, in front of this he placed several miniature hangars, before each of these being a toy balloon, attached to the mouthpiece of a pipe. The other end of the pipe leads to a handle, operated by the person who wants to try his skiil. If he turns the handle a few times the balloon commences to expand, but, if he turns it too rapidly, the air is released and the balloon defiated. The object, of course, is to see who can burst his balloon the quickest, and Chester figures that the popping of the red and green toys will attract almost as much attention as the novel device itself.

What Will Women Do? Cook until the berries are soft and then rub through a sieve and add three-quarters cup of sugar to every cup of cranberries. Stir to dissolve the sugar and then boil for fifteen minutes. Turn into sterilized glasses and store in the usual jelly manner.

SIDE PANELS HANG BELOW SKIRT HEM

No we man who 'owns any old black lace need feel nervous about the spring evenings. All manner of laces are used this year, but black lace—particularly Chantilly—has never had such a vogue. A new conception of the black lace dinner gown is offered in today's drawing. Here the novelty is furnished principally by the draping of the skirt providing, as it does, side sections dipping be'ow the hem of the skirt and gathered over the hips in the way that the season demands. The bodice is cut low in the back and the wide sleeves are slashed underneath. The jeweled girdle of green, gold and blue affords the only note of color. CORINNE LOWE

What Will Women Do?

It is the opinion of Frances Parkinson Keyes, wife of Senator Keyes, that the time has passed for a woman's party and a national party must come in its place. To quote from her article in May Good Housekeeping: "For, in my opinion, the hard-won victory can never bring about the greatest results until men and women begin to do political work not as antagonists, but as partners. We have blamed men for years—and justly, I am beginning to feel—because they would not let us work with them; and now, if we refuse to let them work with us, will we show any better spirit than they have done—than they are still doing, I might say?"

IF YOU are swimming in a pool, or if you are going to be this summer where you will be swimming, but where ou will have to carry your suit back and forth from the bathing beach, you will want one of the rubber bags. They will want one of the rubber bags. They are well—made black bags lined with rubber, and especially designed for carrying wet bathing suits. Just a few weeks ago I tried to get one at a shop, and was told that it was impossible to get them, and that it was impossible to get them. So I am telling you about the shop where I eventually found them in case you want to get one, too. Prices begin at $1.25 and go as high as $3.50.

A tan exford that would be ideal for walks this summer has a low heel, and is trimmed with a number of bands of perforations that give the shoe a very smart appearance. It is a good color and the quality is excellent. The price of this pair of exfords is $8—most reasonable for these days.

If, like myself, you find that the If, like myself, you find that the greatest strain on your underwear comes on the shoulder straps, perhaps you will be interested in the detachable lingerie straps. The ribbon is a good, heavy quality, and comes in pale, pink or pale blue. A little buckle contrivance on each strap enables one to make it as long or short as necessary for comfort. A small gold-finished safety pin attaches the strap to your camisole pin attaches the strap to your camisole or combination. The price of these straps is twenty-five cents a pair.
