

WOMAN'S LIFE AND LOVE

By WINIFRED HARPER COOLEY

Being Square With Your Sweetheart

KEEP him guessing; a man never wants what he is sure of. That is the universal advice of matrons to young girls.

WINIFRED HARPER COOLEY

Perplexing questions these, for they strike at the very roots of our life. An old joke comes to light periodically. It concerns marriage. "A man never runs after a street car after he has caught it," is the old epigram.

Now, of course, this is true, as far as it goes. We pursue something until we have caught up with it, and naturally do not run after we have attained it. But the quip at the root of the matter is, "Do we cease to appreciate that which is our own?"

Are folks spoiled children that they crave only the inaccessible? Do men, like infants that ought to be spanked, have tantrums when they are not able to get the doll in the window, and then when kind fate bestows that lovely pink wax thing upon them, do they toss it aside disgustfully and wait for something better?

Two Minutes of Optimism
By HERMAN J. STICH
"Tree Traveling"
HARPER, the well-known publishing house, used to have a horse which supplied the motive power for some of the old-time machinery.

Which illustrates the reason why most of us do most things most every where.

THE WOMAN'S EXCHANGE
Club Wants Name
Spots on Satin
Dear Madam: I would like to see a copy of the "Black Cat Beach Suit" which you have advertised in your issue of May 1st.

Things You'll Love to Make
Black Cat Beach Suit
Don't Give It Up

Black Cat Beach Suit
It is a suit of black and white material, with a high collar and long sleeves. It is very stylish and comfortable.

A ONE-MAN WOMAN

By HAZEL DEVO BACHELOR

Barry Neil was sent to prison for embezzling funds, but Harriet his wife, believed he was innocent.

Chapter XIII An Interruption

HARRIET went to the office the next morning with a certain feeling of confidence.

She was looking through her note book, arranging her work for the day, when the telephone rang.

"Hello," she said, taking the receiver off the hook.

"Hello, Miss Taylor? This is Mr. Harmon talking. I'll be late this morning, but I think you have enough work to keep you busy. All right, goodbye."

Harriet's eyes were thoughtful as she hung up. She supposed, of course, that Mr. Harmon would be detained on some business concerning the stocks.

Harriet asked lifting her eyes to his. "Of course," he said lightly, "I want you for a great many things, and you don't look as if you're going to be any other kind of a girl."

"I'm not a girl," she said, smiling. "I'm a woman, and I'm not going to be any other kind of a girl."

"I'm not a girl," she said, smiling. "I'm a woman, and I'm not going to be any other kind of a girl."

"I'm not a girl," she said, smiling. "I'm a woman, and I'm not going to be any other kind of a girl."

"I'm not a girl," she said, smiling. "I'm a woman, and I'm not going to be any other kind of a girl."

"I'm not a girl," she said, smiling. "I'm a woman, and I'm not going to be any other kind of a girl."

"I'm not a girl," she said, smiling. "I'm a woman, and I'm not going to be any other kind of a girl."

"I'm not a girl," she said, smiling. "I'm a woman, and I'm not going to be any other kind of a girl."

"I'm not a girl," she said, smiling. "I'm a woman, and I'm not going to be any other kind of a girl."

"I'm not a girl," she said, smiling. "I'm a woman, and I'm not going to be any other kind of a girl."

"I'm not a girl," she said, smiling. "I'm a woman, and I'm not going to be any other kind of a girl."

"I'm not a girl," she said, smiling. "I'm a woman, and I'm not going to be any other kind of a girl."

A NEW FAD THAT IS OLD

Remember the collars we used to wear, with one ruffle which extended down the front of the waist? They're coming back again.

RECIPES FROM EVERYWHERE ARE GIVEN TO MRS. WILSON

The Correct Way to Cook Fresh Peas Is Different From Usual Method—Salmon in Aspic Is Delicious and Tasty

By MRS. M. A. WILSON
A LITTLE old gentleman, a real epistolary, who can write a recipe in six different languages, gave me some recipes that he has gleaned from the four quarters of the globe.

Salmon in Aspic
Wrap a piece of fresh salmon, weighing about one and one-quarter pounds, in a piece of cheese cloth, then plunge into a kettle containing sufficient boiling water to cover.

One-half cup of milk, Pinch of salt, One teaspoon of sugar, One tablespoon of flour.

One onion, One tablespoon of vinegar, Cook at the simmering point for twenty-five minutes and then let cool.

One-quarter cup of finely chopped parsley, One-half cup of finely chopped celery, Mince fine four ounces of salt pork.

Renewing Oiled Mops
Floor mops may be washed in hot water and then clear, hot water; they should be quickly dried.

An Interesting Woman
Mrs. Mildred Garrett Paveant, formerly Mrs. Paveant, of the National Union of Women's Suffrage Societies, is a household name wherever the cause of woman suffrage is a live issue.

The Question Corner
Today's Inquiries
1. What is the most popular material for the summer's bathing suits?

Saturday's Answers
1. In addition to serving a new tea wagon, that is a decided improvement over the old one can be used as a table, as a drop leaf on each side opens out.

Clam Omelet
Mince six clams fine and discard the shells. Place two tablespoons of butter in a small saucepan and cook the clams gently until tender.

Strawberry Fritters
Only large, firm berries can be used for this dish. Make a batter as follows: Yolk of one egg,

Please Tell Me What to Do

By CYNTHIA

Dear Cynthia—I am a young boy of seventeen, father good-looking, in love with a girl sixteen years old, who is very beautiful. Kindly tell me how I can make her overcome her bashfulness as I love the girl dearly.

"Perplexed" Gets Them
Dear Cynthia—Having read the column for quite some time, here is a subject that I would like to answer.

"Perplexed" Is Answered
Dear Cynthia—While it is true that in the first time I have written, I hope the letter may meet with your approval.

Says Husband Wants Her to Work
Dear Cynthia—This is the first time I have written to you, but I read your column.

Does Not Want "Steady" Friend
Dear Cynthia—I am an ordinary-looking girl of nineteen, just coming to you for advice.

Adventures With a Purse
OF COURSE, the price of silk stockings has come down. But as one advertisement said, "With stockings so predominant a part of one's dress nowadays, they must be of good quality."

WHAT'S WHAT
By HELEN DECIE
Nobility seems to be concerned about the fate of a young bachelor who has become a friend with a charming maid.

WHAT'S WHAT
By HELEN DECIE
Nobility seems to be concerned about the fate of a young bachelor who has become a friend with a charming maid.

WHAT'S WHAT
By HELEN DECIE
Nobility seems to be concerned about the fate of a young bachelor who has become a friend with a charming maid.

WHAT'S WHAT
By HELEN DECIE
Nobility seems to be concerned about the fate of a young bachelor who has become a friend with a charming maid.

WHAT'S WHAT
By HELEN DECIE
Nobility seems to be concerned about the fate of a young bachelor who has become a friend with a charming maid.

WHAT'S WHAT
By HELEN DECIE
Nobility seems to be concerned about the fate of a young bachelor who has become a friend with a charming maid.

WHAT'S WHAT
By HELEN DECIE
Nobility seems to be concerned about the fate of a young bachelor who has become a friend with a charming maid.

WHAT'S WHAT
By HELEN DECIE
Nobility seems to be concerned about the fate of a young bachelor who has become a friend with a charming maid.

WHAT'S WHAT
By HELEN DECIE
Nobility seems to be concerned about the fate of a young bachelor who has become a friend with a charming maid.

WHAT'S WHAT
By HELEN DECIE
Nobility seems to be concerned about the fate of a young bachelor who has become a friend with a charming maid.

WHAT'S WHAT
By HELEN DECIE
Nobility seems to be concerned about the fate of a young bachelor who has become a friend with a charming maid.

WHAT'S WHAT
By HELEN DECIE
Nobility seems to be concerned about the fate of a young bachelor who has become a friend with a charming maid.

MARYJANE IS "FOOLISH" BECAUSE SHE GETS SO SCARED

But She Will Enjoy Being May Queen, and Every Other Experience She Has, Much More Than Calm, Complacent Fanny

ALL this week is going to be so exciting. Some of the schools are having their May parties today, but there will be others strung out all the rest of the week.

Mary Jane is so nervous that she hasn't had a square meal for days; she's going to be Queen of the May at her school, you know.

Of course, all she has to do is to march in the procession with flowers; and Dutch boys and girls, the Yankee Doodle set that does the wand drill, and the flower girls.

After that she just sits on a throne and writes until two little girls from class B come up and put a crown of daisies on her head.

But, my goodness, suppose her petticoat should show when she walks in! What if she should stumble when she steps up on the soapbox covered with burlap that leads up to the throne!

She lies awake at night thinking about this and seeing visions of herself in her red-wild dress grabbing at the arms of the "throne," letting out a frightened squeal, while her white-clad feet scramble in a desperate, unsteady effort to regain her feet.

She shudders and tosses about until Mother hears the creaking of her bed and wants to know what in the world is the matter with her.

FANNY is going to be a queen, too, at her school. She is going to wear a new white dress just made for this occasion, and it has blue ribbons fastened on the shoulders and hanging down like a train.

Mary Jane thinks it's the most beautiful dress she ever saw. Fanny has to stand up, too, after she reaches her throne and recite a speech of welcome to the guests, which she has written for the occasion.

"MOTHER'S DARLING."
Dear Cynthia—This is the first time I have written to you, but I read your column.

Dear Cynthia—This is the first time I have written to you, but I read your column.

Dear Cynthia—This is the first time I have written to you, but I read your column.

Dear Cynthia—This is the first time I have written to you, but I read your column.

Dear Cynthia—This is the first time I have written to you, but I read your column.

Dear Cynthia—This is the first time I have written to you, but I read your column.

Dear Cynthia—This is the first time I have written to you, but I read your column.

Dear Cynthia—This is the first time I have written to you, but I read your column.

Dear Cynthia—This is the first time I have written to you, but I read your column.

everybody groups around her and they all stare at her! Mary Jane would "just die" if she had to do that!

But Fanny is just as calm as if she has been Queen of the May in a hundred speeches every day of her life. She can't see anything to be excited about, and why should Mary Jane be scared? Foolish, Fanny thinks, to get into such a stew.

Mary Jane's mother thinks it's dreadfully bad to be nervous, and Fanny's mother says complacently that she could understand it if Mary Jane had as much to do as Fanny has!

PERHAPS Mary Jane is silly, and perhaps Fanny's serene attitude is more sensible, but Mary Jane is going to get more fun out of life than Fanny will ever even dream of.

She will probably suffer more in anticipation and in realization of the blow which life will deal her. But her ups will more than make up for her downs; she will suffer a hundred fold, but rejoice a thousandfold.

And she will give that much more, too. It is no pleasure to entertain Fanny; for she takes so much for granted and refuses to thrill unless she has to.

But it is a joy to do the least little thing for Mary Jane—she just loves everything.

IF I WERE Mary Jane's mother I should be glad that she is as she is and not as Fanny is. She may have suffered in her nervousness over being May Queen.

But think how she will enjoy every moment of the adventure while it is going on, and for days and weeks, perhaps months, afterward.

AT CUPID'S CALL
By MAY CHRISTIE
Love's Rivalry

CARRINGTON BELLAIRS looked from Mary's sweet, flushed face to the countenance of Dick Calardin.

"I'm sorry," said Mary, "but I'm afraid I can't do it. I'm afraid I can't do it."

"I'm sorry," said Mary, "but I'm afraid I can't do it. I'm afraid I can't do it."

"I'm sorry," said Mary, "but I'm afraid I can't do it. I'm afraid I can't do it."

"I'm sorry," said Mary, "but I'm afraid I can't do it. I'm afraid I can't do it."

"I'm sorry," said Mary, "but I'm afraid I can't do it. I'm afraid I can't do it."

"I'm sorry," said Mary, "but I'm afraid I can't do it. I'm afraid I can't do it."

"I'm sorry," said Mary, "but I'm afraid I can't do it. I'm afraid I can't do it."

There's a Reason Why Grape-Nuts makes a helpful breakfast and a profitable lunch for the worker who must be awake and alert during the day. Grape-Nuts is the perfected goodness of wheat and malted barley, and is exceptionally rich in nourishment. It feeds body and brain without tax upon the digestion. "There's a Reason"

TASTYKAKE
JUNIOR
17¢
16¢
7¢ EACH 6¢
TODAY